

REPUBLICAN PRINCIPLES UPHELD.

Senator Perkins and Colonel Jackson on Living Issues.

A Splendid Meeting at the Metropolitan Theater—Eloquent, Argument and Wit.

The Metropolitan Theater was filled on Saturday night by citizens representing all shades of political faith—Republicans, Democrats and Populists—to hear United States Senator George C. Perkins discuss the issues of the campaign. Among those present were many ladies.

George Clark, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, called the assemblage to order and introduced Charles T. Jones as Chairman of the meeting. There were present on the stage the following named Vice-Presidents: J. C. Kimberley, J. F. Slater, George W. Raitton, E. C. Atkinson, J. O. Coleman, C. H. Hubbard, A. A. Van Voorhies, Daniel Flint, D. Johnston, Richard A. Brown, Mr. Lindner, S. J. Jackson, E. Walker, A. Conklin, F. A. Lauder, H. M. Barnett, Joseph Steffen, Robert Williamson, W. P. Coleman, Ed. E. Taylor, J. R. Olsen, Harry Soule, Ben. Welch, William Johnson, H. W. Brazg, Chris Green, C. J. Wilson, L. T. Haggard, Duvald Gillis, S. B. Smith, A. G. Folger, George W. Ficks and W. A. Anderson.

In his opening remarks Chairman Jones said that the Republican party had been the victor in the memorable campaign of 1870, when there were four parties in the field and George C. Perkins was the Republican standard-bearer. He hoped the result of the present campaign would be repeated in this one. Although not now a candidate for Governor, Mr. Perkins is a candidate for the office of United States Senator, which he now holds. He comes to us fresh from the National Senate, and would tell his hearers of the deliberations of Congress and the responsibility for the bad legislation, which had caused the prevailing depression throughout the country, where it belongs. Senator Perkins and Colonel Jackson had been engaged in the State, and they say that Republican success is assured.

He then introduced Senator Perkins, who was so rapidly received that it was some time before he was allowed to proceed with his speech.

When the cheering and applause had subsided, Senator Perkins said such a good reception showed that the people are in sympathy with Republican principles. For himself, he felt deeply touched by the kindness shown him. He recalled his three years' residence in the beautiful city of Sacramento, while Governor, as among the pleasantest of his life. Without disparagement to any other community, he could say that there is no city whose people are more hospitable, generous and public spirited than those of Sacramento. [Applause.]

This city, in population and in the second in commercial importance in the State, had triumphed over fires and floods and now stood at the commercial gateway to the great interior valleys, safe above any further danger from floods. She has a bright future. How could it be otherwise, situated as she is with the great agricultural valleys and mining counties to pay tribute to her commercial advantages? [Applause.]

Sacramento, aside from her great industries, is the largest hop-producing county in the Union. And, better than all else, she is, as the Federal census statistics of 1890 show, the second city in the country in population. She has no other successful competitor being Auburn, N. Y. With her churches, her schools, her art treasures, and her lovely homes—where could there be a pleasanter place in which to live? She has great rivers on either side flowing down from the Sierra to the sea, and which are to furnish the power that is to operate her factories, her street car system, and furnish light for the people. [Applause.]

They had met here, he said, to discuss the political issues of the day. On the 6th of November we will submit these issues to the decision of the ballot-box, and whatever the result all will cheerfully abide by it. We are striving for the public good. Each has a duty to perform, and cannot shirk the responsibility. So it is our duty to meet, with malice toward none, and charity toward all, to discuss the issues of the day. Two years ago a majority of the people decided in favor of a change in the Government, and the Democrats won a victory. So we must hold the Democrats responsible for any existing bad laws, as they have had the power not only to pass new laws but to repeal objectionable ones.

Some of the dearest personal friends he has are Democrats, and he did not wish to consider them individually, but when they join themselves together as a party they are subject to criticism.

Mr. Perkins then spoke of the industrial depression that fell upon the country just after the last Presidential election. Up to that time, he said, the people had been prosperous and happy—everyone had employment and the country was prosperous. So we must hold the Democrats responsible for any existing bad laws, as they have had the power not only to pass new laws but to repeal objectionable ones.

THE RESULT OF INTELLIGENT AMERICAN LABOR.

[Applause.] It is this labor that gives value to the iron ore in the earth and gives employment and good wages to American labor. [Applause.]

The Wilson Act, he said, is an outrage on America. Protection is a necessity everywhere. Why, the protection policy is practiced right here in Sacramento. The merchants of Washington could not cross the river and do business on this side without paying a license to Sacramento. And this is right. If this policy were not pursued Sacramento could not maintain her local government.

The Republican policy of paying a bounty on beet sugar had induced the investment of ten million dollars in machinery in California, and if it had not been repealed by the Democrats Sacramento County would have a sugar factory valued at $4,000,000 per day had been paid out in other parts of the State to farmers for their sugar beets, but now this has ceased.

The hour writing, he said, is on the wall, and the Democratic party is doomed to defeat at the coming election. [Applause.] President Cleveland and his administration were severely criticised for the making of the new treaty with China. This treaty permits Chinese to come to this country out of curiosity, "and you know," said Mr. Perkins, "the Chinese have always had a great deal of curiosity to come to California." [Laughter.]

The Republicans were opposed to the presence was degrading to American labor. [Applause.]

While this treaty was pending Democrats telegraphed their constituents in their Senators, telling them that if the treaty should be adopted every Pacific Coast State would be added to the Democracy. "And this," he said, "they called it about right." [Laughter.]

Senator Perkins then spoke of the Sacramento River, its importance to this great valley and the State, and said it was the duty of Congress to improve it and make it useful to navigation. [Applause.]

If Grover L. Johnson should be sent to Congress, as the speaker believed he would, the $100,000 appropriated at the last session would be doubled at the next session. [Applause.]

This is the fact that the Cleveland Congress was short of money and had run the Government $35,000,000 in debt, while under President Harrison's administration the necessary appropriations had been met and $250,000,000 of the Nation's debt canceled. [Applause.]

Mr. Johnson should be sent to Congress because he is bold and fearless in championing a cause, and as a Congressman he would be able to do much for his constituents. So also should the people of this county elect all the nominees on their ticket. [Applause.]

In conclusion Mr. Perkins declared himself in favor of the election of United States Senators by the people. He closed by appealing to all his hearers to vote for M. M. Esteo for Governor.

Chairman Jones called for three cheers for Senator Perkins, and the audience arose and cheered with a will.

Mr. Jones then urged all to work for the election of J. C. Kimberley, C. H. Bracie and J. E. Butler to the Assembly, as they are pledged to vote for George C. Perkins for United States Senator.

Remarks of Colonel Jackson. Colonel John P. Jackson was then introduced and was received with applause. He said he would be brief, as those present had been well entertained by Senator Perkins. He spoke in an emphatic, epigrammatic manner, and so crisp and pointed were his remarks that his hearers were kept constantly applauding.

Eloquently and forcibly Colonel Jackson compared the condition of the country under Republican rule with its condition to-day under Democratic rule. The situation was a contrast to every day. He likened the Democratic party in its present demoralized condition to a man who had jumped the fence, and he was impaled when he laid over, and could neither look before nor kick behind. [Laughter.]

CRAZY DRUNK.

A Young Man Named Davis on the Rampage in Yolo.

A young man named Davis was brought to the Receiving Hospital Saturday night quite badly beaten up and having several scalp wounds. He stated that he had been robbed across the river by three hobos, who took his gun away from him and beat him over the head with it.

Constable Frommit, who brought him over, tells a different story, however. He says the young fellow, who seemed to be crazy drunk, came into a saloon on the outskirts of Washington with his pistol in his hand, and, taking umbrage at something a man said to him, threatened to shoot the other. The man took the gun away from him and after talking out the cartridges returned it to him. Davis put another cartridge in and again threatened to shoot the man.

Frommit was sent for to arrest Davis, but the latter ran away and hid in a ditch, and when Frommit followed to arrest him he cocked his pistol and threatened to kill the constable. Frommit managed to get hold of him, but as he was powerful young man and the larger of the two, it became a struggle of life and death. A romantic assistance was made and he was badly beaten on the head by Davis. After a struggle of fifteen or twenty minutes, in which Frommit was obliged to retreat, Davis roughly, the latter was subdued and taken to the police station on this side of the river. It was hard to tell which was the bloodier of the two when they arrived—the officer or his prisoner.

This is the same youth who, according to a Sunday paper, had been beaten and robbed by Yolo footpads.

Forty-four years is a long time to wait for recognition. But that long Sacramento has waited to have a son named for a seat in Congress by one of the great parties who could be elected. The Republican party has now nominated a man for Congress who can be and will be elected from this county—namely, Grover L. Johnson.

ANOTHER ROBBERY. The Perpetrators Probably Caught by Constable Frommit of Yolo. Charles Deas was "stood up" on Saturday night on H street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth, by a negro and a white man and robbed of $4. Yesterday afternoon Constable Frommit of Washington, who was on the lookout for the men who tried to rob rancher Clifford on Friday night, saw a negro and a white man make an unsuccessful attempt to board a train at Fifth street, in Washington, and arrested them. As they answer closely the descriptions given by both Deas and Beas, it is thought they probably committed both robberies.

Weather report. The Weather Bureau reports show the highest and lowest temperatures yesterday to have been 70° and 48°, with light to gentle and variable winds and clear weather prevailing. Northerly winds prevailed during the morning and southerly during the afternoon and evening.

The barometric readings at 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. were 30.25 and 30.17 inches, respectively. The highest and lowest temperatures one year ago yesterday were 81° and 48°, and one year ago to-day 64° and 47°. The highest and lowest in this city last Saturday were 70° and 48°.

A light frost was reported on Saturday morning at Trask's Landing by Mr. Trask, the crop correspondent at that point.

The next Congress should be Republican. The way to attain that end is for all Republicans to stand together for Republican Congressional nominees and vote for their election untriflingly. Especially should this be done in this the Second District.

FUNERAL OF JOHN SHANNON. W. J. Kavanaugh returned from Folson yesterday, whither he went to conduct the funeral of the late John Shannon of that place. Deceased was a Justice of the Peace there, and—excepting a brief residence in this city, Folson and being his home for forty-five years. He leaves three sons and two daughters, all grown.

Rev. Father Hunt conducted the services, and the bearers were J. E. Burke, J. P. Cox, A. A. Borges, E. McCue and J. B. Harris.

Boys' Brigade Election. The election by the Boys' Brigade was finished yesterday at the Congregational Church; President, Dr. M. N. Hoyt of Chicago; Captain, W. C. McMeely; First Lieutenant, W. Tryon; Second Lieutenant, A. Hawk; First Sergeant, F. Osborn; Second Sergeant, Bruce Phillips; Third Sergeant, A. Adams; Corporals, Stevens, Himmel and Gollie.

Legislative experience, legal knowledge, worldly wisdom, common sense, intellectual ability is what we want in Congress—not for Grover L. Johnson and you secure all these qualities.

Only One Sheriff. Only Sheriff Cathart of Douglas County, Oregon, came down after C. J. Goodwin, alias Charles Owens, last week. Sheriff Patterson of Jacksonville simply telegraphed to Goodwin that he was making off with a stolen coat. The officer whipped out his gun and was about to shoot the thief when the storekeeper burst into tears and stopped him.
