

TALKING FOR CHEAP MONEY.

Speeches by Democratic-Populist Candidates.

Last Night's Meeting at the Old Pavilion for Bryan and Silver.

Probably 300 people gathered at the Old Pavilion last night to greet the Populist-Democratic county candidates and listen to a discourse upon the financial situation by Judge W. H. Lammie of Los Angeles.

The meeting was called to order by T. W. O'Neil, who introduced Charles T. Hughes as Chairman, and announced that the county candidates who had taken seats upon the platform would act as Vice-Presidents.

Chairman Hughes introduced as the first speaker of the evening Judge J. H. McKune, candidate for Superior Judge. He said he had voted with the Populists in 1892, though he considered himself the same man politically he had been forty years ago.

Then the speaker took up the money question and from a free silver point of view spoke for half an hour. The speech was replete with figures and analogies, and comparatively good attention was accorded him.

Joseph W. Hughes, also candidate for Superior Judge, was the next speaker. He thought candidates for Superior Judges should avoid political discussion—the office was above it.

Matt F. Johnson, the other candidate for Superior Judge, refused to discuss politics. Four years ago, he said, friends from all parties had elected him a Superior Judge, and for their assistance he was grateful.

GILLIS DOTY, Candidate for the Senate, was next introduced, and said he was sorry he had no more time, but when such a man as Judge Lammie of Los Angeles was to speak he would not stand in his way.

Mr. Doty said the report had been circulated that he was opposed to the present State series of school books. This he denounced as false, saying that he had always stood for the State series.

He had a record for standing for good roads, and had always worked to fix the taxes at a minimum. When the people had a chance to elect an honest old farmer to the Senate, they should not let the chance slip.

He believed, he said, that a good thing had been in giving the people the Australian ballot system, and on election day the people could vote for the interests of their homes regardless of the amount of money which might be poured into the State.

OTHER CANDIDATES. A. Marshall, candidate for the Assembly from the Twenty-first District, spoke next. He was for silver at 16 to 1, and if elected would support a man for Senator who stood upon the same platform as he did.

C. W. Daly, candidate for Supervisor from the Third District, said that if elected the taxes should be reduced if it were possible to do so. If there were buildings or bridges to be built the money set aside for the purpose should be put into them, and the people of Sacramento County should do the work.

M. J. Curtis, candidate for the Assembly from the Twentieth District, said every Democratic and Populist should be out and working for the whole ticket.

JUDGE W. H. LAMMIE of Los Angeles was next introduced. He said the Democrats of this section of the State would have to hump themselves to keep up with the Republicans of the southern portion. He had been told that the gold Democrats of this section would vote for McKinley, and it was certain that the silver Republicans of the South would vote for Bryan.

This action of the Democrats he could not understand. Why should they desert their party the first time it had been right in forty years? On the other hand, why should Republicans stay with their party because it chanced to be wrong the first time in its history.

There could be no doubt as to the political status of all parties in California. At their conventions each and every one of them had declared unqualifiedly for free silver, and the Republicans had maintained those declarations until after the St. Louis Convention, when they had backslided, swallowed the gold standard, Mark Hanna, and all the rest of it.

The speaker read a number of extracts from speeches of prominent men of both parties protesting against the adoption of the gold standard, and alleging that such action would enhance the value of money and depreciate the value of all products.

He favored an American policy for Americans, and stood with those who were not willing to wait until some red-capped, red-breathed king across the Atlantic said we might establish a system of bimetallicism. He believed the American Congress should legislate for Americans, and not for the money powers of the world.

At the conclusion of Judge Lammie's address those present gave three cheers for the ticket and the speaker, and then went out into the damp, dark night.

Two Requisitions. Governor Budd has honored the requisition of Governor Morton of New York for the return to that State of George T. Quinn, charged with having committed forgery in the second degree.

The Governor also issued a requisition on the Governor of Oregon for the arrest of Paul Peters, charged with the crime of embezzlement, alleged to have been committed in Santa Clara County.

Showing at Truckee. Thomas R. Jones, Assistant Division Superintendent of the Southern Pacific Company, yesterday morning returned from a trip to Truckee. He reports the thermometer to have been down to 25 degrees, and that it was snowing in dead earnest.

Mr. Jones reports mountain quail to be more numerous than ever before, and that as they feed on pine nuts, the flesh is superior to that of a chestnut-fed turkey.

NAVAL BATTALION TROUBLE.

Ex-Commander C. A. Douglass Under a Cloud.

His Accounts Said to be in a Very Much Tangled Condition.

The affairs of Lieutenant C. A. Douglass, ex-Commander of the First Division Naval Battalion, are under investigation by a board of officers recently appointed for that purpose.

The San Francisco "Bulletin," and according to the statements of one of the investigators, Douglass will be called upon for an explanation. The investigation now under way has developed, among other things, that Douglass' cash books are missing.

Douglass commanded the First Division of the Naval Battalion since its organization, three years ago, until recently, when he found it convenient to resign. Under the State law he received $100 a month, with an additional $150 a year, which annual sum of $1,350 was to be devoted to the equipment of the division.

The reports of the inspectors, made from time to time, showed that Douglass' administration was defective in many respects. It was found that the First Division was poorly equipped, and that there were discrepancies in the accounts. None of the inspectors was ever privileged to see Douglass' cash books, which he kept locked up.

When rumors of Douglass' management or rather mismanagement reached Lieutenant-Commander Turner, he attempted in vain to secure an explanation from the ex-Commander. Turner became disgusted and at once sent in his resignation to Major-General James. When Douglass heard of this he forwarded his resignation also. His resignation was promptly accepted, while that of Commander Turner was placed on file without action.

General James then appointed an investigating board to examine Douglass' books. This board consists of Major Charles L. Tilden of the First Infantry, Captain D. A. Smith of the First Infantry, and Lieutenant G. Underhill, Ordnance Officer of the Naval Battalion. The committee has held two meetings, but its operations had scarcely commenced when the absence of Douglass' cash books was discovered.

Attempts were made to find them, with the result that the committee, convinced to the effect that they were still in Douglass' possession. It appears that Douglass cannot now be found. He was last heard from at Santa Cruz some weeks ago. He then announced that he would attend the meetings of the investigating committee and aid the inquiry as far as he was able.

Douglass has not entered an appearance, however, and the committee, doubting the sincerity of his promises, has sent to Sacramento for copies of his reports. The committee has found that his accounts are in a sadly tangled state, and they do not believe any report on earth can make them balance satisfactorily. In the meantime the affairs of the First Division are in an unsettled state, and the report of the investigating board is looked forward to with genuine interest. How far it will incriminate Douglass remains to be seen.

CONCERNING A DETECTIVE.

Mayor Hubbard Vetoes the Ordinance Thereof.

He Wants the Detective to Hold Office Only at the Will of the Mayor.

Mayor Hubbard last night vetoed the ordinance providing for a city detective, and gives the following reasons for his action:

"To the Honorable Board of Trustees: I herewith return to you, without my approval, Ordinance No. —, entitled 'An ordinance creating the office of detective for the city of Sacramento, defining the duties and fixing the salary thereof.'

"I do not approve of the proposed ordinance for the reason that the public interests are not sufficiently guarded by the provisions of said ordinance. In its present status the ordinance creates the office of detective and provides, among other things, that the duties of such detective shall be the same as those prescribed by the charter of the city of Sacramento for police officers of said city, and that all portions of said charter applicable to police officers shall be applicable to the said office of detective."

The evident meaning of said provisions is that such person shall act as a detective and perform the duties which are required of a police officer, and shall hold office during life, or at least during good behavior.

"While I recognize the necessity for the creation of such an office, I also realize that the interests of the public would not be better protected if the incumbent of such office should hold office for a fixed and definite length of time, or at the pleasure of the Mayor. I am thoroughly convinced that, if the term of such officer should be left at the will of the Mayor, better and more efficient service for the city would be obtained.

DANGER IN DISGUISE.

The Serious Troubles That May Come Upon People at This Time of Year.

"Oh, it is only a cold." Such a remark is this is often heard at this time of the year, when the weather is chilly. The people who make such a remark seem to forget that a cold is really a dangerous condition of the system, a weak spot, a disease. A cold may lead to a cough, and a cough to pneumonia, or it may sow the seeds of consumption.

For this reason it is dangerous to neglect a cold. It is better to stamp it out at once. Fortunately there is one means of doing this that is always safe and reliable, and that is what you can see from the following:

"This is laid over by Connor, 271 Scott street, Brooklyn, says: 'Some time ago I was stricken down with congestion of the lungs and having the best medical attendance, I did not improve. I had a cough that seemed to contract my chest at night, and I was in constant pain, and had no rest day or night. At last I was advised to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky, and I effected a speedy cure. The lung trouble and cough entirely disappeared, my appetite was regained, and breathing became as natural as ever. I now feel like a new man all over.'

No Illegal Voting. The Governor has offered a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of any and every person violating any of the provisions of the election law at the coming general election.

Proposed ordinance should not be hastily passed, but should receive your careful and thoughtful consideration.

I recommend that an ordinance be drawn which will remove the objection and embody the suggestion herein mentioned. Respectfully submitted, "C. H. HUBBARD, Mayor."

Devine thought it might be best to take no action in the matter of the veto at present. He thought the Mayor's objections might be removed under the charter, and he moved that the matter be laid over for a week.

McKay said he understood that the man for whom the office was created would not get it, and it might as well be dropped.

Kent said the matter was dead, and might as well be let go.

Tozer moved that the matter be referred to the Police Committee for further investigation, and it was so ordered.
