Efforts to Secure a Compromise on the Silver Question Fail.

THE CLOSURE WILL PROBABLY BE THE NEXT STEP TAKEN.

Senators Jones of Nevada and Teller of Colorado Argue Against the Repeal of the Purchasing Clause of the Sherman Silver Act—Important Decision Relating to the Rights of Railroads to Take Building Material from the Public Domain.

Special to the Record-Union.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The prevailing opinion in the Senate late this afternoon is that efforts to secure a compromise on the Democratic side will not be renewed. There are indications that there will not be many more speeches, and when these are concluded voting must necessarily begin. The Republican Senators will make no effort and agree upon a measure which both the repeal and silver favor, and which hardly seems probable, they will try to get Democratic assistance sufficient to get the bill through. It now develops that there are seven Democrats who have not signed the agreement to support a compromise. They are Mills of Texas, Mitchell of Wisconsin, McPherson of New Jersey, Voorhies of Indiana, Caffery and Ivey of South Carolina.

About the only definite announcement made after the compromise was declared out was that the bill will be taken tomorrow at cloture, and that the silver men had reorganized their forces and were prepared to continue the fight indefinitely. Whether given out in earnest or for purpose, some silver Senators have announced that when they heard that a compromise was being made, they would make no more factious opposition, but would give way as soon as prepared speeches were concluded and the real question of the bill was before the Senate. Senator Voorhies had in mind early in the day, when he said he would ask for an adjournment instead of a recess to-night, the bringing up of a cloture resolution to-morrow. When he afterward allowed a recess instead of an adjournment he cut off all possibility of taking that question into consideration to-morrow.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS.

Yesterday's Doings in the Senate and House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The Senate met at 10 o'clock. No adjournment having taken place since one week ago to-day, the legislative day of October 17th continues.

Stewart of Nevada gave notice of the amendment he intends to offer to the amendment in the Senate bill, which is a compromise bill proposing that a conference be held at Washington within nine months between delegates of the United States, Mexico, Central and South America, Hayti and San Domingo, for the adoption of a constitution which is legal tender between the citizens of the countries represented.

The consideration of the silver repeal bill was resumed. Jones of Nevada resumed his argument in opposition to the bill. Jones made an elaboration of the arguments he was advancing on the question of the silver standard. He said that the standard of the country could be neither gold, silver, nor any material thing, but that whatever the standard might be it was dependent upon the number of units, and that there could be but a single standard in the country and that of one quantity.

"Last summer," continued the Senator, "the British Government, desiring to show its sympathy with the object of the Administration in this country, issued an order with the view of facilitating the descent of silver. The order was taken by New York to be the announcement of the amount of silver. During this time there was the United States Government, of all the nations the most interested? The position of the Chief Magistrate of this country on the question of the silver standard is a line from Emerson, 'I am the doubter and the doubt.'"

"But in the words of a supplemental line the genius of the republic administered the President as well as Great Britain did not propose to be left out of consideration as to what should be the material of their money. The United States is not yet a dependency of Great Britain and the President is not a Governor-General. For the first time our national history we find ourselves putting into execution through officers elected by the people of the United States, plans which, if not formulated, are heartily approved by the Horse Guards and on Downing street."

At 1:30 p. m. Jones remarked that he desired to yield the floor to Teller of Colorado, expressing his desire to resume his speech at another time.

Teller answered questions as to whether he thought the Government of the United States could, with free coinage of silver, maintain the parity between gold and silver by saying it could, because he did not believe more silver would come to this country than business would require. But, in other words, the demand would be equal to the supply. "The free coinage of silver of the United States might not do it," said Teller, in answer to a query by Palmer. "The position I take is our example to be followed by other countries, and then the monetary system would return to the system that prevailed prior to the demonetization of silver by Germany, the United States, the Latin Union, etc."

Stewart of Nevada then addressed the Senate in advocacy of his proposed amendment for a Pan-American conference. Without concluding, Stewart yielded and the Senate took a recess until to-morrow.

HILL OF NEW YORK.

Addresses a Democratic Meeting in the Academy of Music.

PRAISES CLEVELAND FOR CALLING THE EXTRA SESSION.

Frederico Culmero Lorena Proclaimed Provisional President of Brazil by Admiral Mello—The Last of the Northern Pacific Express Robbers Shot Dead While Resisting Arrest.

Special to the Record-Union.

BROOKLYN (N. Y.), Oct. 23.—Democrats in thousands gathered in the big Academy of Music this evening to hear Senator David B. Hill speak. It was announced as a grand Democratic ratification meeting and the promoters took occasion to have a long series of resolutions printed and distributed. The resolutions contained a pledge to support Cleveland and the National Democratic Administration and demanded the prompt and absolute repeal of the silver purchase clause of the Sherman Act.

When Senator Hill came to the front the great crowd cheered and half the audience rose to their feet, waving flags and handkerchiefs. The Senator bore it all calmly and placidly and when it was over he began his speech.

Senator Hill opened with a short allusion to the opposition to Democracy and principles, saying it was the same common enemy with whom his party had been contending for so many years. The Senator then alluded to the National Committee in the tariff provisions, and said the country was on the eve of a realization of Democratic promises. He repeated his well-known views on the Federal election law, referred briefly to the finances of the National Government, and then passed to the consideration of the Sherman law. In this connection he said: "The law is illogical in construction, vicious in tendencies and injurious in operation. The desperate effort to prevent or delay the passage of this bill, freedom of debate has been abused. No matter what may be the outcome of the present struggle, the necessity of a change in the Senate rules has been abundantly demonstrated. I promise you the effort for a change will be continued, irrespectively of the result of the present bill. The majority must be permitted to dominate and control its proceedings, or else legislation becomes impossible."

Senator Hill's speech was taken up with a discussion of State matters, and he closed with a prediction of a great Democratic victory next month.

THE REVOLT IN BRAZIL.

Frederico Culmero Lorena Proclaimed Provisional President.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—A Herald's Montevideo dispatch says: News has been received from Rio that Frederico Culmero Lorena has been proclaimed Provisional President of Brazil by Admiral Mello. Lorena is certain of one of the rebel warships and the Provisional Government of which he is now declared President, was established some days ago at Desterro. The bombardment has been suspended. The Republic appeared outside Montevideo yesterday, and was promptly quarantined. She signaled the Brazilians to-day to come outside and fight, but no reply was made. The Uruguayan officials refused to allow the Republic to enter the harbor, and would not even allow her to communicate with the shore, so after being supplied with water and coal she sailed north again. Uruguay declined to comply with the request of the Brazilian Minister here to arrest revolutionary chiefs who visit Montevideo. Admiral Mello issued a proclamation to the Brazilians, calling on them to continue their efforts, and assuring them of the ultimate downfall of the "tyrant Peixoto." He declares that the President endeavored to assassinate him by means of an album loaded with dynamite, which was sent to Mello with the connivance of Peixoto.

A Cretail Catches a Train.

"We have all seen men run for a train," said a traveler. "The other day I saw a man make a break for one on a bicycle. We had halted at a station from which a straight, level road ran back at a right angle to the railroad. A considerable distance up that road we saw a man coming on a bicycle. A man afoot couldn't have got anywhere near us from that distance, and it didn't seem as though the man on the wheel could get within rods of us, but he came down the street whizzing. When he had come about half the distance he turned back and started the start, and the engineer sounded the whistle and started the train. It was astonishing how fast the man on the wheel was moving. There was a brass level swept over this in a great curve that landed him alongside the baggage car. The conductor held up the man and the waiting hands of the baggage master. A fraction of a second later the steps of the first passenger car came along, and the cyclist was aboard a winner."

THE EMPEROR TO THE KING.

Cordial Meeting of William of Germany and Albert of Saxony.

SPEECH MADE BEFORE A NOTABLE GATHERING.

Heavy Rainfall Reported Throughout the State of Nevada, Accompanied by High Winds—Storm of Snow, Hail, Rain and Sleet Extending Over Eastern South Dakota and Into North Dakota.

Special to the Record-Union.

DRESDEN, Oct. 23.—At a reception in the castle last night, in honor of the military jubilee of the King of Saxony, Emperor William, in the presence of some of the prominent princes and noted generals of the empire, made a remarkably effective address. Turning toward King Albert the Emperor said: "According to human judgment it might have been possible for my grandfather, father and General Count von Moltke to have been here to-day, and joyfully would we younger men have followed in their footsteps to celebrate a meeting of the leaders of the army, but Providence decreed otherwise, and it has now fallen upon me to-day to lay out our majesty's feet the good wishes and homage of the German army. Please accept the expression of our heartfelt and most sincere congratulations. Our hearts are filled with joy at the fact that your majesty is permitted with unbroken strength and vigor and undiminished zeal for work, as well as unabated interest, to celebrate the jubilee of the German army."

"With most reverent homage, the army here looks upon the only great commander of that time, upon the last knight of the Middle Ages, and that so many tried leaders and counselors of that time have passed away, you will be long able to assist with mature counsel and judgment in the government of the empire. To the Emperor's address the King of Saxony replied in the most happy manner. He said in conclusion: "Should I have drawn my sword in defense of Germany's rights and security, the Emperor may rest assured that with this baton in my hand I would do my duty as in former times."

Afterward the Maharajah became a Christian, took up his abode in England and was naturalized. His mother, the notorious Ranee, also resided in England until her death in 1883, but resisted steadfastly all persuasion to become a convert to Christianity. In 1864 he was married at the British Consulate at Alexandria to a young Protestant lady, a British subject. The Maharajah published the toast "Our Country, Eng. He made it renowned as a sporting place, and became a famous shot. In 1885 he wanted the British Government to purchase the Rajah's estate, but he was not permitted to land. He then went to India, in which country he has since resided.
