

DEATH OF AN EMINENT PRELATE.

Close of the Career of Bishop Patrick Manogue.

After a Lingering Illness—Sketch of His Life and Religious Work—The Funeral Next Tuesday.

After a lingering illness, Bishop Patrick Manogue of the Sacramento Diocese of the Catholic Church passed away at an early hour yesterday morning. His death had been almost hourly anticipated some weeks past, though he was conscious to the last, and shortly before he died he gave instructions to Father Grace and the other clerical members of his household regarding affairs of the diocese.

Rev. Father Grace had been unremitting in his attendance upon the Bishop, and was one of those present at the bedside of the dying prelate. The others were Vicar-General Lynch, Fathers Hunt, Klyne and Walsh, Miss Mary Foley, the Bishop's niece, and Miss Kelly of Napa.

It had been hoped that the beautiful chime of bells which Bishop Manogue requested in his last moments, would be in position to ring out the "Angels" before his death occurred, but this hope was not realized. The bells are nearly ready, however, and will probably be heard for the first time on Tuesday next, the day of the Bishop's funeral.

The death of Bishop Manogue was not announced at the Ash Wednesday services yesterday morning, as Rev. Father Grace, who officiated, was deeply affected over the sad scene in the death-chamber which he had just left to perform his duty at the altar, to trust himself in an attempt to break the news to his congregation. It was, however, known to many of those who knelt and prayed in the early morning hours in the handsome Cathedral which their beloved Bishop erected here soon after taking up his residence in this city.

Bishop Manogue leaves two married sisters, who reside in Contra Costa County, both of whom are well advanced in years. The husband of one died there a week ago.

Ever since his coming to this city Bishop Manogue had enjoyed the respect of everyone, irrespective of religious belief, and to those to whom he was personally known he had endeared himself by his manliness, his piety, his charity, and his liberality. Though resolute and unflinching in matters of faith, he was always moderate and temperate in the feelings of those who were not of his belief. He had encountered the rough edges of adversity in his youth, and by his long association with men in the humbler walks of life he had imbibed a degree of charity for the failings and weaknesses of human nature that many otherwise good men have never experienced.

Bishop Manogue possessed in a high degree the attributes of a Christian leader. He had a nature as tender as that of a woman, a heart that beat with love for all of God's children, a meek and humble spirit, combined with strength and determination in all things which he deemed necessary for the spiritual welfare of those intrusted to his charge.

Though he had spared no necessary expense in the erection and embellishment of the handsome Cathedral that stands as a monument to his name, his last years were lived almost as plainly and unostentatiously as those of a laborer while laboring as a common miner. His apartments at the episcopal residence adjoining the Cathedral were plainly but honorably furnished, and he was abstemious and self-denying in all things. His chief happiness seemed to come in his daily works of charity—in relieving distress and contributing to enterprises calculated to help humanity.

In anticipation of the Bishop's death steps had already been taken to prepare for his funeral, which will be a very imposing affair. It is expected that Archbishop Riordan of San Francisco will officiate, and that prominent Catholic clergymen from various parts of the State will be here to participate in the ceremony. The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock a. m., and the interment will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

What Ex-Sheriff O'Neil is Said to Have Sworn to

As a Witness at the Trial of the Railroad Strikers—News for the Sacramento Public.

The San Francisco Report of last evening publishes the following alleged report of what ex-Sheriff O'Neil of this county testified to at the trial of the railroad strikers in the Federal Court in San Francisco yesterday. There are probably 10,000 persons in the city who are familiar with the facts in the case, and they would read what the ex-Sheriff is reported to have testified to.

"The defense in the strikers' trial before Judge Morrow this morning put Sheriff O'Neil of Sacramento on the stand. He testified that he was called to the prosecution by city officials of Sacramento and San Jose last week. His testimony was very strong and direct and he was not asked to testify in Sacramento last July. He testified that during the strike the strikers were good-natured up to the time Marshal Baldwin arrived. The strikers clearing the depot after the control, but interfered with the men at work."

"He had received a number of communications from the railroad people about suppressing the strikers and had interviewed Superintendent Wright. He several times asked Superintendent Wright to get up a train, and promised to see that it would go out; but the company wanted him to ask for the militia. This he refused to do, as he felt able to control the strikers. The company refused to give him an opportunity to see whether he could take their trains out."

"O'Neil testified that there was no trouble arising from the depot after the Marshal arrived, and there would, in his opinion, have been no trouble on the 4th of July had the militia gone about it in the right way. The crowd which entered at the eastern end of the depot, the crowd was unorganized and seemed to have no leader. There was no trouble until the 4th of July."

"Then an attempt was made to move a train under the protection of the Marshal. O'Neil was standing close to the engine, the cab of which was crowded with men ranging into a semaphore on its way to the depot. "It was alleged by the prosecution that the semaphore had been raised by some of the strikers just as the train approached it, and that it crashed into the cab window before the engine could be stopped. O'Neil said that he never saw the semaphore raised, and that it was not coupled to the cars because no proper effort to couple it was made. The Sheriff said he had not been called to clear the depot, but that he had done so. The crowd was composed largely of business men, mechanics and people from up town, with many women. The strikers had never interfered with the witness in the performance of his duties. He saw no intimidation of the town, and no condition that justified the interference of the militia on the 24th or 30th."
