

CONCERNING THE ASSESSOR'S MAPS.

Surveyor Boyd Would Like to Prepare Them,

Mr. Berkey said he would not hold the board responsible or rather he would relieve it of all responsibility in the matter if the making of maps were left to him.

But Assessor Berkey Declares It to be His Privilege—The Law on the Subject.

County Assessor Berkey appeared before the Board of Supervisors yesterday in support of his claim that the making of assessment maps belongs to his office. Some time ago the board directed County Surveyor Boyd to prepare the maps, but on Mr. Berkey's objection thereto the order was rescinded pending further investigation as to the law on the subject.

District Attorney Ryan was present yesterday at the request of the board, and said he found a provision in the County Government Act and also in the Code, which affect the question.

The Metropolitan Theater and Clunie Opera-House. Messrs. Samuel Ginsberg and J. H. Todd have leased the new Metropolitan Theater and the Clunie Opera-house for a term of five years, from December 1st. The business will be conducted under the sole management of J. H. Todd, as lessee and manager.

LEASED BOTH THEATERS

The Metropolitan Theater and Clunie Opera-House. Messrs. Samuel Ginsberg and J. H. Todd have leased the new Metropolitan Theater and the Clunie Opera-house for a term of five years, from December 1st.

Mr. Ryan said it seemed to him as if, under the laws of 1893 and 1895, the former maps are the duty of the Surveyor to prepare the maps, while the latter requires the Supervisors to furnish maps to the Assessor.

Chairman Morrison said the board was willing to provide the maps, but had no desire to take from the Assessor that prerogative which had always been attached to his office.

Apparently, remarked Mr. Ryan, "the County Surveyors got in their work on the County Government Act."

Continuing, Mr. Berkey said the making of maps and indexes were perquisites of the Assessor's office. As the salary of the office is small, some years ago some Assessor got a provision into the law requiring the Supervisors to have the maps made, so that Assessors could be paid extra for the work.

Mr. Berkey went on to argue that the Surveyor's maps would not be made from actual surveys, and would be no more perfect than those made by the Assessor. The descriptions of land given in a property-owner's statement are better evidence of the boundaries of a tract of land than the map-lines drawn by the Surveyor.

Mr. Berkey said that the Assessor should not be paid for this work, all well and good, the map will be made just the same. Why, then, put the county to the expense of several thousand dollars for a Surveyor's map that would be utterly useless?

In conclusion, Mr. Berkey asked the board to defer action in the matter until the case now before the Supreme Court shall be determined. In the meantime he would see that the assessment roll will be completed within the proper time and that it will be correct.

Chairman Morrison said the law required the board to furnish the Assessor with the necessary maps, and the object in asking him if he needed maps was to place the board in the position of having observed the law. The Assessor might come in when too late and ask for maps, and if the board had not made the offer it would be placed in a bad light.

District Attorney Ryan said Mr. Berkey's offer was a fair one, and under it the board would not be placed in the position of having refused to provide him with the maps, should any difficulty arise in the future.

There was no motion before the board, and the matter was allowed to remain as it was.

Subsequently a Record-Union reporter met Secretary Cogan of the State Board of Equalization, who explained the question before the Supervisors and asked him what was the position taken by the State board in regard to this matter.

Mr. Cogan replied that the Attorney-General had given it as his opinion that what are known as "assessment maps" are not required to be made by County Supervisors, and the State Board of Equalization regarded that as correct.

"The class of maps which it is contemplated shall be made by County Supervisors," said Mr. Cogan, "are regular county maps, not the book-plate diagrams used in the assessor's office to show what lands had been assessed."

"If no demand for maps is made on the Supervisors by the Assessor," he added, "I am sure the State Board of Equalization will not advise the Supervisors have evaded their duty."
