

THE ATLANTA EXPOSITION.

California Will Be Properly Represented There.

The State Board of Trade Exhibit to be Enlarged and Shipped to the Cotton Exposition.

A special meeting of the State Board of Trade was held yesterday for the purpose of concluding arrangements for the proposed exhibit of the products of California under the auspices of the board at the Atlanta Cotton Exposition.

The Chairman of the Committee on Industrial Resources of the State Board of Trade should be instructed to prepare a compendium of reports heretofore presented to the board on the subject of the industrial resources, to be printed for distribution.

The Chairman of the Committee on Immigration should be instructed to prepare a special report for distribution at Atlanta.

The Boards of Supervisors of the various counties should furnish data showing lands desirable and available for colonization purposes in their counties.

All persons having for sale lands in California will be permitted to circulate their illustrated and other literature, and the board will circulate such literature from the distribution counter in the exhibition at Atlanta, with the direct understanding that the parties whose names are signed are held responsible for statements therein.

The Horticultural Board and the Board of Agriculture should be invited to cooperate.

The Mechanics' Institute and Manufacturers' Association of San Francisco should be invited to assist.

It should be resolved that, if the finances warrant, a department will be established for exhibiting in a suitable manner the dried fruits of California, for the purpose of furnishing free samples.

Fruit dealers and wine dealers will be permitted to use the exhibit for the sale of their products, so far as the general rules of the exposition will permit.

J. A. FILLICHER'S IDEAS. "The exhibit now in place at the State Board of Trade, in point of variety and quality, is equal to any exhibit ever made by California," said J. A. Fillicher, after the meeting.

"Only in the matter of quantity it less than that made by our State at the Columbian Exposition or at the Midwinter Fair.

"We are now engaged in refilling the jars with fresh fruit, and we anticipate that as soon as it is known by the people of California that this exhibit is going to Atlanta, which fact was determined at the meeting of the board to-day, there will be an interest taken in the subject all over the State, and people from every section will be sending us orders of new and special products to swell out the display from their respective sections, and by the time we are fully installed at Atlanta we will have an exhibit that will do full justice to California and rank with the very best display from other States.

"It is the rarest opportunity that California has ever had to make a good showing for itself at an important exposition for a small amount of money, and we therefore expect with confidence that every company in California will do its share toward the accomplishment of the grand object."—San Francisco Examiner, July 31st.

showing the extent to which California is supplied with railroads. The Southern Pacific Company, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and the San Joaquin Valley Railroad should make a display.

The Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco should furnish literature and a map showing the commercial relation of San Francisco and means of communication with the world. The Chamber of Commerce should also furnish a map showing the commercial advantages of the construction of the Nicaragua Canal, and the relation of the same to California, to the shortest practicable sailing route between the western terminus of the Nicaragua Canal and the Asiatic ports.

OUR FRUIT SHIPMENTS TO LONDON. Valuable Hints to Growers in California.

Practical Information Furnished by Consul Lathrop at Bristol, in England.

The following information relative to the kinds of fruit that are most in demand in London is furnished by the Agricultural Department at Washington through Consul Lorin A. Lathrop, stationed at Bristol, Eng. It will be found of much value just now in view of the regular shipments of California fruit to London:

English hothouse peaches begin to appear in the market in April, when they sell for 15 to 20 cents apiece. They continue right through until August, when outdoor peaches appear in September and October. These outdoor peaches sell for 5 to 25 cents each. Both the hothouse and outdoor English peaches are large, luscious and highly attractive appearance. They find their way to the consumer by direct sale from the grower to the retail buyer, and they reach final hands in beautiful condition.

In June, July and August, what are known in the trade as "fine melting" peaches come to England from France and Spain. They are shipped to commission agents at Covent Garden market, and are sold by auction on arrival, the price ranging from 12 to 30 cents per dozen. Their arrival constitutes what is known in trade as "the cheap season," which extends through July and August. They are not in such quantities as really fine peaches never to be had in England for less than 8 cents.

These Continental peaches reach the market in fine condition, and are packed with the utmost care in boxes containing from forty to fifty, and they bring from $2 to $5 per box according to quality and condition. The average price runs about $2.50. They have the advantage of reaching a market entirely clear of similar fruits, and this advantage is to be seen in the price they bring.

Peaches can be successfully supplied to the English market from the Cape, there is of course no reason why we can't do the same. The fruit is raised in the United States. We should not have the advantage of a winter market nor of winter prices, and we should have to meet English-grown and Continental fruit on an equal footing in every condition will always fetch a good price.

The first essential toward getting our fruit in prime condition to England is the condition of the peach when pulled. If a peach is picked when it is not color after pulling, it must be colored before picking; and it must also be fully developed. Color, development, hardness—these are the three things necessary.

The second essential is the sort of peach. It is important to note that dainties never bring the same prices in England as the freestone. Under ordinary circumstances a shipment of clings from our country to England would entail disappointment, and they should not be sent.

The third essential is the packing. The method above described cannot be surpassed, but it might entail an expense without insuring results better than might be obtained by the use of the card paper pigeon-holes. If this card paper is used, the fruit should have a double wrapping of paper, and should be so placed that it cannot move in any direction. It is desirable that there should be but one layer to a box. Those from the United States should be packed in this method is regarded with some distrust by experts at Covent Garden. Each box might contain a dozen, and then six boxes should be tied together for convenience of handling. The fruit may have "gone wrong" if there were only two tiers. These peaches may be picked quite green, but they should be developed.

Shipments should be made direct to the commission merchant at Covent Garden; but without previously sending him an English reference, or otherwise protecting him, he would not pay freight upon consignments from an unknown source. The fruit may have "gone wrong" if there were only two tiers. These peaches may be picked quite green, but they should be developed.

The auction market is open every day except Sundays and holidays, but sales of fruit are made on Saturdays. Buyers bring unsatisfactory prices as compared with other days.

CHILDREN'S DAY HOME. What It Has Accomplished, and May Yet Accomplish.

There was a meeting of the lady managers of the Children's Day Home on Tuesday, and the Secretary has submitted for publication the following report thereof:

The Secretary's report for the months of June and July was read, and showed that a most excellent work is being done here under the auspices of the Sacramento W. C. T. U.

Caring for the little ones of mothers who are struggling to gain a livelihood is a work deserving the sympathy and cooperation of all good citizens, which we are glad to inform the public has been received by us, and for which we heartily express our sincere gratitude and thanks.

Through the generous assistance of many the Children's Day Home was opened for the first time in the summer of 1892, suspended during winters, and also last summer on account of the strike, leaving the generous gift of the ladies of the kindergarten, as well as help from lumber firms in fitting up the dining-room, the reopening of the home last May was possible.

It is very cheering to find such willing helpers in this good work, and we are encouraged to go on.

I think we can all admit that no $139
