WHAT IS PUBLIC MONEY EXPENDED FOR?

While prices have been steadily going down along nearly all lines except those of rentals, California has not kept pace with changing conditions by sufficiently lowering taxation that represents outgo for State expenses.

Wages quite generally have been declining until we have approached very nearly to the Eastern level. But the California wage earner finds his tax rate as heavy as before.

Employment is not more frequently or advantageously offering, but the demand upon the employed for the support of the city, county and State governments has not much lessened.

Nearly all the agricultural staples have declined in price, and the producer receives very considerably less now for the same output of labor and investment of capital, but the call upon him for support of the several governments under which he lives, maintains its high level.

Under such conditions it will be evident to the most superficial observer and thinker that there must be a change along the whole line of official salaries and a readjustment more in accordance with the ability of the taxpayers to respond and which will better equalize salaries between officials.

It is the purpose of the Record-Union to thoroughly exploit this whole subject, with a view of ascertaining where salaries are too high, were too low and where there is manifest injustice in their grading, and where State expenditure in other directions can be curtailed. We have every reason to believe that the result of this examination will show as to salaries, for instance, that those of many grades of officials can be judiciously scaled down and adjusted to the new plane to which nearly all other income is falling.

This must come about, no one can doubt who gives the subject consideration and calm study.

Not only is there too high a rate paid generally, but there is manifest inequality in salary schedules that often amounts to rank injustice. Thus the State is entitled to the very best order of legal ability and experience in its chief law officer. That cannot be commanded unless the State pays for it something near what such a lawyer can make in private practice.

In this instance, the cheapest is absolutely the nearest. Yet the Attorney-General of California receives no higher salary than a score of officials serving the State whose places could be filled by equally as competent and faithful servants at a much lower salary rate.

The Attorney-General of California receives $3,000 a year, but the Private Secretary of the Governor receives $4,000, the Adjutant-General $3,000, and the assistant in the State Library within $400 as much as the chief law officer of California. The Commissioner of Labor Statistics is salaried as is the Attorney-General, while the Debris Commissioner actually receives $600 more than the law officer of the State.

These are but samples of inequalities which will assuredly be adjusted, and the adjustment must be along the line of reductions, but always with the necessity for securing competency kept in clear view.

For the two years ending June 30, 1897, State expenditures will have been $483,571 less than in the two years ending June 30, 1895, and it is safe to say that in the two years thereafter there can be a saving made of double that amount. From what direction these economies are to come, is the matter to which this journal will give deliberate and systematic attention.

In the matter of county and city salaries and expenditures for service the same conditions prevail, and the same economies must be carried out, for that we are to lower the general level of salary payments for official services may be taken for granted. It is simply as impossible for the people of this State to go on decreasing income and maintaining high rates of taxation as it is for us to continue the injustice of inequalities between salaries.

For instance, some better reason must be shown than legislative enactment why the Superintendent of Schools of Alameda should be salaried at $4,500, while the Superintendent of Schools of Los Angeles, with 7,000 more population in the county, should receive $1,500 less salary, and the Superintendent of Schools in Nevada County, with $4,000 population in the county less than in Alameda, should receive within one-third the same salary as paid the like official in the latter county.

However it is not the purpose to enter the exact character of adjustments which must be brought about. Our inquiry will, however, be addressed to every detail involved, and to determining where the public money goes, for what service and to extent reductions must be made in order to place the office-holder and the taxpayer more nearly upon an equality; it will not be confined to inquiry into salary lists, but will extend to all State expenditure.

"READINESS MEANS VICTORY." According to Secretary Herbert we need more naval vessels, especially battle ships and torpedo boats. The lesson of the battles of Yalu River and Wei-Hai-Wei, he warns the nation, are too full of suggestiveness for us to close our eyes to the needs of the navy.

Of cruisers and gunboats we have enough, but in the more effective torpedo boat service we are lamentably deficient, says the Secretary. Torpedo boats can now be built very much more cheaply than ever before.

That the Secretary is right in his advice to Congress to arrange for the construction of more naval vessels of the order indicated, the American people will agree. They are not fearful of any involvement with other nations that might lead up to war, but public opinion has undergone a radical change in the last twenty years regarding the economic value of a strong navy. Such an arm not only serves to protect our sea coasts in time of war, but it gives character to the American nation abroad, and thereby insures greatly more the protection of our people in foreign lands, and inspires for us greater respect from other powers.

On one other subject the Secretary is equally emphatic and urgent, namely, the necessity for promoting a naval reserve corps. "What would we do for men for our ships in the emergency of war?" he asks. "All the enlisted men now allowed by the law are enrolled and in service upon our ships." We need a trained force of reserves, who could be called upon at an hour's notice, for, adds the Secretary, "in case of a naval war, all other things being equal, readiness means victory." Here we have a magnificent squadron of armed ships, but not men enough to man them all, nor has the department authority to accept the services of a single volunteer.

He denounces it as the height of folly to pay subventions to swift ships and call them our auxiliary navy, unless we have the means of arming and manning them. Unless we arrange to equip these ships with trained men when the need comes, it is folly to pay out money for arms for them, and for rental or subsidy of their bottoms as we are now doing.

We think that from this reasoning of the Secretary there is no possible defensible dissent to be made. Either cut off the auxiliary navy, the mail steamers which we now have the right to call into service on ten hours' notice, or else let us train men to be called to their decks when we shall need them. The Secretary charges, and probably no one will venture to contradict him, that there is no nation having so much of the material of war that is so little prepared to utilize it; that has so much of the personnel available, and is so utterly without authority of law to employ it. He asks for authority to enlist a thousand men for the navy, and that authority be given to the President in case of emergency to take into service the naval militia to the extent necessary to outfit all the ships called into service. The Secretary is right and his recommendation should be followed by Congress.

THE PRESIDENT SUSTAINED. The United States Senate yesterday passed the House bill authorizing the President to appoint a commission to ascertain the facts in regard to the boundary between Venezuela and British Guiana, and appropriating $100,000 for the expenses thereof. The vote in favor of the bill in the Senate was unanimous, as it was in the House, showing that all of the representatives of the people of the United States approve the position President Cleveland has taken in regard to the Monroe doctrine. This is as it should be. The President should appoint the commission at once, and it ought to enter upon its duties without delay.

Comments upon the President's message by the English papers indicate that they at first believed it was a political trick. Since all parties in Congress unhesitatingly indorse the action of the President, they will now be able to see that he spoke the sentiments of the entire American people. The brief debates upon the bill in both houses made it evident that while this country would regret a war with England it will at the same time maintain its honor even if war should result.

THE PETALUMA ARGUS says the criticism of Judge Dougherty's Sonoma County funds-bank-deposit question by the Record-Union is severe. It admits, however, that when the Record-Union says that the decision of that jurist plays into the hands of those who wish to do private banking business upon the basis of use of the taxpayers' money, it states the exact truth. But says our Sonoma contemporary: "While that is true, it is also true that the decision is 'precisely and exactly' in accordance with the law. If the law is wrong it is the fault of the Legislature, and not of the Judge. The Supreme Court can upset the law at will—Judge Dougherty cannot."

Indeed! Then the Supreme Court is charged in advance with willful disregard of the law! Dougherty of Sonoma is right, and the seven Justices of the Supreme Court will be wrong. Is this a case of eleven stubborn jurors again? But the Supreme Court has not yet passed upon the issue. The Attorney-General has, however, and so have the Bank Commissioners, and so have the people of the State.

The promptness with which the House passed a bill justifying the President to the extent of a $100,000 expenditure for the expenses of a Venezuelan inquiry commission meets with the approval of the entire nation, and sufficiently testifies to the temper of the popular branch of the National Legislature. The bill passed unanimously.

The Santa Cruz Surf says that the Record-Union has ever taken the firm and manly and common-sense ground on the woman suffrage question. The Surf understands the Record-Union, while the woman suffragists will not. We oppose woman suffrage for the sake of woman, not in opposition to her.

In the last five months, say the commercial journals, France has bought of us $6,000,000 less of goods than in the preceding five months, and has sold us $12,000,000 more. This is a balance on the wrong side, and contains a suggestion concerning export trade that statesmen should consider.

It is very gratifying to notice how, with the uprising of this Venezuela excitement, with the threat of war upon its forefront, blind partisanship hides its diminished head, and broad and patriotic Americanism takes the place of narrowness and jealousy.

NOTE AND COMMENT. There is a little boundary dispute between the Dominion authorities and the United States up in Alaska that just now will grow to a size somewhat larger than a man's hand. The English have been fortifying and patrolling on disputed territory in that section at the same time that surveying parties of both nations have been out locating boundary lines. Is not that indicative of English policy the world round—to get possession and then diplomatize?

It would be a very graceful act on the part of the President, and recognition of the non-partisan character of the approval of his position on the Venezuela question, for him to appoint ex-President Harrison as a member of the commission of inquiry.

The Oakland Times, in honor of the opening of the Oakland Home Exposition, has issued a special edition of extra pages profusely illustrated with views in and about Oakland. The text is extemporaneous of the industries and the business of the city. It is a very creditable issue, and is one that the Times proprietors may justly take pride in.

The Instructor in International Law at Harvard College says that the Monroe doctrine, as enunciated by the President in his message, is not international law, but that it is just. That is all right; we will make it international law; that is, when we get through, it will be written into the code so far as all the world is concerned.

Queer government we have in this devoted city of Sacramento. It was testified before the Trustees on Wednesday night that nearly $1,200 worth more of material was placed upon the Tenth-street macadam roadway than was called for by the specifications. The official testifying was then asked: "Will the property-owners have to pay for that?" and the response was "Of course." The explanation was made that actual work always exceeds estimates somewhat. But what of that, if the specifications call for work of a certain order and for a certain amount of material, the contractor has no warrant for doing any other than that work, no matter whether a good street is made or not; it is no concern of his. Let him wear to the line and his withers will be unwrung. Suppose the contractor had been instructed by the officials to put on $10,000 worth of material in excess of the calls of the specifications, would the property-owners, who must foot the bill for the street improvement, be expected to punge to that extent? Yet between the $1,200 and the $10,000 cases there is no difference whatever. Let the rule of the Trustees be this, no matter what the consequences: "The specifications shall be followed to the letter."

Read what the people say, not in New York or Chicago, but right here at home, speaking from a practical experience. Mrs. Ella Ross, 708 Q street, says: "My little girl, aged four years, had discharges from the ears for nine years; tried several doctors and patent medicines with no effect. I was unable to get her any relief. I was recommended to use Chaul-Moo-Gra—the discharge has entirely stopped, and to all appearances she is completely cured."

"I have been afflicted for several years with stomach and liver troubles. I have been treated by several doctors, and have used all kinds of medicine, but have not been able to get any relief. Mrs. E. A. Smith, 2315 Twenty-first street, says: "I can highly recommend your Chaul-Moo-Gra. My husband and son had been feeling very bad for years, had taken medicine which never gave them any relief. My daughter also had serious nerve, stomach and other troubles. Chaul-Moo-Gra helped them, and I thank you gentlemen a thousand times for bringing that blessed Chaul-Moo-Gra to our city."

Walter, 1500 J street, says: "I have used Chaul-Moo-Gra for constipation, and as a blood purifier, and feel it the best medicine I have ever used. I had previously used Joy's Sarsaparilla and other remedies, and unsatisfactorily. I feel like a different man, and would recommend it to all who are similarly afflicted. I have taken Chaul-Moo-Gra for my friends, and I feel like a different man, and would recommend it to all who are similarly afflicted."

Mrs. Annie Foster, Forestburg, writes: "I had been suffering with a trouble which the doctors termed malaria, yet they afforded me no relief.
