

SENT BY THE GOVERNOR.

Concurrent Resolution No. 7 Was Telegraphed.

If Any Person Was Blameworthy, it Was the Author of the Resolution.

The anti-railroad press of San Francisco has been making a great howl over Assembly concurrent resolution No. 7, known as the Belshaw resolution, which opposed the passage of the Relyly funding bill, and was ordered by the Assembly transmitted to the Governor on January 31, 1895, with a request that he telegraph it to Washington, as stated in the "Record-Union" yesterday.

The papers in question have charged, more or less openly, that the resolution was smothered in some mysterious way through the influence of the Southern Pacific Company and prevented from ever reaching its proper destination, thereby entailing unspeakable calamity upon the State and country.

The statement made in the "Examiner" yesterday that the resolution never reached the hands of Governor Budd and never was telegraphed to Washington as requested by the Assembly, has caused a more thorough investigation of the facts than had been previously made. It is evident from the facts disclosed that any possible trouble arising in the matter is chargeable only to the author of the resolution, who, in his feverish haste to have it sent to Washington immediately and his fear that it might be delayed, took the matter out of the hands of the clerks—the regular channel of transmission—and procured the sending of it by Governor Budd that night to Congressman Maguire.

Now for the facts, which, being given, the public can judge for itself as to where the blame, if any, should rest. Those that bear on the Governor's reception of the resolution and the telegraphing of it by him are given on the authority of Private Secretary McCabe, who said yesterday to a "Record-Union" representative that the Governor had so stated them to him.

Belshaw and E. L. Colton, who was at that time Governor Budd's Private Secretary, had rooms in the same house and on the evening of the day that the resolution was ordered transmitted, the former was very anxious to find the Governor and have him telegraph it immediately, for fear that the bill would come to a vote before the resolution could reach Congress.

Colton and Belshaw, the Governor says, hunted him up and notified him of the passage of the resolution and urged him to telegraph it without loss of time. In compliance with Belshaw's request, the Governor immediately telegraphed it to Congressman Maguire, as one of the delegation to whom it had been requested to be sent.

In support of the Governor's statement, if that were deemed at all necessary, the records show that the telegraph toll, amounting to $16.45, was paid from the Governor's contingent fund. This, it will be observed, was on the evening of the day on which it was ordered transmitted, and shows how urgent was the haste that impelled Belshaw. That Maguire received it will now be shown.

By reference to the "Examiner's" own files, the fact was ascertained yesterday that the fact of its having been so telegraphed and received was well known to everybody at that time.

In the issue of that paper on February 2, 1895, about the middle of the sixth column of the second page, appears in the message telegraphed from Washington the preceding day the following quotation from Maguire's statement to a correspondent: "I have received to-night from Governor Budd a telegraphic copy of a joint resolution adopted by the California Legislature against the Relyly bill, and will present it, with the other documents I have, with the petition."

On the next day, February 3d, the "Examiner," quoting Maguire's speech delivered on the 2d, in the fifth column on the second page, after speaking of the bill and favoring foreclosure and Government ownership, quotes Maguire as saying: "That sentiment is also expressed in the joint resolution of the California Legislature telegraphed me by Governor Budd and presented today."

Will the "Examiner" stultify itself by declaring that its reports of Congressional debates were false, or will it continue to deny statements published in its own columns at the time? If so, will it also deny the report of the proceedings published in the "Congressional Record" of that date, which states substantially the same facts?

With regard to the statement that the records of the Governor's office do not show that the resolution was transmitted to him, there is one point that does not seem to have been considered by those who have engaged in the controversy. The resolution in question was a concurrent resolution and not a joint resolution, and Mr. Maguire is mistaken when he speaks of it as a joint resolution, as the records of the Assembly show.

There is a difference between the two in parliamentary usage and in the usage of our State Legislature. A concurrent resolution does not require the signature of the Governor, and only requires, in order to pass it, a majority of quorum present in either house, and does not require a roll-call. Of this class of resolutions an instance would be when one of the houses passes and sends to the other a resolution to adjourn at a certain date. If also passed by the other house, it certainly would not require the Governor's signature.

As said before, No. 7 was a concurrent resolution, and the records simply say that it was adopted, there being no roll-call and nothing to show that more than a bare majority of a quorum voted on it.

A joint resolution, on the contrary, must have the signature of the Governor to make it binding, and Cushing, in his manual, says that it is a form recognized in many constitutions, and put by them on the same footing as a law. The former resolutions introduced on the same subject by Belshaw, Bledsoe and Senator McGowan, which failed to pass both houses, were all joint resolutions.

tions, but No. 7, the one in question, was different, being simply a concurrent resolution, and did not require to go to the Governor's office for his signature, being merely transmitted to him, with a request that it be telegraphed by him. It is probable, under the circumstances, that it was so treated by him and Belshaw, and they simply carried out the intention of the Legislature on the subject, and it was therefore not necessarily to be printed in the statistics.

The register of bills, resolutions, etc., kept by the Clerk bears the record in regard to the resolution, "Transmitted to the Governor."

The resolution has remained undisturbed in the archives of the Secretary of State ever since it was turned over at the end of the session along with all the other bills and documents by the Clerk.

It bears on its back the indorsement, "Adopted by the Assembly, S. J. Duckworth," and also "Adopted by the Senate, F. J. Brandon." At the head of it, on the inside, is also "Adopted by the Assembly, S. J. Duckworth."

As stated in the "Record-Union" yesterday morning, Clerk Duckworth says that he did his part and all that was required of him, and if there is anything meriting blame it should rest on the shoulders of someone else.

CYCLE NOTES.

Herbert McCrea's Great Mile Ride at Coronado.

Sacramento has turned out some very fast bicycle riders who have earned fame during the past season. Among them is Herbert McCrea, who was a member of the old Capital City Wheelmen.

Yesterday at Coronado, San Diego County, where several of the chief riders of the country have been doing their winter training, McCrea covered the mile, standing start, in 1:50 2-5, equaling Otto Zeigler's world's record made in the East last October. He rode the last quarter in 21 seconds.

The last number of the "Arrow and Crescent," published at Elmira, N. Y., by the Eclipse Bicycle Company, copies from the "Record-Union" of January 2d its account of the great 200-mile trip made by W. A. Herbert on New Year's, when he rode from here to Stockton and back twice the same day. Herbert's ride has attracted considerable attention among Eastern wheelmen.

The custom of throwing a lot of sharp and jagged broken rock loosely into hollows worn in the gravel of wheelmen is still followed. Yesterday a wheelman rode into one of these collections of sharp and loose stones with the result that his tires were torn and punctured in several places.

Another wheelman came to grief yesterday near the depot. He was riding through Second street, with head down on his handle-bars, just as a man lowered an electric arc lamp to the street to renew its carbon for the night, and as he had no eyes in the crown of his head he did not see the lamp until he collided with it. Bicycle, lamp and rider were badly mixed for a while, and when the dust cleared away the cyclist gathered up his machine and led it tenderly to the nearest blacksmith shop.

The dust is now so deep on the streets that wheeling is anything but a pleasure. Some day the hundreds of wheelmen who pay taxes in this city will be heard at the ballot-box, and then some men who now imagine they are great will realize their insignificance.

FOR TEMPERANCE.

Meeting Yesterday of the W. C. T. U. Executive Committee.

There was a good attendance at the meeting yesterday at the Congregational Church of the Executive Committee of the County Women's Christian Temperance Union. The purpose of the meeting was to consider matters relating to the annual convention to be held at Oak Park in April.

Mrs. F. E. Waggoner, the President, presided, and the meeting was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. M. E. Jenks. All temperance workers present, on motion of Mrs. Mayhew, declared entitled to participate in the meeting.

The following committees were selected to make arrangements for the annual convention: On Program—The Presidents of the local unions, Mrs. M. E. Jenks, Capital City Union, Sacramento, Chairman; Mrs. G. Schad, Sacramento Union; Mrs. L. H. Snyder, Oak Park; Mrs. J. Dixon, Elk Grove; Mrs. Effie Whitman, Florin; Mrs. M. S. Russell-Kennedy, Brighton.

FIVE DRUNKS.

They Constituted the Police Court Calendar Yesterday.

The only cases in the Police Court yesterday morning were those of five drunks.

Three of them so touched the flinty heart of Justice Davis that he allowed them to go, with an admonition to hereafter shun the wine cup that stings like a serpent and biteth like a rattlesnake, or words to that effect.

James Hastings, however, both of whose eyes were in deep mourning for the old drunk that was untimely stopped by his arrest three days before, when he was allowed to go, on his promise to turn away his face from the enticing bowl, was not so fortunate. The court had lost confidence in the integrity of his promises and was obdurate to his pleadings and it will be two days and a half before he will again have a chance to mingle in the orgies of lower K street.

J. C. Brown will also spend two days upon the stool of repentance.

MCMORRY VS. CASEY.

The Former Sues for Damages in the Sum of $7,500.

John McMorry, by his attorney, Albert M. Johnson, has filed his third amended complaint against Hugh Casey. He charges Casey with having stated to the agent of R. G. Dun & Co. that he (Mc-Morry) was unworthy of credit and owed large sums of money.

McMorry states that, as a retail dealer, he had accounts with various wholesale dealers, and that by reason of Casey's statements concerning his business he was injured in his credit to the damage of $2,500.

He further charges Casey with having falsely and maliciously, and with the purpose of injuring the plaintiff, accused the latter of being largely indebted to him and was unable to pay the same. For this he asks damages in the sum of $2,500 additional.

The complaint contains still a third count of similar nature on which is based a claim for another $2,500 damages, or $7,500 in all.

THE CAMERA CLUB.

Progress of Work—Another Lantern Exhibition.

At the meeting of the Sacramento Camera Club held last night it was decided to give another lantern exhibition about the first of this month.

The instruction class for beginners is proving a great success, and will be continued on Tuesday evening. The subject next Tuesday will be "Simple Chemistry and Optics."

On Thursday evening next there will be a general club demonstration, the subject being "A Comparison of the Action of the Different Developers."

The club is gradually enlarging its membership, and thus extending its usefulness by putting funds at its disposal to meet expenses of experiment and support. The club especially desires to have citizens place their names upon its auxiliary or contributing list, which gives the auxiliary member decided privileges and benefits, though he may not engage in study and experiment in photography.

AGAINST A CLAIM.

Petition by the Executor of Elizabeth Young's Estate.

James M. Short, executor of the last will and testament of Elizabeth Young, deceased, has by his attorney, H. G. Soule, petitioned the Superior Court to set aside the claim of Elizabeth Noble, a daughter of the deceased, which was allowed and approved for $720 for personal services alleged to have been rendered her mother.

The original claim was for $1,400, but was reduced by the executor. The latter now states that he has discovered that the claim is not a valid one and should not be allowed, and further that Elizabeth Noble was indebted to her mother in a sum fully equal to the amount of the claim.

ILLICIT OPIUM.

Deputy Revenue Collector La Grave Makes a Capture.

C. T. La Grave, a deputy in Revenue Collector Stairley's office, returned from Colusa County yesterday, whither he went in search of parties who were defrauding the Government.

His trip was a successful one. At Arbuckle he uncovered a quantity of unstamped cigars and opium that some Chinese had buried beneath a big manure-heap. He also visited College City and made a capture of unstamped opium there.

The guilty parties were turned over to the tender mercy of the local authorities, and the contraband stuff was confiscated in the name of the Government.

"Shriners" Coming.

The Nobles of Islam Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of San Francisco, are coming to Sacramento some time in the early part of next month to confer the degree upon a large class of candidates in this city. Some but Knights Templar and 32d degree Masons are eligible. The local Shriners anticipate having a glorious time when the visitors arrive.

In your edition of February 11, 1896, I noticed in the marriages a notice, Thomas F. Chatfield to Emma A. S. Peters. There is certainly some mistake as I am not married to Miss Peters now or never was. Hoping the public and my friends will accept this as a satisfactory denial, I remain respectfully, Thomas F. Chatfield.
