

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The "Century" for January (New York), following upon two special numbers—the twenty-fifth anniversary and the Christmas numbers—is not lacking either in individuality or distinction.

There is plenty of holiday cheer in the January number of "St. Nicholas" (New York). Pictures, poems, sketches, and stories are appropriate to the season.

The first edition of the January "McClure's Magazine" (New York) has the remarkable story of Lincoln as the manager of Denton Offutt's sawmill and country store at New Salem, the victorious wrestler against the champion of Clary's Grove, the student between whites, of Kirkham's Grammar, a candidate for the "Great Eastern" and a captain of raw recruits in the Black Hawk war.

Three important leading articles of very timely interest are presented in the January number of "The Engineering Magazine" (New York). The first is entitled, "Representative Money and Gold Exports," by Horace White.

derground Railways," ten illustrations, by Joseph Pennell, by Elizabeth Robins Pennell; "The German Struggle for Liberty," illustrations by R. Caton Woodville, by Poultony Bigelow; "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," illustration by F. W. D. Mond; "The Story of Miss Pi," illustrations by C. D. Weldon, by Julian Ralph.

The New Year's "Ladies' Home Journal," has inaugurated the red-letter year of its existence. On the cover page is reproduced Albert Lynch's famous painting, "The God-mother," in half tone.

The first issue of the "Atlantic Monthly" (Boston) for 1896 opens with a published "Note Book of Nathaniel Hawthorne" now printed for the first time. There are also the opening chapters of a new three-part story by F. J. Stimson.

The "Overland Monthly" (San Francisco) for January has as a frontispiece "Love's Dreams" and as a facing to it "Robinson's Panorama of the Yosemite Valley," also the picture "California's New Year," Charles S. Greene, from the painting by Edward Cucuel; likewise the picture "The Living and the Dead."

"Godey's Magazine" for January (New York) fully and spiritedly illustrates (notably so in portraiture of women) is at hand.

With the January number of the "Annals of the American Academy" (Philadelphia), Dr. H. R. Seager assumes charge of the book department, Dr. Johnson having resigned to become associate editor.

"The Bookman" for January (Dodd, Mead & Co., New York) has, with numerous portraits, the following illustrations: "Chronicle and Comment"; "Happiness," by Virginia Woodward Cloud; "The Best of all the Blessed," by John Kendrick Bangs; "Night Tapestry," by Robert H. M. Dawbarn; "When the Birds Fly Home," by William W. Campbell; "Alexandre Dumas, Fils," by Adolphe Cohn; "Kate Carnegie" (a novel), by Ian MacLaren; "Living Critics," by James Ashcroft Noble; "Leopold Sacher-Masoch," by W. H. C.; "The Brotherhood of all Creatures," by N. H. B.; "Books and Critics," by
