REBUKE DISLOYALTY.
We have perfect confidence, unshaken faith in the National heart. It is steadfast and true to American principles. We have faith in the people of Sacramento; though for a time cowed and browbeaten and put upon the rack by self-appointed inquisitors, they are loyal, in the mass, to the American Government, which can exist only in an atmosphere of law and order.

But there are some in our midst—here and there groups—whose actions and words are simply intemperate, and make every patriotic nerve tingle with exquisite shame and anger. It is of these we speak, the few blind and senseless people who have either never had any right conception of what true liberty is, have forgotten the teachings of their youth, or have become indoctrinated with the virus of radical socialism and the venom of anarchy—albeit many of them are unaware of the sea upon which they launch themselves.

There is, likewise, that other class included in this consideration, which embraces the open and avowed enemies of the Government, who pronounce it a failure, demand its overthrow and preach upon the street corners the doctrines of disorder.

It is simply infamous that in the Capital City of the State of California men and women, in any number whatever, should, unrebuked and unchecked, preach destruction of the Republic and glorify murder, treason and all manner of lawlessness.

Yet this preaching and defiance actually takes place in the noonday glare of the sun that shines upon a people whose liberties are the envy of all the races of men. "Damn the Government!" has been heard shouted on the street. "Stab the law!" was the chorus of the Haymarket anarchists of Chicago, and it is echoed in the streets of Sacramento and Oakland and Los Angeles, and here, especially, with a freedom and license that is amazing. Labor is shamed by these unsought allies, and its cause crippled by their sympathy.

This is in brief the essence of the logic of the disloyalty referred to: "Down with order and up with passion, selfishness and blind hate; exalt the red flag and down with 'old glory' make the law of the mob the rule in this the fairest, freest land on earth; glory in the untimely death of the soldiers of the Union, and shout for victory when assassination strikes a blow."

The petroleuse of Paris and the Communards of her wine cellars never were bolder or more contemptuous and defiant of law than these men, women and callow youths who are preaching and doing treason, advising rebellion, inviting the penalties of the law and actually contributing to sentiment that would cut from under their feet every privilege and all liberty.

They are not strikers—only a few, at least; for the former have the quality of courage and the capacity to be decent, with a sprinkling unhappily of men who are violent and unconcealedly propose to carry on a guerrilla warfare against the law.

No, the classes to which we refer are in the one instance treason mongers, who scent a battle feast as vultures do a carcass; and in the other case, foolish, loud-mouthed, unappreciative people who it is now discovered have no true conception of social order and obligation. There are women among them, too, quite the most lurid of all in their disloyalty, who like one of some prominence we could name, run through the street on receipt of the news of assassination of Union soldiers and exclaim, "Another victory!" women who disgrace the sex by clapping their palms when murder is done, and in gossipy chatter send greetings of hope that the Government forces resisting lawlessness will be undone.

Beside these people the Copperheads of the troublous "sixties" would shine as angels of blessedness. These are they who have injected the spirit of rebellion into mere youth until it mashes on the streets and engages defiantly in lawless acts.

All these men and women, the foolish, the inconsiderate, the wicked who glorify over supposed defeat of the law, make themselves public enemies. They have no conception of liberty; they appear absolutely blind and deaf to the splendid privileges they enjoy under the law against which they rail.

Any man who permits these people—thank God, they are the few—in his presence or hearing to indulge in their incendiary and treasonable chatter, and does not rebuke the disloyalty is himself giving aid and comfort to those who commit treason.

Let the loyal Americans of Sacramento recall their manhood, dismiss their complacency and good-natured tolerance, and by the breath of their open expression of loyalty wither the noxious growth of un-Americanism.

Let it not remain to be said that in Sacramento, the Capital of California, always true to the Union, always loyal to the Constitution, always faithful to the principles of the Government, rebellion can be preached and go unrebuked; treason be flaunted and not be throttled; the Government of the republic be denounced and threatened, and the promulgators of such infamy not be smitten by the scorn and contempt of every lover of his country.

Let citizens recall their manhood to duty and put it on the outer guard to challenge disloyalty whenever it lifts its head. The constitutional guarantees of individual liberty are to be maintained; the laws will be enforced, the American spirit will continue to be uppermost. Social order, respect for law, regard for authority, abhorrence of lawlessness and devotion to American institutions will endure.

The day will come—God speed the coming—when the seeds of foreign importation that give us now the rank weeds of European anarchism will no more be planted in this American soil; the present growth will be uprooted, and the republic be plowed and sown anew to the principles of liberty, law and national life.

A WAY OUT.
Only the few of the striking employes of the railroad company favor forcible resistance to the opening of the road by the Government; these few are misled by their prejudices; we wish to believe that they are not prepared to stand continually arrayed against the law.

Now let the great body of the strikers who went out, who outnumber the minority four to one, demand of the minority who favor resistance that they cease opposing the United States Government, cease declaring in favor of lawlessness, and leave to after hours all matters at issue according to their view.

The chiefs of the strikers within twenty-four hours have declared in print their abhorrence of violence, their denial of participation in or authorization of it, and have asserted that if it continues it is not by order or connivance of the Railway Union. It follows, then, that the union men can put a stop to it; they can crush it and vindicate their good names and stand respected for that action in the esteem of their fellow-citizens.

They must know pretty closely where to strike to crush lawlessness and put a stop to track and other destruction. They can therefore end the present stress and not imperil their persons or their honor, since by their order and their leaders they are told to oppose violence and engage in no lawlessness.

A SIMPLE PROPOSITION.
A citizens' committee waited upon the Governor yesterday and expressed the thought that the time had come when the present difficulty should be settled and desired his opinion as to what should be done.

The answer is simple; it does not need gubernatorial reply—enforce the law; hold up the hands of those who are the representatives of the Government, stand by your country, and declare that the laws of the land shall be maintained, and the whole difficulty will be settled.

There is but one safe, sure, swift path to peace, and that is through the avenues of the Constitution and the laws upon which depend all the liberties of the people. Be loyal to your country, fearless in proclamation of it, and even the lawless will respect you.

Any other attitude is a temporizing one; any other position cowardly. First the law, first the majesty of the nation, then talk arbitration, adjustment, whatever is best to conserve human rights, labor's advantage and capital's lawful demands. But so long as disloyalty, lawlessness and armed resistance is up, there can be but one position for the good citizen to occupy, and that is one of obedience to and respect for the law and maintenance of its decrees.

Out in Fort Wayne, Ind., where the sons of liberty laid down their lives years ago to dedicate the soil to freedom and wrest the territory from the possession of savages, the American Railway Union has notified the daily papers that they must not criticize the union, but remain neutral, else the union will take action, etc. We do not believe that the papers changed their tone after that; the day for the gagging of the press has not yet dawned, nor will it in this or the next century, for civilization is not to go backward. The tyranny serves, however, to illustrate how tyrannical is born of a little usurped power; how the liberties of the people would be conserved under the new government that the autocrats of reform propose to establish. It has come to a pretty pass, indeed, when the boycott develops into the inquisition. We shall have racks and thumb-screws next.

The success which Hood's Sarsaparilla has had in freeing old and young from ailments caused by impure blood is really remarkable. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a building up medicine. Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

Had the Start of His Brother of a Year and a Half.

A young man stood at the foot of Griswold street, gazing steadily into the river, when a policeman who happened along inquired: "Looking for anything particular out there?"

"Well, no," replied the gazer. "I was just a-bit blind." "It is almost three years ago to-day since my brother Jim was drowned right here."

"And you thought you might see his hat floating around?"

"Oh, no! I was thinkin' how curious it all came about. Jim went right off the wharf here. They said he just gave one yell before he struck the water."

"It was a case of suicide, then?"

"Straight case. You see, Jim and me were both in love with the same girl. Jim was the best looking, but I had the most land."

"And the girl preferred you?"

"She did. Jim and me didn't have no fuss about it, but as soon as he found out how things was he come into Detroit and walked down here and jumped off. Poor old Jim!"

"There are many sad things in our lives," said the policeman, as he tapped the head of a pile with his hat.

"You bet, and this is one of them, though Jim can't complain."

"Complain of what?"

"Why, he suicided, because he couldn't get the girl, and now I want to suicide because I did get her. On the whole, I think Jim is about a year and a half ahead of me."—Detroit Free Press.

The Real Demon of the Marsh
Is not a spook, but a reality. It is neither a "bogie" nor a "kelpie," nor any other of those spirits which the credulous have supposed to haunt the banks of rivers and streams after dusk. Its name is malaria, and though invisible, it is very terrible and tenacious when it seizes you. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters drives it away, nor will it attack those whose systems are fortified with this great medicinal and defensive agent. The miasmatic mists of early morning, the vapors exhaled at evening may be safely breathed by those protected by the bitters. In the tropics where every form of malarial disease threatens the sojourner, and is particularly virulent when developed, the bitters are the best reliance of the inhabitant. For dyspepsia, liver complaint, lack of vigor, appetite and sleep; for rheumatism and nervousness the bitters are a sure and safe remedy.
