

A BIG-HEARTED MINER.

He Fed Nineteen Hungry Men in One Night.

How a Trinity County Mining Philanthropist Practically Applies the Golden Rule.

Of all the disinterested and genuine exhibitions of true and worthy charity and assistance to the deserving needy that have come to light in this city—so filled with hungry men of late days—the acts of a mountain miner, a few nights since, take the golden prize, and by all odds break any former record in obeying the injunction and carrying out the Christian beatitude of "feeding the hungry."

About 7 o'clock that evening an ordinarily-dressed man walked into a restaurant on K street, between Third and Fourth, having in tow a very seedy and needy-looking individual. The former gave the clerk orders to give the latter something to eat, and laid down a quarter for the reckoning. He then quietly left the place. In a few moments he returned with another, and made the same request as to furnishing "something to eat" and making payment, again retiring.

The fact of one man performing two such acts of generosity in one night attracted the attention of the guests present, and they praised them accordingly. But they became interested as the strange, "honest miner" soon put in an appearance with a third supperless unfortunate and paid, as before, two bits for the fare.

Here the interested spectators saw they had in their midst a "character" of renown, and they determined to see the outcome of the night's work. They tarried after setting their own scores, for they felt the unknown philanthropist would again return; and they were not averse to the detail of the night's doings of that man, let it suffice to say that by 10 o'clock he had taken from the streets and fed nineteen men with supper, for each of whom he paid a quarter, or $1.75 altogether.

Nor were they drunken, worthless, undecorous "bums" or "bobs," but men simply out of work and needy, and their friend and benefactor was very exacting in requiring that if the proprietor knew any of them to be drunken or dissolute characters not to feed them with his money.

Of the nineteen persons fed, one was a boy about 12 years of age. One of the men obtained permission to secure his breakfast instead, saying he could get along till morning. One peculiar fact was noticed in every one of that multitude, and it was that not one of them thanked or in any way recognized the kindness of the stranger who gave them, perhaps, the first square meal they had had for days.

The liberal man would not give his name, only volunteering the fact that he was returning from San Francisco to his home in Trinity County.

AMUSEMENTS.

At the Metropolitan Theater to-night Katie Emmett, the charming soprano, will appear in her Irish comedy-drama "Killarney," by Con T. Murphy, author of the "Ivy Leaf." We are told that there is an abundance of strong sensational scenes, sparkling comedy, and interesting situations, and that the play is a story which makes the whole deeply interesting. The scenic effects of the play are fine, everything used in the production being carried out by the company. The story is represented as one of unusual strength, among the names being those of W. A. Mack, the balladist, Stella Barr, and others equally well-known. Katie Emmett is one of the most popular of sopranos here. She is magnetic; there is spontaneity in all that she does; her voice is infectious, and she has her own grace to her as does the magnet, and with the latent talent of the true artist she knows just how to handle the audience when it is once within her grasp. As a matter of fact she is the Irish colleen of the American stage to-day in the opinion of many critics.

At the Clunie Opera-house to-night, and to-morrow night, the sensational city drama, "The Streets of New York." It will be played also at 2 p. m. to-day for a matinee performance. The piece has been better staged or better played by the stock company than this.

The next engagement at the Metropolitan Theater will be that of the Spanish Life Company for two nights. It is the play in which three athletes form a bridge with their bodies over a chasm and across it the heroine escapes.

"East Lynne" is to be the play at the Opera-house next week, with Carrie Clarke Ward in the lead. It is a new version of the well-wearing play, the text having been almost entirely rewritten and the scenes improved.

Sacramento Council, No. 95, O. C. F., will give a farewell party at their hall, Tenth street, between J and K, Wednesday evening, October 25th. An enjoyable time is promised.

At Armory Hall, this evening, the Pionette Reale Mutual Benevolent Italian Society will celebrate the 40th anniversary of Columbus' landing by a grand ball.

There is a prospect that Fanny Davoport will soon play an engagement at the Metropolitan.

During the winter several stars are to play at the Opera-house, with the stock company support.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES. The Classes Are All Growing in Numbers and Interest. The class in Delsarte held its first lesson last evening. Mrs. E. E. Condo is planning a most excellent course in elocution and Delsarte combined. Music will be given with movements, even to the breathing exercises, thus pleasing the eye and ear.

Mrs. Etta Elliott, at the head of the cooking class, which meets Friday at 8:30 p. m., is very enthusiastic over her department. She holds that to be a good and economical cook is an art which should be studied by every woman. All of the educational classes at the young women's rooms are excellent, but all are included in the membership, which includes any woman of good moral character.

The young women will have in November, as their entertainment of the season, the Berkeley University Glee Club, which will be gladly welcomed after the fine evening given last season. Mrs. A. C. Herrick will lead the gospel meeting at 4 p. m. to-morrow. Subject: "Presence of Christ Amid Storms of Trouble and Temptation." These meetings are increasing in interest and the members urge women to attend whenever opportunity offers.

WORKINGMEN'S CLUB. One Organized by the Adherents of B. U. Steinman. Its Declaration of Principles—A Mass Meeting to be Held on Fourth Street To-night.

The fact was given out yesterday that on the evening of Monday, October 17th, a workingmen's club was formed at Old Fellows' Hall in the interest of B. U. Steinman for Mayor. It is said to have been quite an enthusiastic gathering. The result was the formation of a Steinman Club, of which George W. Murray was elected President, C. M. Harrison Vice-President, James H. Ferguson Secretary, John Childs Treasurer. These officers, with the addition of W. J. Haridy, were chosen as an Executive Committee.

It was resolved that the membership should not be restricted to the laboring classes, but that professional men, merchants, etc., would be eligible. Membership rolls have been prepared, with the following declaration of principles: "Recognizing that in the coming municipal election the workingmen of Sacramento should select for Mayor a man who, irrespective of politics, is the best for the interests of the city, and whose efforts will be directed toward improvement, and believing that B. U. Steinman has proven one of the best, we hereby declare our intention to support him for Mayor, and to have provided work for the workingman, and at all times has shown himself to be in favor of a fair day's pay for a fair day's work—we do associate ourselves together under the name of the 'Workingmen's Club,' for the purpose of using all honorable means to secure the election of B. U. Steinman Mayor of this city."

A call has been issued for a mass-meeting to be held this evening on Fourth street, between J and K, under the auspices of the club, at which several persons will deliver addresses.

thing found on the body, containing the dates September 1, 2 and 3, but nothing else. Some bottles of sour wine and a white bottle, which had apparently contained ammonia, were in the apartment. The body was a most loathsome sight. Scarcely an ounce of flesh remained on the bones, and it was alive with worms. It lay on the right side, with one foot under the head, as if the man had just dropped to sleep in that position. His hair was black, streaked with gray, and he had a full sandy beard. No one seems to know anything of the deceased.

A GASTLY FIND. The Body of an Unknown Man Found Near Flint's Hop Ranch. Yesterday afternoon word was received at the Coroner's office that the body of a man had been found just back of Flint's hop ranch on the Riverside road. The body was found in a sort of a but made of boughs, in the brush between the hop field and the levee, and the man had evidently been dead about a month. He was dressed in a coat and vest of the same material, a sort of blue and brown check, and dark pants, the clothing being of good quality. He had lace shoes and a slouch hat. I am always ready to sound the praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla."
