

SCHOONER WRECKED.

The W. L. Beebe Goes Ashore South of the Cliff House.

HER CREW RESCUED BY THE LIFE- SAVING SERVICE.

The Two Men Who in 1893 Robbed Secretary Gibson of the Judson Iron Works of a Bag Containing $15,000

White En Route to the Works to Pay Off the Help, Captured in Mon- terey County.

Special to the RECORD-UNION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—The three-masted schooner William L. Beebe, built at Berkeley and eleven days out from Port Blakely, Wash., for San Francisco, was wrecked in attempting to make port this morning. The vessel is going to a point about three miles below the Cliff House. The nine members of her crew were rescued, after enduring trying hardships.

The schooner foundered in the heavy sea that was breaking on the bar when she attempted to pass in. A terrific wave broke over the vessel, carrying away her wheel and steering gear and her mizzen rigging, and flooding her cabin. She was soon swamped and swept back over the bar, only to drift toward and be thrown by the heavy seas upon the ocean beach.

It was just after daylight that she attempted to cross the bar. About 8 o'clock she struck, and began pounding in pieces in the breakers. Long before, however, her crew had been driven into the rigging, where, drenched to the skin, and but frozen by the chilling breeze, they hung on for their lives. Two of the poor fellows, who had been thrown violently against the deckboards and badly injured by the waves in which the schooner foundered, would have fallen and drowned but for the assistance of their mates.

Life-saving crews from Golden Gate Park and Ocean Side went to the rescue, but a long time elapsed before a life-line could be got through the seething surf, in which the sailors were momentarily threatened with death. A life-line was at last fired out to the shipwrecked vessel, and when it had been made fast to the forecastle the heavy work of getting the men ashore was begun. That was at 10 A. M., and it took just half an hour for the basket to travel back and forth and land the nine men on the beach. Captain Raynor was the last man to leave the vessel. Every one of the men in coming ashore were caught several times in the breakers, and completely exhausted. Four or five of the life-saving men would rush out into water clear up to their shoulders, and as soon as the man in the basket came within reach they would seize him and carry him, half drowned, to the dry land.

The nine shipwrecked men were in a pitiable condition when they got ashore. They had been hanging in the rigging for nearly three hours, and were almost dead from cold. Some of them had been unable to get out of the water, and the reach of the coming waves, and as the water dashed over them they several times were nearly washed out into the sea. Captain Raynor, who was absolutely helpless when taken out of the basket. He was carried to a buggy and hurriedly brought to the city. Soon, however, he regained the use of his limbs.

The other members of the crew were taken to the Ocean Side Life-saving Station and the Ocean Side Hotel, where they were given stimulants and made comfortable.

Captain Raynor states that it was upon the advice of a pilot when he spoke just after daylight, that he should not attempt to pass in. The bar, however, he attempted to pass in. The bar, however, was breaking heavily. Captain Raynor tonight said: "I am absolutely helpless when taken out of the basket. I felt as if I were carried away 10,000 feet of lumber on the schooner's deck."

Captain Raynor, who is in charge of the rescue of the crew and himself, says he is doubly thankful that his wife did not accompany him. She remained in the north. Had she accompanied him and in the cabin, as she most likely would at that hour in the morning, she would probably have been drowned, for the first sea not only struck the schooner, but filled it, and had anyone been in it they could not have escaped. The ship's dog, which was in the cabin, has not been seen since.

The loss on the vessel and her cargo is estimated at about $20,000. The schooner was valued at about $15,000. She was insured for $50,000, and the cargo for $100,000. A large quantity of lumber was washed ashore by 10 o'clock, and was strewn along the beach for 100 yards on either side of the vessel.

The W. L. Beebe was owned by Captain J. J. Smith, of the Golden Shore Market, in this city, and was built in Seattle in 1875 by Hall Bros.

BRANDER'S WHEAT DEAL.

Said to Have Cost the Nevada Bank Eleven Million Dollars.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—The man who spent eleven millions of other people's money, nearly wrecked a bank, and concluded a financial operation that startled the world, is now indicted for making false reports of the condition of an insurance company. George L. Brander conducted the great deal of 1887, using the money, the securities and the credit of the Nevada Bank, of which he was Cashier. He confessed his loot of the Pacific Express Company's box of $1,400,000 made public the statement of the bank, and the relation of other facts about the wheat deal and the manner in which a financial panic was averted.

Brander used more San Francisco money that did not belong to him without being charged with them than any other man who ever figured in the history of this State as a Napoleon of crime. The act for which he was indicted—that of swearing that 325 shares of stock of the State Investment and Insurance Company was $1,400,000 cash on hand—was compared with his grand operation in 1887.

The losses by the collapse of the State Investment and Insurance Company do not seem to be particularly venal, though some of them have been on their stock all these months since the institution would try in the hope that Brander would make good his promise to interest sufficient foreign capital to revive the corporation. Some one, however, has been charged for detecting Brander's fraud, Saturday until he had satisfied his superiors beyond question that he was not within the jurisdiction of a State court.

The inside history of the big wheat deal shows that Brander put the Nevada Bank in such a way that it stood to lose $17,000,000 on the deal. The day this state of affairs was discovered there was only about $300 left in the bank with which to continue business the next day. Brander, however, had a receiver appointed. The necessary papers were drawn up, when the California Bank

GUERNATORIAL CONTEST.

Initial Steps Taken by the Repub- lican State Committee.

SUPREME COURT ASKED TO ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE

Restraining the Election Commis- sioners of San Francisco From Coun- ting the Votes Cast for Governor in Certain Precincts in Which Irregu- larities Are Alleged—The Court De- clines to Issue the Order at the Present Time—The Matter to Come Up for Hearing on Thursday.

Special to the RECORD-UNION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—A political storm that has been gathering for many days broke here to-day, when P. B. Cornwall, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, went before the State Supreme Court and took the initial step in what is to be a contest for the election of James H. Budd, the Democratic candidate, as Governor of California. In San Francisco, owing to the incompetency of precinct election officers, and in many instances their corrupt methods, the returns of many of the precincts have not been properly certified to the Board of Election Commissioners, which is just completing its canvass of the returns. In several precincts the officers have not signed their returns, and refuse to do so. Twelve officers of one precinct, in which glaring frauds have been discovered, are now awaiting trial for refusing to certify to their returns.

It is claimed that if the vote of all these precincts in which there have been such irregularities is taken into account, 20,000 votes will be stricken from the returns. It was in San Francisco that Budd polled his big vote, and as his total plurality in the State is less than 1,200 it is plain that the throwing out of the returns from all these precincts will defeat Budd and seat Estee, the Republican candidate. The Republican state central committee has decided to attempt this very thing.

In pursuance of their plan, Chairman Cornwall this afternoon filed a petition with the Supreme Court for a writ of mandate upon the Registrar of Elections and Board of Election Commissioners, compelling them to appear and show cause why they should not throw out and refuse to count the vote of all precincts the returns from which show irregularities. The Supreme Court now has the petition under consideration.

Carlisle Appears Before the House Currency Committee.

PRESENTS IN DETAIL FEATURES OF HIS NEW PLAN.

The Nicaragua Canal Bill Taken Up and Discussed in the Senate—Judge McGeo of Amador County Said to Have Been Decided Upon By Attorney- General Olney for the Appoint- ment of United States Attorney for the Northern District of California.

Special to the RECORD-UNION.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Secretary Carlisle appeared before the House Committee on Banking and Currency to-day to present in detail the features of the new currency plan, proposed in his annual report and endorsed in the President's message. Beside the full membership of the committee, Senator Rogers, the Mexican Minister, and many members of Congress were present. Carlisle took up each section of his recommendations: First, to repeal all laws requiring or authorizing a deposit of United States bonds as security for circulation; second, to permit the national bank to issue notes to the amount of 75 per cent. of their paid-up and unimpaired capital, but to require each bank, before receiving the notes, to deposit a guarantee fund consisting of United States legal tender notes, including treasury notes of 1890, to the amount of 20 per cent. upon the circulation of the currency. "The proposed plan," said Carlisle, "gives ample protection without the deposit of bonds, as required by the present law." He added the practical value of the reserve fund currency was shown in 1894. There was a demand for money aggregating $40,000,000. The Treasury did its best to meet the stringency, but by the time the notes were ready to distribute the demand had gone by and many of the packages of notes were returned unpaid. The Secretary invited criticism on this particular section of the plan.

MISS GING'S SLAYER.

Blixt, the Confessed Murderer, a Pitiable Sight.

CONTINUALLY HAUNTED BY THE FACE OF HIS VICTIM.

Says Harry Hayward Made Use of Hypnotism to Compel Him to Com- mit This Crime and Other Crimes— A Threatening Crowd Assembles About the Courtroom where the Murderer Was Expected to be Ar- rested.

Special to the RECORD-UNION.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—Claus A. Blixt, the confessed murderer of Catherine Ging, was a pitiable sight to-day. Now that the secret of which he held has been told, he seems utterly shattered. The tears coursed down his cheeks in an unending procession. Every few minutes he sends for Chief of Police Smith, whom he regards as the only friend he has on earth, and breaks out into lamentations over his hard fate. All night long the nerve-shattered murderer was haunted with the fair face of his victim. His eyes had a wild look, and he was actually afraid to be alone in cell No. 13. "I want to tell my story and die," he said, continuously.

Jailer McKenna drew a chair up in front of his cell door about midnight, and remained with him during the entire night. The prisoner was very restless, and passed the major part of the night pacing up and down the cell. The authorities had some fear of his mind giving way, and Jailer McKenna was instructed to speak encouragingly to him and to keep him from doing anything as long as he made his confession. He says that he wants to die; that he has told all he knows. He asked that the Chief of Police should send him to the State Prison, where he has been, and that he is expected that he has the weight of another murder on his soul, which he is anxious to confess.

It is understood Blixt's wife in that village died very suddenly and mysteriously, and that the wretched man wants to tell another gruesome story about that tragedy is probable. He also says that his relatives in Cannon Falls do not want to see him, and when they arrive more revelations are expected. It is also stated that he was responsible for his wife's death—he has since married again—it may also turn out that Harry Hayward was a part of the plot to strengthen his power over his town.

Then the belief is growing that Harry Hayward made use of hypnotism to gain a few passes at his wife's life. He told the officers that Harry Hayward had controlled him with hypnotic power, as he told another gruesome story about that murderer shuddered when he made this statement, and appeared to stand in mortal terror of Harry even then. With gestures of the hands he indicated the way Harry used to hypnotize the girls. He said that whenever Harry told him to do anything and he refused he would receive a few passes at his wife's life, and the result was that he did whatever Harry told him. The time he fired the "bar" Harry, he said, threatened to kill him, and he was forced to do it. "He looked through me with those eyes, and I went and burned the barn without saying a word," said Blixt. "On the morning after the deed was done, I signed my name to the paper, and after that whenever he wanted me to do anything, I did it. He threatened to send me to the State Prison, and I was afraid to refuse him. It is known that Harry had a wonderful influence over the girls, and he did anything he told her to with implicit confidence. He often boasted to Andy that the girl would do exactly as he told her."

It was decided this morning that there would be no arraignment of Blixt in the Municipal Court, but that his case would be tried in the Superior Court. A large crowd had assembled before the Municipal Court on Second street. Much talk was indulged in, and their looks were, to say the least, not encouraging. Captain Henn was detailed to announce to the crowd that Blixt was not to be brought into the Municipal Court, and that they were to disperse from the building. He had little effect, as the crowd remained in front of the building and were augmented every few minutes.

The burning of every mind now is whether Harry will confess. He was not told of Blixt's confession until this morning, and reporters have all been refused access to him by the chief of police, W. E. Hale. The Sheriff went over to St. Paul and spent the night with him in jail. He has a way of getting a prisoner's confidence, and it is believed he will be able to get admissions from the arch-conspirator, if anyone does.

This morning W. E. Hale, attorney for Andy, was admitted to the jail at St. Paul to see Harry Hayward. With the exception of Sheriff Ege and Mr. Hale no one has been admitted to see Harry since Sunday. Yesterday afternoon the Sheriff and a large number of men were in the building where Blixt was confined. This morning he was given the papers containing the story of Blixt's confession. After reading them he said the whole thing was a fake concocted by the chief of police. He said he himself might have something to say soon which would show things in a new light.

The burning of the elevator at Hamell, in this county, on which Miss Ging had a mortgage, is now ascribed to Harry Hayward. It is known that he was very anxious for her to realize on her loan of $1,200 at once, and that she made the effort through her financial agents, but was unsuccessful. Just at this juncture the elevator burned, and the insurance money was paid to the mortgagee. The owner, Julius Jensen, said that the fire was beyond question incendiary. Blixt has the mysterious stranger, who is supposed to claim to know nothing about it.

An effort has been made to connect Hayward with the mysterious murder of Louisa Olson at about some months ago. The case is not unlike the Ging case, but there is as yet no evidence that Hayward had anything to do with A. A. Austin, the mysterious stranger, who is supposed to have murdered the girl, and for whom the police are still searching.
