TWO REPROACHES REMOVED. In the "Critic" recently there was a letter from his London correspondent upon the effect of the bicycle on the book trade in England.

Why until October, we ask? and the answer is that the patrons of these publications are of the class who confine their riding to the inner row of Regent's Park, to see and be seen.

Are we to conclude from this that the "Critic's" correspondent, one of the best by the way, means to imply that "these sensible riders" are not readers? Probably not.

do not believe that the reading habit has been sensibly affected by the outdoor exercise to which the wheel invites. On the contrary, local evidence sustains our view, since we learn that in this community, where the bicycling fever is at full heat, and where climate and other conditions are very inviting to it, there have been larger and sturdier calls upon the resources of the City Free Library than usual, and it is understood that the same is true of the three great libraries in San Francisco.

THE SAN FRANCISCO SCHOOL ORDER.

The proper municipal authority in San Francisco has decreed that consumptive children shall no more be admitted to the public schools of that city. Thus does knowledge gain its points one by one. Five years ago when it was proposed in Philadelphia to forbid the attendance of children at the funerals of those who die of diphtheria, a protest went up from the general public, but it did not take long to prove to the people that the remains of one dying of that disease are capable of communicating it to a living person and presently there was general acquiescence in the demand of science.

It is only about ten years since the public was brought to the belief that some medical men had long entertained that diphtheria patients should be isolated, that houses in which diphtheria prevails should be quarantined, and that children out of families where there is a case of diphtheria should not attend the public schools.

Some five years ago the medical faculty made bold to assert what it had a long time debated in its private councils, that consumption is communicable, and that consumptives should not be permitted to expectorate upon the streets nor attend public assemblies.

When this was stated to the public there went up all over the land a vigorous protest, and the decision of the faculty was denounced as extravagant, cruel and unsupported by evidence.

So it may now be said that the doctrine of the communicability of the Alameda broke the ice in this State by forbidding consumptives in public assemblies, and excluding them from the schools also, we believe. It was then thought to be too early for so radical a measure, and there was some consequent grumbling, and some charges that the order was cruel and unsympathetic.

Now comes the California metropolis and by due authority declares that the presence of consumptives in the public schools endangers the health and lives of those children who come into contact with them, or are in places where they expectorate.

Yes, WE ALL AGREE, In fact everybody agrees with us, that a firm like

"seeds of consumption" is clearly admitted in California and that hereafter there will be regulation of the going in and coming out of those so unfortunate as to be stricken by consumption. The order that has been made in San Francisco should be repeated in every school district in the State.

DAIRY INSPECTION AGAIN.

The "Record-Union" three years ago undertook to quicken interest in this State by full and frequent publication of facts, pointing out the danger of using milk from cows afflicted with tuberculosis. At that time the data at hand read that fully 8 per cent. of all cows in the State were affected.

We have not believed that the number of affected cows is in excess of 15 per cent. When the tests were made at Stockton two years ago they were not extensive enough to establish a basis for estimating a percentage.

The San Jose "Herald" of the 7th last says that the official inspector for Santa Clara County tested 361 head of dairy cattle in the month of June and fifty-two head were affected, necessitating killing them.

The old Democratic cry was "The Constitution of the fathers." The new Democratic Altgeld-Debs cry is "The Constitution as we want it, the Constitution with the Supreme Court paralyzed."

"I may not live to see it," said Lincoln, in a speech in 1844 at Gentryville, Ind., "but give us a protective tariff and we will have the greatest country on the face of the globe."

"Anything for a Change." "I want a pound of butter," said Mr. Spudds to the grocer.

That is true, in all probability, only the city of Sacramento is in a more dangerous boat, because our authorities re-fruse to join with the county authorities in passing the necessary ordinances to forward inspection. The responsibility attaching to the men who thus refuse to something too terrible to contemplate. Probably some of them realize this since it has been reported that one of them expresses himself as quite content that the children shall die of poisonous milk, since it will save them from growing up to differ from him in politics.

When Senator Hill of New York declared that he was "a Democrat but not a revolutionist," he stated the whole case. The convention that rebuked him, and would have expelled him if it dared, was revolutionist from A to Z, with just enough of true loyalty scattered through it to prevent it passing an encomium upon Debs and lauding the effort to down the Government in '94.
