

ELECTRICITY IN 1900.

Views of Leading Authorities on Its Probable Development.

Its Application Gives Promise of Some Wonderful Changes in the Next Century.

The editors of four of the leading authorities, in response to an invitation to give their ideas on the probable development of electricity and its application, promise some wonderful changes before the dawn of the next century. The editor of the Electrical World says: "We can expect no great improvement in dynamos and motors, as they now return in electricity as high as 97 per cent. of the energy supplied to them. The arc lamp is practically perfect electricity, and, while notable improvements may be made in the present form of the incandescent lamp, nothing startling can be expected. Electric railway traction will undoubtedly supersede all other methods for urban use, and by the extension of networks in the country, promises to largely revolutionize rural life; its application, however, to long trunk lines seems improbable. The electrical transmission of power will receive enormous extensions and probably entirely take the place of steam power within a radius of several hundred miles of water powers and in the vicinity of coal fields, whence the energy of coal will be distributed by means of the electric current instead of the coal itself being transported. The electric light will probably entirely supersede all other kinds of illumination in cities, towns and thickly settled rural districts, and electric motors will gradually enter into all operations requiring power, and more and more narrow the field of the steam engine, if, with the gas engine as an ally, it does not drive it entirely. Telephoning across the continent is a probability, and seeing by electricity a possibility."

The editor of the Electrical Review also believes in the sure advent of the transatlantic telephoning power, and more and more of the transmission of electric power, and especially an elaboration of the domestic use of electricity. On this last point he says: "The electric light is now an important element in the rapidly extending railway business, replacing the disagreeable and dangerous arc stove, and is advancing rapidly in the use of coal furnaces and gas range, bringing cleanliness, convenience and economy with it. When fully perfected and understood, the electric light will be one of the greatest boons that the electrical engineer has given us. Every housewife will rise up and call him blessed, and every husband will bless him, and not rise up! He can be tied and increase or originate heat in room and kitchen by simply turning a switch or pressing a button. Even his electric iron, which he uses to press his clothes, and his electric attachment press the button automatically."

The editor of the Electrical Age coincides with this prophetic view of the household run by electricity. This is his view of what we will have by the year 1900: "I expect to see our homes, offices, stores, etc., heated by electricity. The system of heating by electricity is probably the only question involved being the all-important one, cost. It probably will be made popular by supplying electricity from large central power stations, which, connecting the premises there with. Electricity may then be used for cooking and doing what mechanical work may be necessary, such as washing, ironing and factory. It can be made to perform all these duties by simply turning a little handle or pushing a button. Electricity will be used to accomplish all the work of one and different things to save us labor, and in directions little dreamed of at present. New things and applications are being made every day, and it is only a matter of time before we shall have some of the most popular familiarities with them to find a wider use for them."

The editor of Electric Power joins all these and goes even further. Among the items of his prophetic vision are some bits of domestic beatitude like the following: "In 1900 we shall probably have brought down the cost of current and of utility to such a degree as to allow even people in moderate circumstances to use the electric current instead of the coal or gas stove. Then, with electricity, the servant girl have broken into dawn. The overhead or trolley system will very probably be superseded by a system not more intrusive than the electric trolley, and the conduit system. The cars running underground will be propelled by electricity."

"In six years we can look for the supersession of the incandescent lamp as it is at present by a new lamp evolved along the lines sketched out by Nikola Tesla, whose brilliant and prophetic ideas have been fully enumerated by our esteemed confere, T. Commerford Martin. The new lamp will probably be without filament, but will glow in the interior of a high-frequency current properly employed. There is even a possibility of the present bulb-shaped lamp disappearing, giving way to a long, cylindrical tube glass hidden away being creases and casting a soft light upon the ceiling and thence down upon the floor. The distinction of the city will probably be effected by the agency of electricity. The canal-boats will come down to the wharves propelled by electricity. The streets will be kept bright by an electrically driven brush, and a mighty exhaust fan in the City Hall, driven by a motor, may serve to purify it."

Managers Todd and Ward of the Metropolitan Theater to take a glimpse of a new home he and his wife have been buying in a city, and which Mrs. Ward has worked so hard in fitting up that she has made herself sick.

At the Opera-house next week Mr. Higgins' drama, "Burr Oaks." At the Metropolitan on March 27th, "The Railroad Ticket"; March 30th, "Aunt Bridget," and April 2d, "Ella Elsie and Company."

Managers Todd and Ward of the Metropolitan have received from J. H. Stoddard, the Palmer Company leave to present here soon the powerful drama, "The Long Strike."

At the Old Pavilion to-night the Ancient Order of Hibernians will give its twenty-fourth annual ball in honor of St. Patrick's Day. Every car has been taken to make it an enjoyable affair.

A burlesque initiation and dance will be given by Sacramento Council, No. 93, C. U. E., on Wednesday evening, April 4th, at new Forsters' Hall, I street, between Seventh and Eighth.

On Saturday evening, the 24th, the Olive Branch Ladies' Society Foresters will give a rag and tatter party at Liberty Hall.

BRIEF NOTES
Manie F. Young has sued Edgar D. Young for divorce.

Governor Markham has signed University checks No. 14,594 to 14,640, inclusive, aggregating $25,015 84.

The arrest of Ed Regan for disturbing the peace was a mistake. The complaint was intended for Daniel Regan.

Owing to a landslide at Cow Canyon, north of Ashland, the Oregon express due here this morning will be several hours late.

Justice Devine has given judgment for the defendants in the case of C. A. Fisk against W. Woodcock, Lubin & Co. The plaintiff sued for an alleged balance due on a contract.

A negro named John Scott passed through the city en route for Folsom, in the California Sheriff Davis of Los Angeles. He goes there for one year on a conviction for burglary.

NO SUCH THING.

W. S. Cottrill's Answer to Dennis Dalton's Complaint.

W. S. Cottrill, by his attorney, L. T. Hatfield, has filed in answer to the complaint of Dennis Dalton, who recently brought suit for $1,000, the value of certain livestock which he alleged belonged to him, but which the defendant had converted to his own use.

Cottrill denies that he ever, at any time, at any place, or in any manner, converted to his own use or disposed of any livestock of any character or value owned by plaintiff.

AMUSEMENTS.
"Saints and Sinners" was played by the Palmer New York Stock Company last night at the Metropolitan Theater to a large audience, but the house was not one that such a performance warranted—it was not filled. This fact cannot be attributed to lack of appreciation by Sacramento theater-goers; nor yet to the price of admission, since there is no reason why prices should be lower here for the same article than in San Francisco. It seems to be ascribed to two facts—that the week is filled to the brim with good things theatrical; that "Saints and Sinners" has been played here before by the same actor, but not in the same manner with the same cast. In this touching drama the chief interest centers about the character of Jacob Fletcher, a poor English-dissident clergyman, and the personation of that character by J. H. Stoddard, perhaps the most effective and finished old-man actor on any stage—certainly the most superior upon the American boards. All the characters were well taken. Indeed, the thorough excellence of the performance by each of the actors is a dramatic treat, and attention to detail, the exceeding care taken to make the act appear effortless, the perfection of drill, stamp the performance of this troupe with the seal of success. But it should not be forgotten that it is all the result of many months and years of work; that such companies are high-priced and, therefore, carefully selected, that they play a single piece, hundreds of times and become capable of sinking into the character assumed, if for no other reason than old-time repetition, to say nothing of the exacting management and critical drill-masters. The chief characters last night in support of Mr. Stoddard were assumed by Miss Lillian Lockwood, Julia Arthur, George Fawcett, E. M. Holland, Herbert Millward, Reuben Fox and Ellen Ford. These created very nearly perfect characters, and, from beginning to end, in their hands, of ever present truthfulness; there was manifested in neither over-coloring, nor the reverse, and the result was a most interesting and refined simplicity, the reflection of the modesty and the littleness and vivaciousness and loveliness of human nature. It was a spectacle of art before the eyes, and a pleasure to the soul. It was penetrating in its pathos simply because it was overflowing with the natural. Concerning Coyote Sculp Claims.
SACRAMENTO, March 16, 1894.
Eps. RECORD-UNION: In your issue of yesterday I noticed the following query and reply:
Eps. RECORD-UNION: Will the State pay the bounty on coyote sculp taken until the present law is repealed by the Legislature?
F. K. Woodford.
The State will not make such payment. There is no bounty on coyote sculp. If you will allow me, I think your reply is quite misleading. Your correspondent asks if the State will pay the bounty on coyote sculp until the present law is repealed by the Legislature. Already there have been paid under the present law claims amounting, in round numbers, to $10,000; and the fact that similar claims are not now being paid is due entirely to the refusal of the State Board of Examiners to act upon them. The board has refused to act upon them because the State has no money to pay them. The act providing for the payment of coyote claims is not in itself an appropriation, and therefore a specific appropriation should be made by the Legislature to pay the same.

This point, however, I am informed, will soon be passed upon and decided by the Legislature. The question is, whether the constitutionality of the law, and all claims accruing under it are legal and valid claims against the State, and I think it quite safe to say that all will be paid in good time. Respectfully,
W. W. DOUGLAS,
Deputy State Controller.

Eat Their Parents.
A ceremony exists among the tribes of the interior of Sumatra, which is, without doubt, the survival of an ancient and cruel custom, and has passed in the course of time into a civil and religious duty. These people, although of rather gentle disposition, piously and ceremoniously kill and eat their aged parents in the belief that they are performing a sacred duty. At the appointed day of the old man who is destined to be eaten goes up into a tree at the foot of which are gathered the relatives and friends of the family. They strike the trunk of the tree in cadence and sing a funeral hymn. Then the old man, dressed in his nearest relatives deliberately kill him and the attendants eat him.

A Recent Conversation.
The Bishop's Wife, in congratulating ourselves, Mrs. Newcome, says you come to live among us. We need intelligent churchwomen. And so we may expect you at the rectory on Ash Wednesday as we use in making plans for Lenten work?

Mrs. Newcome—Certainly, Mrs. Bishop. I pride myself on being a churchwoman, and am always ready for Lent. But you, please, when does Ash Wednesday come this year? In New Orleans it always comes the day after Mardi Gras—Lila.

FROM WINTER TO SPRING.

It May Be Delightful But Often It Is Dangerous.

SOME OF THE PITFALLS.

One of the Best Physicians in the Land Gives Some Timely Advice to Those Who Are Making the Change.

"Feel chilly, eh? Been out in the cold too much, your blood does not circulate freely, your system is run down. I thought so! Almost everybody is that way just now—inclined to be melancholy and discouraged. Certainly, everybody is that way just at the change from winter to spring. Do you understand? There has been a bracing up of the forces to meet the cold, there is a decided letting down now. Careful! If you do not watch that letting down, you will go down with it." The physician who made the above sensible and honest remarks, knew what he was talking about. There is great danger in the change from winter to spring; danger not to the head, not to the lungs, not to the stomach, but to the kidneys. Few people realize things until they are face to face with them. There is no question that if you feel this way, your kidneys are out of order and you have got to take the best known remedy for these organs that control the body or suffer the consequences. The remedy in question—for there is nothing to dispute its claim—is Warner's Safe Cure. It is the only known preparation which will enable men and women to pass from the dangerous state of winter to the pleasant stage of spring and still keep their health and their vitality and their kidneys unimpaired.

After learning the cause of these feelings, you will not wonder that you are cold, that you feel blue, that you have been trying to get warm, altogether from the outside. You want something in your system that will neutralize, and that will see to it that the kidneys are kept in order. You should realize that Warner's Safe Cure is the only thing that will accomplish this. It will stop your feverishness, it will check your anxiety, dispel your miserable feelings and all your distressing symptoms.

If you have the slightest doubts of the truth of the above, you have only to see what the complete line of goods and what you find your doubts quickly disappearing. It has done, and it will do, what nothing has ever done before. It will see to it that you will be warmed in time, and accept the hints which are above given.

LOOK AT THIS PRICE, $35,000.

Now Look at This Price, WHICH IT WAS REDUCED TO, $22,750!

What is the Reason?

Simply that Mrs. Briggs has more than she can attend to and is obliged to sacrifice this place. Where is it? It is located in Sacramento County, on the American River, and consists of 191 acres, 1 1/2 miles from the Sacramento and Folsom Railroad and 10 miles from Sacramento. It consists of 160 acres all in full-bearing muscat grapes; has a residence of 7 rooms, good dryer for drying grapes, and a water right, which irrigates the whole place.

This place was selected by G. G. Briggs, who was considered one of the best horticulturists in the State at his time. He selected the best varieties of raisin grapes and superintended planting them. The place has cost over $50,000, and it cannot be duplicated in this State. It must be sold within 30 days. There is only $10,000 required to be paid in cash, balance can stand and be paid out of the proceeds from the ranch.

There were over eight carloads of raisins of over 24,000 pounds each shipped from this place this year, besides the large number that were sold for the market. It is no exaggeration to state that an industrious, frugal man can go upon the place and pay for it out of the net proceeds in three years. Investigation will prove our assertion to be correct. The soil is as well adapted for raisins as any in this State.

FOR $3,000.

An Unquestionable Bargain in El Dorado County.

Containing 22 1/2 acres in all; 8 acres in vineyard, 15 acres in orchard, 20 acres in grain, 90 acres cleared, balance in timber, all slightly rolling; can all be irrigated by a small house, barn, irrigating ditch runs through the place; all personal property, consisting of 2 wagons, plows, cultivator, household furniture, etc.; only 2 1/2 miles from the depot, on good road in the celebrated Coloma fruit belt.
