

PRINCIPLE AND METHOD.

A Prohibitionist Whose Eyes Are Opening.

An Effort to Have the Enemies of the Saloon Taken United Action.

The following paper was read at the World's Fair Temperance Congress at Chicago recently, and roused much comment. It is from the pen of Rev.errick Johnson, D. D., the well known prohibitionist Presbyterial divine of Chicago. It indicates that, at least, one leading prohibitionist is getting his eyes open.

The Independent recently declared (February 25, 1893) that "the time had come for a concerted effort to exterminate those two evils, the liquor saloon and the house of ill-fame."

Dr. Edward Everett Hale, in recently considering the question, "On what line may the enemies of the saloon unite to battle?" divided the opponents of the saloon into two classes. First, those who would totally prohibit the saloon, and second, those who would allow it to remain as a source of the greatest evils, although they do not regard a moderate indulgence in spirituous liquors as wrong.

Many of these second class opponents are the enemies of the saloon, but they are perfectly willing to take any measures, even the most stringent, for the abolition of the open bar. And it is the venture of the prophet that it would be possible for these two sets of people to unite their forces simply for the suppression of the open bar, or the abolition of the saloon, and then to separate to exist within five years in nine-tenths of the States—perhaps in all of them.

Beyond a doubt, the dominant sentiment of the country is against the saloon. Equally beyond a doubt, this sentiment has never been united and rallied in the extermination of the saloon. If the saloon is the menace to the nation, it is declared to be by our entire religious press, by a large portion of our secular press, by our church organizations, by our scientific men, by our publicists and statisticians, and by our publicists and statisticians, and by our publicists and statisticians.

For my own part, speaking as a Prohibitionist, I would let every enemy of the saloon in whatever party and under whatever name, know past all doubt that Prohibitionists are not willing to meet any method, and that they will sink their preferences as to lines of action, and at once and heartily unite with all men in any method, which is effective, and which is effective against one of the mightiest evils of our day.

What is the method? I think there is, and it points out and emphasizes by our common hostility to the saloon. It seems to me the great body of Prohibitionists, pure and simple, should be willing to unite with any method, which is effective, and which is effective against one of the mightiest evils of our day.

Perhaps there is nothing in practical life we need more than to have in mind that the distinction between principle and method. Perhaps there is no one thing that is more often confused and confounded.

Principle comes from a word signifying "beginning." Hence, it means "cause," "source," "foundation"; that out of which other things are based, such as rules, methods. Principle is therefore something fundamental, and general, needing no further explanation, and no further explanation.

A principle is a central, representative truth in science or philosophy, or morals, as the principles of morality, of equity, of government.

A method is a way of doing things. It is particular, and is a principle of utility. Gifts, graces, talents, possessions are for use. The general principle of utility. Gifts, graces, talents, possessions are for use.

ARCHERY REVIVAL.

The Beautiful Pastime Continues to Grow in Favor.

Charming Gatherings in Eastern Cities—Some of the Experts Here in California.

The wave of enthusiasm for archery which was set in motion by Maurice Thompson's "Witchery of Archery" in 1877, and which spread so rapidly that in 1879 a National Association was the necessary corollary, has by no means lost its force, remarks Outlook for June.

The spirit of the times is tending more toward that aspect of outdoor recreations upon which, after all, so much depends "socially." We are learning now to blend our pastimes into our daily life, to look upon them as opportunities for charming intercourse, rather than exclusively fierce contests for supremacy.

WHAT A VOLCANO CAN DO. The Roar of Cotopaxi Once Heard Six Hundred Miles Away. Few people in this country imagine what a terrible work a volcano of the magnitude of Cotopaxi can do when once aroused, says the Philadelphia Times.

Archery is of this class, and the fact that it has existed through good report and evil, through the days of enthusiasm, and through the days of indifference, is evidence that its roots are deep in the hearts and very nature of the sons and daughters, not many generations removed from the people upon whose skill with the bow and arrow depended not only the daily provender, but what is dearer still, liberty and country.

During the present season the Oakland Club, which has been organized for the purpose of promoting the sport, has held its meetings at the private residence of Frank M. Smith. Thus far the meetings have been quite successful, and have done much to revive interest in the sport.

Under the new order of things all contests are at what is known as the American round, which consists of thirty arrows at forty, fifty and sixty yards. That is the range for gentlemen, while the ladies shoot at the Columbian round, in which the same number of arrows are fired at thirty, forty and fifty yards.

WOMEN AND WAGES. The Nevada Transcript prints the following communication, which is full of interest.

I notice that you are interested in the controversy between Father Montgomery and Mrs. Foltz on the question, "Should women work for wages?"
