

ANTI-DEBRIS ASSOCIATION.

Monthly Meeting of Its Executive Committee.

Confidence Expressed in the Government Engineers—George Ohleyer's Question of Privilege.

The Executive Committee of the State Anti-Debris Association held its regular monthly meeting at the rooms of the Board of Supervisors yesterday afternoon.

The Manager presented his monthly report, which shows that in his two weeks' attendance on Congress, during the month of August, he was assured by various members from the Pacific Coast that nothing should be done in that body adverse to the interests of the rivers and valleys without a full opportunity had first been given the association for presenting its side of the case on the question; that a strong effort is being made by Senator Perkins and Congressmen Caminetti and Maguire to put through some measure for the betterment of the rivers and harbors of Northern California; that no promises had been made by Congressmen Caminetti or Maguire or Loud to put through any measure, proposed by the miners, to remove restrictions on hydraulic mining.

He found while at the World's Fair that the hydraulic miners had used every opportunity in the mining exhibits to advertise the alleged fact that by stopping hydraulic mining the country had lost and is annually losing a great amount of circulating medium, and that a great and beneficial industry is thereby killed.

He attended, as a spectator, the Miners' Convention at San Francisco on the 10th and 11th instants. Found it participated in solely by men and that the acting spirits therein were all hydraulic miners, or their retained agents, and that the chief topic of discussion at the convention was, how to influence public sentiment and Congress that hydraulic mining might be resumed. Printed accounts of the proceedings were submitted to the committee.

Attention was called to the fact that Attorney Cross said at that convention that the public is rapidly discovering its mistake in having stopped hydraulic mining, and that the Mining Association is growing in numbers and enthusiasm, while the anti-debris people are waning in numbers and enthusiasm. He called attention to the fact that Prof. Christy, of the Chair of Mining and Metallurgy of the University of California, at that convention, in effect, that the injury to our rivers was more from natural wash than hydraulic mining.

The report shows that active mining operations are going on at the mines of the Eureka Lake Company and the North Bloomfield Company; that, in his opinion, the latter mine is proceeding without authority of law.

There are no new developments in the nature of litigation. The report further shows that the Mining Debris Commission have had about one-half dozen applications for permission to mine, but that so far only one, that of the Eureka Lake Company, has been granted, which permit is to fill an old excavation; that the hearing before the commission ought not, and does not, require opposition or protest, for the reason that the commission makes personal inspections as expert engineers of the proposed works, and that protests can have no weight with them, since they act upon their own observations; but that in his opinion the commission means to deal fairly with the valley and river interests.

MR. OHLEYER'S STATEMENT. George Ohleyer stated that he desired to speak to a question of privilege relating to the last Miners' Convention, and at that point the following communication:

YUBA CITY, October 14, 1893. To the President and Executive Committee of the State Anti-Debris Association, Sacramento—GENTLEMEN: The recent Miners' Convention held in San Francisco listened approvingly to some remarks reflecting on the course of the old and the new hydraulic mining, and on some of the members of your committee, which seem to me to demand some attention, to the end that the truth may be known.

That hydraulic campaign of February, March and April, 1892, conducted by the delegates sent to Washington by the Executive Committee of the Miners' Association remains to be written, which, when done, will give more light on the subject than has yet appeared.

As Judge Niles Searls was a member of that delegation, the remarks attributed to him in the late convention, by the published reports of its proceedings, seem to require a notice at my hands.

The proceedings were evidently designed to go up in a blaze of glory, with Senator Cross as the center, and furnish the fireworks. The judge, in the goodness of his heart, congratulated the convention on the growing popularity of the hydraulic giant and the waning influence of the valley, and, by the way, must be said, have committed no greater sin than to seek to protect their homes, property and lives, and the public streams from utter ruin, in which they are sustained by the highest courts in the land, both State and National.

Referring to a conference had at Congressman Caminetti's residence at Washington to consider a bill that had been prepared by that gentleman, the Judge is reported to have said:

"It was found that all was not so harmonious as had been supposed. R. T. Devlin, one of the representatives of the farmers, came to the conference and stated his objections fairly and squarely, but George Ohleyer, the other representative, had evidently footed, saying: 'If Jehovah were to come to me with a bill in any way favoring hydraulic mining, I would not accept it, and from that time on there was a continuous fight.'

The Judge continuing, said: 'Is Mr. Devlin in the hall?' 'If he is, he said yes whether I state the truth or not.' 'You are entirely right,' said Mr. Devlin, who was an interested spectator.

The above, allow me to repeat, are the words found in the published proceedings, hence may or may not do exact justice to Judge Searls; but if uttered by him they require correction in two important particulars.

First—Robert T. Devlin informed me, over his own signature, that he was at no time in the convention hall and, therefore, could not and did not respond as reported.

With reference to the remarks attributed to me at the Washington conference, the Judge failed to remember or quote the whole of it. I did say if Jehovah presented a bill on the hydraulic mining question I would not accept it without first submitting it to my constituents for examination and approval; that I was not clothed with such authority. The bill was in the handwriting of Mr. Caminetti, was written with pencil, and was changed and rewritten to please his author.

I had previously heard the bill read and had always expressed myself as incapable of passing judgment on so important a subject, and I may say every Congressman from California expressed themselves similarly to me.

On the occasion referred to the Judge sat as informal Chairman, and when the reading of the bill was completed, J. K. Luttrell, one of the miners' delegates, arose and moved that the bill be accepted by the delegates representing the farmers and miners, in the hope, doubtless, that it would carry and entrap the valley representatives into silence forever. This object was rather deductible from the apparent dislike expressed by the mining delegates and the hints given out by them that George Ohleyer had largely dictated the most important provisions of the bill. It was evidently thought that, could he be persuaded that he was the author of the law, he would support it with avidity.

The motion could have been carried three to two by the miners' delegates, but the question was not put to a vote—another evidence of the yapping trap. It remains to be said, the bill was finally introduced and passed to print and copies were submitted to the river delegates and to their constituents. Amendments were offered by them and declined; but the appropriation with which to construct dams was entirely eliminated in the House, together with some other provisions. In that shape it passed the lower branch of Congress. When it appeared in the Senate nearly, if not all, of the amendments proposed before were engrafted on the bill, and became a part of the law. It is therefore to be seen that your representatives avoided a very serious responsibility by withholding their approval of the original bill. Consequences that, in my judgment, must have resulted disastrously to them and to those who selected them to represent their interests. Respectfully submitted,

Royal Baking Powder. Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report. ABSOLUTELY PURE.

GEORGE OHLEYER. The committee then discussed the condition of some pending and prospective litigation, and after passing upon the monthly bills adjourned till the next regular meeting.

BERTAGNIA'S SLANDER.

He Apologized, and the Case Against Him Was Dismissed.

Last February P. A. Galgani and wife caused the arrest of C. Bertagnia on a charge of willfully slandering their daughter by writing a letter in which she was represented as being anything but virtuous.

Bertagnia was held to answer for the crime. Yesterday the parties appeared in Court, when it was shown that Bertagnia had written a letter to the parents of the girl, and they expressing satisfaction, the case was dismissed.

Will Not Be Prosecuted.

James Supple, who stabbed Andy Burns in row in front of a hotel on Fifth street, will not be prosecuted by Burns, the matter having been settled out of court. It is stated that Burns was paid enough to compensate him for lost time and the pain and annoyance of his wounds.

STARTING A BALKY HORSE. An Incident Which Indicates That Horses Have Some Sense. An old white horse attached to an empty express wagon balked at the corner of Twenty-sixth street and Broadway the other day, and for three-quarters of an hour successfully resisted every attempt to make him move on. The driver belabored him with a whip, tugged at the reins and yelled, but to no purpose. Then a crowd gathered and began to give advice freely. One man seized the horse by the ears, another grasped the bridle and began to pull, while two or three others braced themselves against the animal's hindquarters and tried to push him forward. The creature didn't move a foot.

One wise fellow blindfolded the horse with the driver's coat, after which he declared the animal would move right along, but the plan was a dismal failure. Another insisted that if a plug of tobacco were forced into the creature's mouth he would be in a right saying which he thrust a big piece of navy twist between the horse's jaws. The stubborn beast shook the dose from his mouth and refused to take it. Meanwhile the crowd continued to grow, and the newcomer had a plan of his own for solving the problem, which by this time had effectually stopped the movement of vehicles in the vicinity. He ordered the blocks in either direction. The horse was apparently there to stay. The driver was in despair. The four or five policemen who had been drawn to the scene by the shouting crowd looked sheepish and puzzled.

A lady who had watched the scene from the window of a neighboring cafe finally turned to the gentleman accompanying her and said: "Go and start that horse. These men can never do it. They don't understand. How shall you do it? Simply take a halter, walk up to the horse quietly and hitch it to his bit ring. Take the halter in your hand, speak to the horse gently but firmly and lead him away." The gentleman went out and borrowed a hitching strap from a hackman, and the crowd jeered him as he approached the balky horse. He fastened the strap to the bit ring as directed, patted the animal kindly on the neck and took the end of the halter in his hand. With a word of command he started to lead the creature, and the horse, who was promptly and obediently as if that were exactly what he had been waiting for all the while. The crowd stood back in wonderment and admiration. Some of the spectators declared that the animal had been hypnotized.

"There is no trick about it," explained the little woman, laughing to her friends as the gentleman rejoined the party in the cafe. "With all the halts and whittens fooling around him the horse probably felt that he knew as much as they did. What he needed was neither beating nor yelling, but the presence of a master. To be sure as to ordinary hitching strap, rope or chain is the token of his own objection. The sight of it will subdue him when all other means have failed. Horses are a good deal like some men—you may lead them easily, but you can't drive them."—New York Herald.

Chinese Gambling.

Eds. RECORD-UNION: I desire to enter a protest against the authorities of this city permitting the continuance of Chinese lottery gambling here. It seems that these heathen blacklegs have a free field here to fleece the many Caucasian gamblers who resort to their lottery joints in the vain hope of bettering their financial condition.

It is the secret boast of gamblers that they pay the power that be for the immunity from prosecution which they enjoy. Is this boast true as regards Chinese lottery in this city? Verily, it would not be a matter surprising if it were. Snob shames are common in these boozing times. If our Police Department is honest in its professed desire to prosecute this class of offenders, it can easily compass that desideratum. Frankly and fearlessly do these lottery sharps violate the laws in our midst.
