

DEMOCRATS OPEN THEIR CAMPAIGN.

Budd Brings His Big Artillery Into Action.

He Enunciates His Platform on Economy of State Expenses and Railroad Regulation.

Armory Hall was packed on Saturday night by those who wished to hear James H. Budd, Democratic nominee for Governor, speak.

Four carloads of people from Stockton, numbering 450 with a band, and two cars from Folsom with 150 persons, arrived in the evening, and the local Democrats and a number from Woodland and Marysville escorted Budd, who was in a carriage drawn by four white horses, to the Armory.

The parade from the depot to the hall was headed by the Stockton and Folsom delegations with a brass band, and followed by the carriage contingents.

Other carriages were in line, containing prominent Democrats and ladies. The local Democracy, with the Second Infantry Band, brought up the rear of the procession.

Roman candles added to the brilliancy of the parade.

At the Armory a large crowd had been in waiting for an hour, but as orders had been given by the local management that the doors were not to be opened until the parade arrived several hundred were turned away.

Mr. Budd then paid his respects to the Southern Pacific corporation, saying that he had been elected Governor, and that he would be glad to see the members of the committee to select the standard bearer.

Mr. Budd then introduced the Hon. James H. Budd as the standard bearer of the Democratic party.

Mr. Budd was, to the surprise of every one, elected from this district to Congress, and I have no hesitancy in predicting his election in November by a greater majority than that received by the late Governor Stockton over his opponent, 22,000.

There is no party in this nation made up of any party for years past which has given such universal satisfaction as that of Mr. Budd, and in fact the whole ticket needs the approval of the entire people of the State.

Mr. Budd said he did not know of any place more appropriate in which to open his campaign than Sacramento County, where, when the late Governor Stockton brought him, and where he lived for several years on the American River near Salsbury's station.
