

OF PAUL, THE PERSECUTOR.

Once Chief of Sinners, He Was Taken Unto the Lord.

A Sermon by Rev. Mr. Hoskinson on the Scene Before Damascus.

At the Sixteenth-street Lutheran Church the pastor, Rev. W. S. Hoskinson, preached last evening on "Paul, the Persecutor," taking for his text: "Saul, why persecutest thou me?"

Once, while a student, said the speaker, he spoke to a crowd of Christian workers on this subject, but never tried to preach on it before tonight. God grant that we may get much profit from the study!

Paul, as persecutor, started forth to blot out the little church. It was but little he then knew of its character. It thrives on persecution. The blood of the martyrs has been the seed of the church.

Jerusalem was the center, and from this they scattered by twos and threes, in upper rooms and private houses; they clung together and told one another of their joy in the Holy Ghost.

Damascus was the goal. They had heard of a six days' journey as they traveled in those times. To-day this city of Mohammedans is more than half as large as San Francisco.

It is a gay city—a charming spot. Its white walls and buildings and domes glisten in the morning sun; vast olive groves and citrons, and oranges, and pomegranates are here, and a famous river that sweeps by, brightens the scene.

But the Christians had fled and were doing great work among the Jews. But they must look out now, for a powerful enemy approaches with letters of authority to carry them all captive back to Jerusalem.

Suddenly a new light breaks in on them, and the noonday sun is dimmed. A shock vibrates through the atmosphere, and in a moment all the horsesman are flat on the ground.

He tries to get up, but finds he cannot. Neither can he see anything—his eyes are closed. He calls out: "Who art thou, Lord?" And the glorified Jesus answers: "I am the one you have been chasing. He that whips and scourges and kills those Christians whips and scourges and kills me. I am Jesus, whom thou art persecuting."

It was a wild, exciting, terrible scene that was witnessed that day before Damascus, and from it sprang the greatest preacher of the ages—a light to lighten the Gentiles.

This was indeed a fall and humiliation to Paul, but from that fall he arose to true greatness and imperishable glory. The siege was cut very short, and the proud leader brought very low down to earth.

Most men must have their reputations upset, their fortunes turned to smoke and ashes, before they become useful to God. "You must be brought down," says Joseph, "before you can go up."

The river was down to the 20-foot, 9-inch mark yesterday evening, but is keeping up well for so late in the season. The low-water stage will probably not be reached until well along in August, and perhaps September.

FELL UNDER A STREET-CAR.

Fred Turner's Unfortunate Accident Yesterday.

One of His Legs Crushed and Amputated Near the Ankle.

Fred Turner, son of ex-Mayor Jabez Turner, met with a terrible accident early last evening at Ninth and J streets.

Mr. Turner was waiting on one corner of the street for a car that was approaching. On the opposite side and diagonally across were two or three other persons waiting to board the same car. As the car slowed down for them, while crossing Ninth street, Turner ran out to intercept it. The car was nearly across Ninth street and would have stopped at the crossing a few feet farther on, when Turner sprang for the front platform.

He failed to grasp the railing, however, and fell. His left leg shot under the platform and across the rail in front of the wheels, which passed over the leg near the ankle, crushing it in a shocking manner.

Coming from the rear, as he did, he was not seen by the motorman until just as he slipped under the car. The conductor noticed Mr. Turner running toward the front of the car, but as it was just coming to a stop he paid no attention to him, but looked southward along Ninth street to see if there were any persons coming from that direction.

The car ran probably less than its own length after Turner fell, and had he waited a second it would have stopped for the other passengers. A crowd of people gathered about, and the injured youth was taken to the Railroad Hospital.

The leg was found to be so badly crushed that immediate amputation was found to be necessary. At last accounts he was resting quietly.

Mr. Turner is a carpenter employed in one of the departments at the railroad shops, where his father is foreman. The latter is at present on a visit to his old home in Canada.

The accident was witnessed by a number of persons, none of whom attach any blame to the motorman or conductor of the car. It was one of those unfortunate accidents that frequently occur in which the sufferer alone is responsible for his misfortune.

ON THE DIAMOND.

Games Won Yesterday by the Horse-shoes and Corkers.

The Horse-shoes outplayed the Cyclones of '96 at every point in their game of baseball yesterday afternoon at Agricultural Park, the score being 12 to 9. The features of the game were the pitching of Ruser and the heavy hitting of Just of the Cyclones. The battery work of McKee and Merlier, the base setting and running of Foss and Silveira, and the guarding of first by Gunter of the victorious team was first-class.

The Corkers defeated the Amittys in their game of baseball at Agricultural Park yesterday morning by a score of 34 to 27.

FAST RIDING.

Capital City Wheelmen Are Making Mites in Good Time.

Some of the local wheelmen, in their training for the Fourth of July races, are developing great speed. At Agricultural Park yesterday Tom Welch made a mile in 2:05 3-5, paced by tandems.

Were it not that there are so many wheels in training there, keeping the track in a "sloppy" condition, it is thought some of the riders would have reached the two-minute mark by this time.

RUNAWAY GIRL.

She Was Located in This City, But Again Departed.

Several days ago Chief of Police Drew received a private letter from parties residing in San Francisco stating that a young woman named Thompson, who resided at 120 Freelon street, had left home with a disreputable character named Jack McAuliffe, a brother of the prize-fighter.

The letter was turned over to officers, who located the woman in a house of ill-repute. Word was sent to the woman's relatives in San Francisco, who are said to be respectable people, but when her brother arrived it was found that she had decamped. It was learned that McAuliffe, who has a family in San Francisco, took her away in a buggy, but at last accounts she hadn't been located.

Not a Burglar's Work.

It turns out that the breaking of one of the windows in Hale Bros. & Co.'s store on Friday night was not the result of an attempt at burglary, as was at first supposed. It is thought that someone fell against the window while drunk.

E. J. Clark, the night watchman in the store, says he was eating his lunch at the time it occurred. He heard the noise, but as the store is very large he could not locate the spot for some time.

A person bent on robbery would hardly attempt to effect an entrance to a store by smashing in a big plate-glass window in the front of the building, which could have got without entering the main store would have been a few pairs of shoes that were in the window.

Reward for a Body.

The remains of the Chinaman who was recently knocked from the trestle of the American River bridge by a passing train have not yet been found, and the company of which he was a member are anxious that the body be recovered, so that his bones may rest in the land of his fathers. They have offered a reward of $25 to anyone who will bring in or locate the cadaver.

Death of C. R. Wicks.

C. R. Wicks, who has acted in the capacity of agent for the Southern Pacific Company for the past twenty years, died yesterday at Willows, after a lingering illness. He was well-known to the traveling public, and numbered his friends among railroad men by the hundred.

The First Excursion.

Three cardinals of San Francisco excursionists passed through the city Saturday night en route to Castle Crags and Mount Shasta. This was the first excursion of the season, and will be followed by a number of others.

General Diamond's Remains.

The remains of General Diamond will pass through the city to-morrow, en route from the East, to San Francisco. An escort of National Guardsmen and a funeral car will meet the remains at the State line.
