

SHERIFF BOGARD'S SLAYER AT BAY.

Jack Brady Found in Shasta County.

Shots Exchanged With Him—He Cannot Escape—A Yolo Suspect in Los Angeles.

The train-robbers who operated in this part of the State some months ago and escaped arrest, appear to have got into a bad row of stumps just now.

In our telegraphic columns this morning appears a dispatch from Redding, Shasta County, announcing that Jack Brady, the bandit who shot and killed Sheriff Bogard when the latter laid low Brady's pal, Sam McGuire, in the Reed Station hold-up on the last day of March, had been found near there and was surrounded in some brush. The officers exchanged shots with him, and he is known to be wounded and quite certain of capture.

And now comes the news from Los Angeles that a man under arrest there is believed to be one of the pair who held up the overland train in Yolo County last December and got away with some $50,000 from Wells, Fargo & Co. The Los Angeles dispatch reads:

"Los Angeles, June 19.—It is believed in the Sheriff's office that Billy Morrison, who was arrested a few days ago for having robbed a saloonkeeper, is one of the parties who robbed a Southern Pacific train near Sacramento last December of a sum supposed to be in the neighborhood of $50,000. It is said that Morrison answers the description of one of the train robbers to a nicety."

Large rewards have been offered in both cases for the arrest and conviction of the robbers, and it is to be hoped that the Los Angeles suspect may turn out to be one of them.

In the case of Brady there appears to be no doubt as to his identity. It is said that for a long time he has been hiding in an abandoned mining tunnel at Blue Tent, Nevada County, a noted rendezvous and harbor of refuge for desperadoes in past years. Recently he has been working on a ranch in Shasta County, and word has been received that some of his fellow-laborers discovered his identity and informed the officers of his whereabouts.

The officers expect to capture him at almost any moment, though he will no doubt fight to the last and may not be taken alive.

SANDT, ALIAS "SHY RED."

The examination of Sandt will be resumed this afternoon in Justice Henry's court.

VOICE OF THE PRESS.

Expressions from Newspapers of Interior California.

(Oakland Times.)

In the early days of '49 and '50 Folsom was one of the richest mining sections in the State. It is now renowned its old title to rich deposits of the yellow metal. Prospecting parties have been searching for new deposits of auriferous gravel, and with success. Within two miles of Folsom the richest deposits ever developed have been lately found. One mine is turning out $4,000 per month. Over $200,000 in dust have passed through the hands of one Folsom buyer the past month. California will settle the gold question.

WASTED WEALTH.

(Orville Register.)

All power is wealth, from the winds that blow across our great valleys to the streams that dash down from the Sierras, for they may in a measure be converted into gold.

The Feather at our doors sends down from the mountains a vast flood of water that rolls unheeded to the ocean. It neither lights a lamp nor drives a machine and is in this sense wasted wealth. From 6,000 to 10,000 horse power is idle, useless and disregarded. This stream should light and heat our town by electricity. It ought to run mills and factories and manufacturing would enrich every business man in Orville. We sit here doing nothing to harness this mighty giant and make it obedient to our will. If energetic efforts were put forth Orville would be sought as a manufacturing town.

ALL THE WAY FROM SAN RAFAEL.

How a Stolen Bicycle Found Its Way Hither.

Arrest of Harry Guth, a Young Man in Whose Possession It Was Found.

A young man named Harry Guth, alias Harry Cline, who hails from Mountain View, Santa Clara County, was arrested by Officer Rutherford last night on a charge of having stolen a bicycle from Hotchkiss & Co. of San Rafael.

Guth took the bicycle into Andrews & Co.'s bicycle establishment in this city the other day to have it repaired. He said he left his tool-bag at Stockton, and asked for a loan of a small sum to defray the expense of sending to Stockton to get the bag. He was accommodated, Andrews giving him $1.50. He wanted more money, but Andrews told him that he was not in the pawn-brokerage business.

Last Sunday evening Guth sent a friend to Andrews to get the bicycle, but the latter refused to give it up until the money advanced to Guth was returned.

However, Guth managed to get the machine from Andrews, and after having done so took it to Zeunsky's pawnshop, where he received a sum of money on it. While the bicycle was at Andrews' place the latter noted its style and make. He sent word to E. Mohrig of San Francisco, the coast agent for that particular kind of bicycle, and Mohrig sent back word that it was stolen from Hotchkiss & Co. in San Rafael.

Andrews then called the police here, which resulted in Guth's arrest last night by Officer Rutherford.

Officer Louis Hughes of San Rafael arrived in this city last night and had a conversation with Guth at the police station. He said that Guth confessed to having stolen the bicycle. Hughes will take Guth to San Rafael to-day.

HE KNEW. In Texas the Penalty for Stealing a Horse is severe.

A man had been arrested in Tennessee for horse-stealing and he was having an examining trial. The prosecuting attorney was attempting to work on the prisoner's feelings as the testimony was not very reliable.

"Of course," he said, "you didn't steal the horse?"

"No, sir; I didn't."

"Do you know what they do with a man in Texas who steals a horse?" inquired the attorney.

The prisoner jumped to his feet and gazed around in great agitation.

"Good Lord, mister," he exclaimed, "this ain't Texas, is it?"—Detroit Free Press.

"Crocodile tears" are alluded to by several Latin and Greek authors, it being a supposed custom of the crocodile, after killing a man, to eat all his body but his head, and shed tears over that before eating it also.
