

AFFAIRS OF THE NATION.

The House Resumes Consideration of the Sundry Civil Bill.

AMENDMENT FOR A SURVEY OF SAN FRANCISCO BAY ADOPTED.

The Seigniorage Bill to Go to the President for His Signature on Monday—Senator Hill Strongly Urges Early Consideration of the Territorial Admission Bills.

Special to the Record-Union.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—In the Senate this morning, after the passage of a resolution calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for information as to measures taken by him for local supervision and inspection of buildings, the House went into Committee of the Whole and resumed consideration of the sundry civil bill. The pending amendment was that of Enloe of Tennessee, authorizing the investigation of the coast and geodetic survey to determine the advisability of the transfer of this bureau to the Navy Department.

Outwaite of Ohio took the floor in defense of the bureau, the importance of its work and the efficiency of the service.

An amendment by Lord of California directing the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey to survey the San Francisco harbor and the approaches thereto was adopted.

After some debate on some minor amendments Hartman (Rep.) of Maryland raised a question as to some statements made by Holman a few days ago with reference to an alleged endorsement given by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and the Secretary of the Interior to the amendment adopted with reference to the matter of the land in the latter part of the bill. Holman denied that he had received such endorsement. Both the Commissioner of the Land Office and the Secretary of the Interior repudiated it.

McCreary (Rep.) of Minnesota and (Wilson) of Washington also criticized the amendment, and gave notice that they would ask separate votes upon it when the bill was reported to the House.

To the paragraphs appropriating $750,000 for expenditures by the Missouri River Commission, Broderick (Rep.) of Kansas offered an amendment setting aside $75,000 of the appropriation to strengthen and improve the river banks at Atkinson and Leavenworth.

Mercer (Rep.) of Nebraska offered a substitute for the amendment, being to set aside $50,000 for the appropriation of the Missouri River, providing for the use of the same for the construction, repair and maintenance of levees between the mouth of the Platte River and Sioux City. He insisted on the amendment being made to understand that there was something else beside the sixteen-mile levee reached at Jefferson City that needed attention. The bill between Omaha and Council Bluffs should be looked after.

The amendment was at this point agreed to, limiting the expenditure to $25,000. The bill between Omaha and Council Bluffs was then taken up.

Wilson (Rep.) of Washington made a vigorous speech against the discrimination against the Western coast in the matter of river and harbor improvements. He protested against this discrimination. His people were weak and powerless now, but he warned the House that the time would come when they would be strong and powerful.

Cogswell (Rep.) of Massachusetts characterized Wilson's remarks as unjust. He pointed out the fact that from 1885 to 1893 the $1,500,000 appropriated for river and harbor improvements in twenty-six States, Washington has obtained $250,000.

Pending a speech by Catchings (Dem.) of Mississippi, the House at 8 o'clock took a recess until 8 o'clock.

About fifty members were present at the night session of the House. Mr. G. Coburn on the charge of desertion led to words between McKelighan of Nebraska and Talbot of South Carolina, in which the former charged the latter with trying to make cheap capital by objection to meritorious pension cases, and the latter in reply professed his highest regard for brave Union soldiers and his indignation at declaring his irreconcilable hostility to the soldiers who were mustered into the army from grog shops, and who became camp-followers, coffee-coolers and bouny jumpers.

The bill was finally reported favorably. After action on several private pension bills the House, at 10:25, adjourned.

Representative Black of Missouri was among the callers on the President to-day. He urged upon the President to sign the silver seigniorage bill. The President listened courteously to Mr. Black's argument in favor of signing, but did not commit himself.

POLLARD-BRECKINRIDGE CASE. Two Distinct Sensations at Yesterday's Hearing.—Final Trial.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Two distinct sensations were furnished to-day in the Pollard-Breckinridge case. The foremost was the appearance of the slender plaintiff on the stand, a witness in her own behalf, but the one of greatest interest to legal circles was the corroborative testimony of the public ceremony in Cincinnati.

When Colonel Breckinridge was shown the dispatch from New York he refused to admit its truth or to contradict it. His counsel and law partner, Colonel Shelby, however, confirmed the report, as did Attorney Stoll. The latter said, when asked if the defense would be based on this earlier marriage: "It would not be proper to forecast our case at this stage, but I will say that Colonel Breckinridge is to take the stand and defend himself, and it will be made known until then neither Colonel Breckinridge nor his counsel would be wise to discuss the defense, as that which speaks for itself."

It is improbable that this secret marriage will constitute a new legal factor, because, while it occurred on the 21st of April, the representations which Colonel Breckinridge made to Mrs. Blackburn that Miss Pollard was his fiancée were made prior to the secret marriage, the promises made in the presence of Major Moore, the Chief of Police, being those which were subsequent to the secret ceremony.

To giving her testimony, Miss Pollard was decidedly nervous at first, but, notwithstanding her trembling, she labored, she was remarkably self-possessed and remarkably accurate in the choice of words. She looked directly toward Colonel Breckinridge, as she lifted her eyes from his face. Her language and manner were those of a well-bred lady. She sounded her vowels broadly and clearly, and the drawing of her words from the "400," and her answer to the cross-examination of Major Butterworth were often turned back upon him keenly, making boomerangs of his questions.

The witness then went back to her first meeting with Breckinridge in April, 1881, when he approached her on a crossing between Lexington and Frankfort, professing to have met her before.

There was no story of her engagement to James C. Rhodes, who undertook to educate her if she would marry him; of her sending for Breckinridge for counsel as a lawyer, and of their subsequent relations.

She produced letters and telegrams from him containing words of endearment, and when once she had testified to her declarations that her conduct with others had been blameless.

Her frame was shaking with suppressed emotion, as she passed out of the courtroom, leaning on the arm of an attendant.

TERRITORIAL ADMISSION BILLS. Senator Hill Will Urge Their Early Consideration.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Hill has joined his forces with the Western Senators in urging early consideration in the committee of the Territorial admission bills. He brought the question up at the last meeting of the Senate Committee on Territories. He said as considerable time had elapsed since the Utah and Arizona bills passed the House, and as there seemed to be no objection to the admission of Utah on account of lack of population, and as he passed out of the courtroom, leaning on the arm of an attendant.

An Advance of Five Cents Per Cent in May Wheat.

Very Little Business in Progress in Barley-Oat Prices Show Ease.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16th. There has been no market activity in regular wheat contracts this week, while speculative trading has been of comparatively slow order, with no violent fluctuations in prices.

This morning, however, Call Board operators were treated to another surprise, showing that the managers of the deal are not yet through with the business. At the regular session May Wheat opened slightly at $1.10 1/2 c, but was rapidly under by 5 c, closing at $1.15 1/2 c, under heavy transactions.

There is very little business in progress, either for local consumption or shipping purposes. Prices are quiet, but holders are willing to make slight concessions to secure quicker and more steady custom. Buyers of Oats are taking but little interest in offerings, and trade languishes in consequence.

Asparagus and Rhubarb are coming in more heavily and prices are lower. Onions are a shade lower.

In fresh fruits oranges and limes are very dull and weak. There is little doing in the way of apples.

The poultry market is in poor shape for trading, and supplies of Eastern continue heavy. Turkeys are lower.

There is a fair demand for chickens, with an easier tone in the egg market.

THE CONTRADICTION CAT. There are contradictory elements in the character of the cat. No animal is so independent, and, if we may speak freely concerning cats, like Montaigne, no animal is more capricious in its choice of food. The cat is more independent and remarkable for its power of finding its way back from great distance than a cat is. There are four varieties of cats, distinguished by civilization itself for a Robinson-Crusoe-like existence in the woods. A dog lost in a wood howls all night and during the day bays. A cat, instead of using her "howling instinct," makes herself at home with rabbits, pheasants and small birds. Again, the cat in town sometimes sneezes, but in the dudgeon at some, perhaps, humiliated insult, and abandons himself to a life conducted entirely on apologetic principles. Every one knows that a perfectly comfortable well-fed cat will occasionally come to his house and settle there, deserting a family by whom it is lamed, and to whom, if it choose, it could find its way back with ease.
