

THE NEW BRIDGE.

Sensible Remarks in a Woodland Newspaper.

Reasons Why the Supervisors of Both Counties Should Assist in Its Construction.

[From the Woodland Democrat, Oct. 15th.]

At the next regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors the application of the railroad company for a franchise on Harrison street, in Washington, will come up for final action.

The object in procuring such a franchise is to enable the company to build a new bridge, and, owing to changes in the channel since the old bridge was constructed, a new site is absolutely essential to the construction of a permanent structure.

We may also add that a new bridge is an imperative demand, since the present structure is wholly incapacitated to perform the service now incident to the heavy and increasing travel between Yolo and Sacramento counties.

It is a well-known fact that it is an old and practically dilapidated structure and maintained very much upon the principle of an old and broken-down relic of bygone times, for the railroad company is constantly obliged to keep up a series of patchwork in order to make the structure stand up to its work.

At present it is practically a man's life to drive over the bridge on account of the direct contact incurred with locomotives and trains. A well-known farmer drove over the bridge into Sacramento with a load of produce, two weeks ago Thursday.

On reaching the end of the bridge he crossed one track out was and another crossed on the other side because of a locomotive crossing on another track in front of him; while waiting for that locomotive to get out of the way, another approach from the side, and a third quickly made its appearance behind him.

At once became a question as to whether his team would run into one of the engines in front of him, or back into the one in the rear. Fortunately, after considerable maneuvering, he managed to escape without injury to himself or team.

This is only one of the many instances occurring on account of the danger to which teams and animals are exposed. Anyone who will take the trouble to examine the present structure will not deny that a new bridge will soon be an absolute necessity.

Conceding this to be true, it is of the highest importance, in the matter of public convenience and safety, that the Supervisors of both Sacramento and Yolo counties should encourage the building of a new bridge.

The board proposed to put up an iron bridge, and such a structure will last for all time. To join with it in the construction of an overhead bridge is a simple business proposition that ought to commend itself to the good judgment of every taxpayer not only in the line of public improvement but in the line of public economy.

The Supervisors should not give this encouragement without guarding it with such conditions as will secure to the county the best possible benefits to be derived from such an action.

It is to be noted that if the company is to be nominated in the bond that the company must maintain the bridge for all time without any expense to the county, and no precaution that is necessary to protect the rights of the taxpayers should be neglected.

The board has been very cautious and prudent in the consideration of this question and such action is to be commended, but we have heard of no reason why the franchise should not be granted and we do not believe that any can be assigned.

A GOOD ARGUMENT For the Sacramento Plan of Securing Good Roads.

[Contra Costa Gazette.] Good roads cost money, and so do bad ones, a great deal more in fact in the end. But good roads once built cost comparatively little to maintain.

To raise the money to levy a sufficient amount of money to make solid, substantial, enduring roads all at once is simply impossible in any county in the State. There is no way, however, in which roads can be made, and that is by the issuance of bonds, and having the work done under the supervision of a thoroughly competent person.

It is the only way in which the present generation can hope to see anything like decent roads outside of a few favored localities. By the issuance of bonds the roads can be made in a much larger amount, and the payment of interest and a portion of the principal sufficient to insure their liquidation within a specified time would not require so much larger an expenditure each year for patchwork, and we should have good roads all the while, leaving posterity to pay its proportion for the indebtedness.

Even if the amount to be raised were larger, the increase in the value of taxable property would more than make up the difference. It is not the counties, however, having the lowest tax rate that are the most prosperous, by any means. A high tax rate caused by substantial improvements in the shape of good roads is only borne when increased business follows in consequence and real estate is in demand at high rates.

It is time that Contra Costa woke up to the real situation. Every real estate man knows that the condition of the roads has kept out thousands of dollars that would otherwise have been invested in the county.

We may as well have and enjoy these improvements directly, and share the indirect advantages they bring, distributing the cost over a series of years, each generation paying its proportion, as to worry along in the old way, leaving our more enterprising posterity to make the improvements and enjoy the increased prosperity they bring.

SOLVE THE PROBLEM Go and Pay a Visit to the Kindergarten.

The kindergarten is not a movement which affects a special class in the community. It addresses itself to children of all ranks and of all conditions. Its benefits are all-embracing. Its joys are keenly felt by the tattered, dirty little brother of the alleys as the dainty, well-dressed darling of the Brahmin caste.

It has nothing to do with country, climate, race or religion and, I had almost said, nothing to do with age or youth, for it is founded upon truth and it is in the nature of truth that it is universal.

wonderful system of education wrought out by the inspired German philosopher, you have but to settle the matter by making four visits of inspection. The doors of the kindergartens will be opened wide to you and the devotees of the system will tranquilly see you sit out and return, for there is no shouting, half-hearted adherence to principle and they are sure of the result of your visit. They are rooted and grounded in the faith and they know absolutely that though you may scoff at home and doubt your office, in the sweet, irresistible atmosphere of the kindergarten you must, of necessity, be converted.

Supposing, of course, that you are a normal person and as much in your right mind as it is common to be; through indeed were the opposite true, there would even then be hope that the joy, the serenity, the peace of the kindergarten would calm your troubled spirit and make you a reasonable being.

Go then and spend an occasional morning with the children; efface yourself as much as possible; be silent and passive and drink in the spirit of the place. And do not be content with one kindergarten; visit as many as you can. You will be all good or an unusually poor specimen—it is not for you to generalize on one particular.

Do not say you have no time for such visits—it is the busy people who always have time for extra work. Trust your conscience with the obligation and you will be reminded too often for your comfort. Whether by common sense, or curiosity, or skepticism that takes you, go! and be converted!—Nora A. Smith in Kindergarten News.

THINGS TO REMEMBER Never put left-over food in tin vessels.

Lemons will keep fresh for weeks if covered with water. For taking blood-stains from white goods, nothing equals kerosene. Dip fish in boiling water for a minute and the scales will come off more easily.

Vegetable, scrubbing and other brushes should be washed in boiling water. Sadrinos will not scorch if they are first wiped on a cloth saturated with kerosene.

Rub soft, not melted, lard over the top of the bread before baking, and wrap in damp cloth with a dry cover after baking, and there will be no hard crusts. The fumes of a brimstone match will remove berry stains from the fingers.

Tar stains are removed by applying oil, and then removing the oil with benzine. In mending with a dry cover after mending, there will be no hard crusts. To create very little if paper is placed between their folds.

Moist hands are frequently relieved by bathing them in lukewarm water containing a teaspoonful of borax or ammonia. If a shelf in the closet is infected with red ants, carpet it with flannel, and the tiny insects will not attempt to invade that.

A sponge large enough to expand and fill the chimney after having been squeezed in, tied to a slender stick, is the best thing with which to clean a lamp chimney. In some of the tests in bluing it has been discovered that certain properties in poor bluing, combining with qualities of certain soaps, will produce an iron rust stain in the fabric.

To draw linen threads for hemstitching, take a lather brush and soap and later wash the parts where the threads are to be drawn. Let the linen dry and the threads will come out easily, even in the finest linen. A good bleacher and stain remover from cotton or linen is made by pouring boiling water on chloride of lime in the proportion of one gallon to one-quarter of a pound; bottle it, cork it well, and in using it be careful not to stir it. Lay the stains in this for a moment, then apply the lather brush to the stain.

They were asked at a large wholesale furniture store the other day what they employed to keep their stock in order. This polish was recommended as all that was needed, and was a little cheaper than turpentine and two-thirds sweet oil, applied with a soft cloth.

If you have any trouble in securing perfect cleanliness about the kitchen sink and draining pipe, a strong solution of eye sprinkled over the strainer every night. Some of it, of course, is washed into the pipe, and there unites with the grease and forms a strong deposit. As soon as there is boiling water in the morning, pour a gallon of it down the pipe. This will cleanse it thoroughly.

RACING WITH AN AVALANCHE Exciting Flight from the Destructive Monster.

Let Mr. Tuckett himself describe that thrilling race for life and limb. "I can't remember," he writes, "being struck with the idea that it seemed as though, sure of it, I wished to play with you for a while, at one moment letting us imagine that we had gained upon the monster, and were getting beyond the line of its fire, and the next, with mere wantonness of vindictive power, suddenly rolling out and striking us with a little concern, and blocks and whirling snow, as though to show that it could outflank us at any moment."

"Nearer and nearer it came, its front like a mighty wave about to break. Now it has traversed the whole width of the glacier above us, taking a somewhat diagonal course, and now it is on top of me. If ever you did, for here it comes straight at us, swift, deadly and implacable! The next instant we saw no more; a wild confusion of ice and snow and fragments of ice—a frozen cloud—swept over us, entirely concealing us from one another, and still we were untouched—at least I thought I was until we ran. Another half-second and the mist had passed, and there lay the body of the monster, whose head was still careering away at the top of the mountain, motionless, rigid and harmless."

"The danger was over, and the party examined the avalanche at their leisure. It had a length of over a thousand three hundred feet, and an average depth of five feet. This is to say, its bulk was six hundred and eleven thousand cubic yards, and its weight, on a moderate computation, about one hundred and fifty thousand tons.—McClure's Magazine.

ADOPTED A Sacramento Idea Takes Root in Fresno.

[From thepositor.] The Record-Union, which has been making an earnest effort in behalf of good roads, made a suggestion some days ago that the several counties provide themselves with a road bill, and the petty offenders and vags be put to work breaking rock for macadamizing roads during their terms of imprisonment.

The Record-Union's idea, and the Supervisors have seconded the motion and acted on it. They have arranged a special rate with the railroad company for hauling rock from Raymond, and will have a rock yard built and a spur track put in, and go into the stone breaking business. The Record-Union's idea, and the Supervisors have seconded the motion and acted on it.

The cases of James Neary against R. P. Burr for $22,000 damages for false imprisonment, and John Anderson against Hugh Casey for $20,000 damages on a similar charge, will likely be concluded to-day. The former is in Judge Catlin's court, and the latter in Judge Johnson's.

Feemlity of Pursuance. The common purslane, which grows anywhere as a weed, produces more seeds than any other plant. One seed pod, by actual count, has 3,000 seeds, and as a rule, each seed produces 100 more seeds, the seeds from a single year's growth may, therefore, number 60,000. There is no instance of similar fruitfulness in any other plant growing in this country.

Weather Forecasts. Official forecast for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight October 21st: Northern California—Fair weather; nearly stationary temperature; westerly winds.

TOO EXACT FOR ONCE The Story Told by a Veteran Who Lost an Arm in 1864.

The veteran had just finished a lecture to the old soldier club on military exactness, says the Detroit Free Press, and had been rather severe on some who were disposed to be lax in their methods, particularly a tall Corporal with one arm off. When he had finished the Corporal stepped out in front of the soap box on which he had been speaking.

"May I please your honor," he said, "mockingly, 'I have a story to tell which may in some measure excuse my fault. You see this arm, and be said out of the stump. 'Well, that is the result of too much exactness.'"

"The veteran showed his surprise and asked him to explain. 'Well,' went on the Corporal, 'it was this way: Along in 1864, when I was in the Army of the Potomac, I was, as you know, a cavalryman, and one day 100 of our regiment were ordered to act as a reserve for a small sortie that was to be made to stir up the enemy. Every officer we had had been so raked over by our crusty old Colonel for not having everything just right that his own duty was a burden. A Captain was in command of our force and he had his range in exact line as if we were on parade, and that, too, after the enemy had begun to sling shells over our way, and a man wanted to dodge in spite of himself. The Captain advanced to the front rank of American family magazines. Two handsome colored portraits of prominent society women appear in this number, and among the many papers of these special notes: 'The Flower of Gala Water,' a complete novel by Amelia E. Barr; 'A Holiday in Spain,' Floyd B. Wilcox; 'The Land of the Living,' by Henry; 'New England's Children,' a Thanksgiving story, George J. Putnam; 'Jannetto's Cupid,' a sketch, J. M. Leveque.

"Harper's Weekly" of October 11th has among other editorials: 'The Van Allen Case Again,' 'The Surrender of the Anti-Slappers,' 'Carlsruhe on Banking and Currency,' 'The Naval Treaty,' by A. Conan Doyle; 'Columbian Exposition—The Grand Arch of the Peristyle'; 'The Grand Arch of the Peristyle'; 'The Pueblo Indian Dance,' by J. H. Sharp; 'New York to Philadelphia—1727,' 'The Great International Yacht Race Between the Vigilant and the Valkyrie.' The illustrations are many and fine.

We have received from John Picht, 73 Avenue C, New York City, a copy of "Elements of Music," which represents a book on one page, the author's first year's study. It contains all the rudiments, from the first lesson to all the major and minor scales, chords and key-notes; how to play the piano and the organ; a dictionary, and a full-sized key-board, which shows position of all the treble and bass notes on, above and below the staff, in the original notation, and impresses us favorably.

"Harper's Bazar" for October 14th has as editorials: 'Personal Beauty,' 'A Disease of the Nerves'; also 'New Fashions,' 'Fashions of the Season,' 'Hits of the Fair—Germany's Exhibit,' and 'The Pueblo Indian Dance,' by J. H. Sharp; 'New York to Philadelphia—1727,' 'The Great International Yacht Race Between the Vigilant and the Valkyrie.' The illustrations are many and fine.

"Well, I'm going down to see Jim now," continued the mountaineer, "and if I get him by the neck, I'll hang him from the house when you come up in the mornin', an' if Jim gets me you'll have a funeral to preach, so you won't lose nothin' by it. You see, I'm going along good-by, an' slinging his Winchester into the hollow of his arm, he hurried away through the thicket, leaving the circuit very short, and the mountaineer, who had completely knocked out by the suddenness of it all and the peculiarity.

Kindergarten Training. Some excellent people devote their energies to extending the kindergarten, merely because they regard it as a potent method of carrying aid and comfort to the children of the poor and the degraded, a means of making their present more tolerable and their future more productive of good to the community at large and themselves in particular. But the kindergarten is not for the poor alone. They do not monopolize the sunlight, or the summer breeze or the grandeur of Niagara. No, the children of the wealthy are the well-to-do need the kindergarten in common with the "other half" of our juvenile population. The temptations of both classes are not exactly alike, but they are very different, and, unless they are, often to be largely counteracted by kindergarten training.—Kindergarten News.

Japan's Poor. It is said that the contentment of the poor in Japan is the result of the spirit of politeness which pervades all ranks of the Japanese people. Rich and poor are all courteous, and it is impossible to distinguish employer from laborer by their behavior. This politeness results from genuine kindness, and it settles all problems between man and man.

Bill Durkee's Big Luck. His Children Were All Money-Making Freaks. A gentleman who is rusticated in the northern part of New Hampshire took a tramp along the hills one day recently, says the Boston Journal. In passing a hillside he saw an old man digging up potatoes. The old man's potatoes were all money-making freaks.

"Your potatoes seem to be doing well," he started in. "Oh, I reckon I'll have a few potatoes," rejoined the farmer, dryly, as he stopped hoeing the rocks off the vines and glanced at the stranger curiously from under the wide brim of his weather-beaten straw hat.

"Other crops good?" "Oh, the crops are just tolerable, as usual, I s'pose," replied the farmer indifferently as he came up to the rail fence dragging his hoe after him. "But I'll tell yer jest how 'is, squire," he continued timidly, "in the most unfortunate old critter in Coos County."

"Farming don't pay very well up here, I s'pose." "Nothin' pays me, squire, but I did expect a leetle or suthen from my crop of young 'uns."

"Children turned out bad, eh?" "Jes so, squire. The bull on 'em has been a dead loss to me. Dan—I named him for Dan Webster an' give him a good education—he's a horse doctor; practiced on my old mare, an' she died. Zeke went inter what they call the green goods business—keepin' a grocery store, I s'pose, but he busted up, an' he writes me that he's now workin' in a place callin' Song; says he's got a good stiddy job, but the pay ain't good, an' he's a-erser wantin' to borrow a dollar from me. Sam an' I went to workin' on the railroad, an' I had ter put the funeral expenses of both on 'em. Maria Ann got married to a drummer at the county fair, an' she went up in a balloon, but very soon down safe, an' he's been honeymoonin' with me an' the old woman ever since. Lizzy, my youngest, ain't with her keep, an' she's a-tesin' me to buy her a bysickle—me, who ain't laid eyes on a $5 bill since the war. I tell ye, stranger, I'm the most unfortunate old critter with my young 'uns that ever lived."

"You certainly have had bad luck with your children."

"I should say I had. Now, there's Bill Durkee up ter Colebrook, he's had the greatest luck any man ever had. Squire; they ain't any on 'em taken that way."
