A JOINT EXHIBITION NOW PROBABLE.

The Midwinter Fair Association of this county has wisely and promptly resolved that Central and Northern California ought to make a distinct exhibition at the fair in a building to be erected for the purpose.

The several counties of the center and north are cordially invited to act on one and earnestly in the matter, and set on foot the necessary agencies to secure the requisite means.

This is very gratifying. It is in line with the policy the RECORD-UNION has urged. Let us hope that all the counties of the section will at once fall into line on that proposition, for the time for preparation is now very short.

If there is energetic action, there will be at the Midwinter Fair a striking and unequalled distinct exposition in the name of the north and the center, in contrast to the exhibition to be given in a separate building by the counties of the south.

It ought to be unnecessary to present any further or to repeat any of the reasons why the suggested plan should be carried out. It may be, however, that there are some who still doubt, and still favor only independent county action.

The RECORD-UNION has on three occasions in discussing the evil of land monopolization, demonstrated that in Northern and Central California there has been not only no appreciable increase in population in rural parts, but that in the several counties the population between 1880 and 1890 seriously declined.

Such increase as was noticeable was at the expense, for most part, of the country and to the gain of the cities and the towns.

This important fact was illustrated by comparative census quotations made in this journal last week. It is unnecessary to elaborate them further at this time. But it is of value to repeat the statement of fact, and to add that this discreditable record is due most largely to our failure, our gross neglect to command the attention for Central and Northern California sections that is their due and which if once fully directed toward these upper counties of the State, will materially aid in the overthrow of the evil of land monopoly.

A means to the end we all desire; a means to the beginning of the work of commanding for the section the attention its merits demand is now at hand in the form of the Midwinter Fair about to be opened at San Francisco, and to remain open from January 15th to July 15, 1894, in which the counties of Central and Northern California from coast to mountains can find opportunity to insure to themselves such direct gain as has inured to the south counties through their wisely directed efforts in the past, when acting as the unit known as Southern California.

This end the north and center can achieve by a united, conjoint exhibition, in a common building at the Midwinter Fair, and the significance of which will be the greater because it will be the first real union of effort effected in the section north of the Tehachapi range, modeled after that which has been so frequently and always successfully made in the south counties. To that unity and oneness of purpose is to be credited nine-tenths of all the prosperity the south has enjoyed, and nine-tenths of the wonderful development and growth of industry in that section.

We need population for the north and center, backed by means, intelligence and good character. We need it to develop our resources and put us abreast with the enterprise and vigor of the age. We can sooner get it by making the facts known concerning the section. A grand conjoint effort that will impress itself upon the general intelligence as the work of North and Central California, just as the work of the south counties has made the title Southern California known in every corner of the civilized world.

That effort on our part can be earliest put forth at the Midwinter Fair, but with its close it should not cease. The way to the end is to make a distinctive exhibition in a structure of our own, erected for the purpose, and that will in object lessons teach all observers of the capabilities of the whole region concerning which there is now so much misapprehension.

The fact is that such an exhibit will really constitute an exposition of all there is of worth and wealth in the State, in climate, products, soil, education, art, manufactures, agriculture, horticulture, minerals and mining, commerce, trade, capacity, natural advantages, social conditions, and the like.

In short, a proper Northern and Central California exhibition will be a State exposition, and distinctively made it will once for all remove the false impression that obtains concerning the upper two-thirds of the State. Finally such an exposition, while at once the most comprehensive, impressive and educating, will be the most economic for each of the counties. It will stand out in bold contrast to the separate exhibition by Southern California, and will thereby tend to teach the whole the truth concerning the State as a whole, and to remove the unfortunate impression so widely made that all that is best in the State is in Southern California.

THE REPEAL BILL.

The passage of the bill repealing the purchase clause of the silver Act ends a long and aggravating debate in the United States Senate and a struggle more disturbing than any ever entered upon over a financial question in the history of the country, and certainly one that has caused more unrest than any measure before the National Legislature since the era of resumption.

The country is to be congratulated on the outcome. It is not likely that the repeal measure will be stayed in the House. It will be urged by the radical silver men that the repeal was due to the pressure of the Executive upon the Senate. But this is pleading the baby act; the Executive, so far as the debate has disclosed, no more than expressed frankly and courageously what measure the President would approve and what he would refuse to sign.

That was his right; nay, it was his duty to declare. All the circumstances surrounding the situation made it necessary for him to reply to inquiries made as to what bill would have the Executive approval.

It was well that Congress should know that the people should understand the position of the third and independent arm of the law-making power. It is by no means uncommon for Executives to indicate their friendship or their animosity toward legislative propositions. President Cleveland called Congress together for an express purpose, namely to act upon the silver question. In the message he clearly stated his views and gave it to be understood that repeal was his policy.

That any executive influence was exerted to maintain this policy not warranted by the high trust of the Presidential office the country will not believe. The President will sign the bill now passed, and in doing so we believe he will best serve the interests of the whole country. It is not now wise to discuss the issue, since it will be very speedily determined whether the friends of the repeal measure have acted wisely or otherwise. The position of the RECORD-UNION has been constantly against the craze for silver legislation calculated to exalt that metal as money unduly and to force upon the country a fictitious purchasing value in legal tender.

Three Insolvency Cases. In the matter of D. J. Considine, an insolvent debtor, T. W. O'Neil, the receiver, has filed his final account and been discharged. The sum of $5 00 has been turned over to C. Heisen, the assignee.

T. W. O'Neil, receiver in the matter of Zeimer Bros., insolvents, has been discharged by Judge Catlin to sell at public auction the property of said insolvents.

In the matter of the Gebert insolvency the sum of $180 remaining in the hands of Receiver O'Neil has been ordered turned over to the assignee and the receiver discharged.

All lovers of babies who saw the beautiful oil-painting representing the "Awakening of Love," in the Merline's Food exhibit at the World's Fair, will be glad to know that the World's Fair Commissioners have granted to Merline's Food the highest award for infants' foods—a medal and a diploma.

What Causes Pimples? Clogging of the pores or mouths of the sebaceous glands with sebum or oily matter. The plug of sebum in the centre of the pimple opens from January 15th to July 15, 1894, in which the counties of Central and Northern California from coast to mountains can find opportunity to insure to themselves such direct gain as has inured to the south counties through their wisely directed efforts in the past, when acting as the unit known as Southern California.

There are thousands of these pores in the face alone, any one of which is liable to become clogged by neglect or disease.

What Cures Pimples? The only reliable preventive and cure, when not due to a constitutional humor, is Cuticura Soap. It contains a mild proportion of CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, which enables it to dissolve the sebaceous or oily matter as it forms at the mouths of the pores.

It stimulates the sluggish glands and tubes to healthy activity, reduces inflammation, soothes and heals irritated and roughened surfaces and restores the skin to its original purity.

This is the secret of its wonderful success. For bad complexions, red, rough hands and shapless nails, dry, thin and falling hair, scaly and irritated scalps and simple baby blemishes it is wonderful.

It is preserving, purifying and beautifying to a degree hitherto unknown among remedies for the skin and complexion.

Sale greater than the combined sales of all other skin and complexion soaps.

Sold throughout the world. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CO., Sole Proprietors, Boston.

Women full of pains, aches and weaknesses find comfort, strength and renewed vitality in Cuticura Plaster, the first and only pain-killing, nerve-strengthening plaster when all else fails.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

While having repeatedly announced through the daily papers our honest as well as earnest determination to retire from business, it is with justice to the public and to ourselves that we come before you with this card embodying a plain statement of facts.

On the 17th and 18th of last month we closed our store for the sole purpose of remarking our entire stock of MEN'S, BOYS' AND CHILDREN'S CLOTHING—in fact, men's and boys' wear of all kinds—at such enormous reductions that would and has convinced the people of our sincerity and anxiety to speedily convert all of our merchandise into cash, thereby enabling us to wind up our affairs in this city as speedily as possible. It is barely likely that through jealous competition an impression may have been created that it is another case of trying to palm off an old stock, thereby being enabled to buy a fresh supply. Through unscrupulous advertisements sales of all sorts have, so to speak, become a threadbare chestnut, all of which being caused by merchants advertising one thing and invariably meaning and doing another. We therefore again take this particular method to reassure the people that ours is a straightforward, genuine SELLING OUT SALE, reserving nothing and paying no attention to values or costs; and it now remains for the people to continue to crowd our store as they have done for the past ten days, thereby benefiting themselves largely and assisting in our absolute determination of going out of business in the shortest space of time possible.

Very respectfully,

CAPITAL CLOTHING COMPANY,

600 AND 602 K STREET.
