

AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING.

Sound Money Clubs of the Railroad Shops Hold It.

The New Pavilion Well Filled to Listen to Addresses by County Candidates.

If anyone doubts the sincerity and enthusiasm of the sound money clubs of the railroad shops he should have been at the new pavilion last night to see and hear for himself what the sentiments of the 1,700 members were and his doubts would have been removed.

The occasion was a meeting of the clubs alone, admission by ticket being the order of the evening, and the county candidates being invited to be present and address them. The gathering was one of the largest during the campaign, and the enthusiasm was not spasmodic, but continuous and liberal, all the speakers being loudly applauded and interrupted by applause many times during their addresses.

Ex-Mayor Jabez Turner presided and opened the meeting with a few remarks, touching on the relations of the club men to the railroad company, the fact that the prosperity of the one was closely connected with that of the other and could not be separated from it, the close connection of the funding bill to Sacramento's interests and the importance of the election of Grove L. Johnson to this community.

Every point made by him was cheered and applauded, showing that he was closely in touch with the sentiments of the men and that they have a thorough appreciation of the situation and a determination to act for their own interests.

He then introduced Messrs. Cohn, Kidder and Crocker, who rendered a beautiful trio and were loudly encored.

He then introduced Hon. Julson C. Brusie, who was loudly applauded and spoke as follows:

BRUSIE'S RINGING SPEECH.

Mr. Chairman and Fellow-citizens: My first utterance shall be given to the expression of a profound gratitude and heartfelt appreciation for this honored privilege which you have so generously extended. In politics, like everything else in Sacramento, there can be no hope for the man who holds in slight esteem, or who loses sight of, or is disregarding or indifferent to the support that can come from yonder hive of industry.

When I say "support," I do not mean the aid of a few chosen friends; I do not mean the interest alone of the Superintendent or foreman; I do not mean that support which may come down the line, but I do mean the support that comes from the honest heart of each individual who thinks, judges and acts for himself and for his own self-interest.

When I say "support," I mean that support which comes to a man or to a principle along the road that leads not to the shops alone, but to the home, for, as I said the other night, there are two spots on this earth within the circumference of which there centers every possibility in life, every comfort, every tenderest wish of happiness in the past, every hope of the future. One of these spots is the home, and the other is the place where, by our daily toil, we provide for that home and its previous contents.

Whether castle or cottage, whether banker's counter or workman's bench, the castle leans to the counter, the cottage depends upon the bench. In the game of life there are but two goals—the fireplace and the provision-plate. From the cottage door to the factory floor, from the home gate to the shop gate, there is a path over which the grass must never grow for the sake of the country's prosperity. And if there is within this broad land of ours a city which offers the best of that eternal truth, it is the city of Sacramento.

At a time when other cities of California were trembling to their very centers in the throes of the financial earthquake which has just shaken the country, old Sacramento rode through the storm with that confidence, pride and independence which come with the ringing anvil, the smoking chimneys and whirling wheels of the happy mills.

The man that is indifferent to Sacramento's dependence is one who has nothing to lose; the men who are trying to drive you from the ranks you are now in, the man or party who is trying to divert your march in this fight for home, have nothing on God's earth to offer you as a substitute.

They are trying to direct your shots to themselves, not for your good, but to promote their own selfish ends. Their sincerity goes for their cause, not yours.

I hold in my hand a notice that recently appeared in one of our Sacramento papers. It reads: "Attention! Democratic Party of Nevada and Silver Club! Be at headquarters, 818 K street, to-night at 7 o'clock to participate in the reception of Hon. S. M. White and Marion de Vries, Esq. All advocates of free silver coinage invited to fall in. This is no stock parade." (Signed) W. D. Lawton, President, P. A. Byrne, Secretary.

Shame on that party who would offer such an insult to their fellowmen! Here in this country of ours, where freedom of speech and thought and conscience constitute their corner-stone of our nation, what a spectacle is this—to find the representatives of a party that wants control of our Government publicly denouncing those with whom they differ as being dogs, or sheep, or cattle!

"This is no stock parade!" When I first read it I thought it to be simply a precaution against the mistake that might be made against those who marched. I took it first to be a designation to relieve all doubt as to the character of those who intended turning

BEFORE long my throat was filled with sores, large lumps formed on my neck, and a horrible ulcer broke out on my jaw, says Mr. O. H. Elbert, who resides at cor. 22d St. and Avenue N., Galveston, Texas. He was three times pronounced cured by prominent physicians, but the dreadful disease always returned; he was then told that HOT SPRINGS was the only one which had all the ailments of a hot spring. He was in a sad plight. After taking one bottle of S. S. S. he began to improve and two dozen bottles cured him completely, so that for more than six years he has had no sign of the disease.

out. I was first inclined to the belief that to save the expense of labeling each of them with a sign, "This is no animal," they made a general declaration which would cover them all. But I find that it was nothing more nor less than a contemptible attempt to stigmatize as cattle the liberty-loving, self-respecting, self-sustaining shopmen of Sacramento—men whose little fingers count for more in this city of ours than a whole batch of such mud-slinging mongrels as subscribed to the sentiment of that public traitor, Attorney who carries under his hat more brains, under their jumpers bigger hearts than such belittling blackguards ever dreamed of to be subjected to such abuse? No! Assaults so unjust and uncharitable will only injure the man or men who, to make them, takes up such weapons.

And right here let me say to you that in every declaration coming from the Populists—I say Populists, for that is the only party we are fighting now, as I have said in the Democratic, and while they are like the snake that swallowed the frog that had swallowed the rock, they are nevertheless on the inside, whether to be digested or not—say, in every declaration, either in the form of a resolution, or in the way they take occasion to denounce every measure or expedient that would be to your interests.

An injury to your employer is an injury to you. You can no more prevent a detriment to your employer from reaching you than you can change the course of a storm. You can no more separate his interests from yours than you can sever an artery without the loss of blood. Your employer's prosperity can no more be held for himself alone than he can hold for himself alone the rays of God's sunlight.

And now, because you are prudent enough, thoughtful enough—because the lamp of experience has guided you to a determination—are you going to be led away from it by some blatant demagogue? Of course you are not, and so long will your prosperity, the prosperity of your city, county and State and nation be assured.

Mr. Brusie was repeatedly interrupted by applause, and was vociferously cheered at the conclusion of his remarks.

SENATOR HART'S ADDRESS.

Hon. E. C. Hart said Mr. Brusie had stated very clearly and logically the importance of the campaign to the workingman. If there ever was one that affected him, this is the one. He himself was a candidate for an office far removed from politics, but he must say that this was one of the most momentous campaigns in the history of the country. Men and women, he said, should know what is best for the country and should respect each other's opinions. He could consistently claim to have been a workingman and felt that the interests of the workingmen were deeply involved and that the man from whom prosperity must be expected is the one who will stand by the workingman. He hoped to receive their support on next Tuesday. (Applause.)

W. M. Sims said that he had but a few words to say. Speaking to them as workingmen he need not emphasize the fact that ten years ago the issue was protection and the past four years had not been favorable to the workingman. He asked them to give the Republican party the benefit of the doubt and vote for the party that stood for the protection of American workingmen's interests. He asked their support in his canvass, to enable him to roll up an old-time Republican majority in the Twentieth Assembly District and to represent it in the next Legislature, where he would do his best for Sacramento and her interests as well as those of the whole State.

Hon. C. N. Post said he was always glad to meet his friends and he felt that among them were the folks in the Southern Pacific shops. He had been one of them. Twenty years ago he had walked the streets of Sacramento with his hands and face as black as any of them. He had turned his attention to the law and had risen to the position of First Assistant Attorney-General. He wished now to be able to say that he had stepped from the mechanic's bench in the Southern Pacific shops to the bench of the Superior Court.

There had been some doubts expressed as to his ability, but he could say that at the next meeting of the Supreme Court here he would have more cases to argue before it than all the lawyers of Sacramento would, if elected he should file the petition to the best of his ability, and know no distinction between men.

A zither and mandolin trio followed and was received with loud applause.

JUDGE CATLIN SPEAKS.

Judge Catlin was the next speaker and had to wait till the storm of applause that greeted his appearance subsided.

He said that he had come here this evening at their invitation and was glad to have an opportunity to express his sentiments to them. The audience was too large for his voice, but he was not expected to make a political speech. They all knew he was a candidate for re-election to his present position. There was no reason why a Judge should not make a political speech, for he keeps in touch with the topics of the day and forms his opinions, as other men do. He intended, however, to make his remarks personal to himself.

He was one of the earliest friends of the Pacific Railroad and worked for it early and late before Huntington, Hopkins and Stanford took hold of the project. He assisted in some of the surveys made by Mr. Judah and was an earnest advocate of the road.

He alluded to an anonymous card that stated that he was a Know Nothing. How could a Know Nothing advocate the Pacific road be asked. (Laughter.) He was never a Know Nothing, and the party only existed a year on this coast. He was a Whig, an advocate of the doctrine taught by that great apostle of protection, Henry Clay. He was a Whig as long as the party lasted, and until its vote in the State fell to 12,000.

He was a member of a convention held in the Congregational Church in 1856. They were all Whigs, and passed a resolution pledging themselves to aid in the election of Fillmore and Donaldson, and to lend their aid to the great reform question of the day, the Pacific Railroad, the purity of the ballot, the advocacy of pure men for office, and to recognize all men who were for Fillmore and Donaldson as co-workers in the cause of reform.

district he had met with no invidious remarks as to his character or standing in the community, the only objections seeming to be to his age. He thought when the founders of the Constitution fixed the age of suffrage at 21 years they had fully considered the matter, and if a man were fit to vote at that age he was fit to represent others.

He would act honestly by his constituents if elected, and asked them to support him, assuring them that he would endeavor that they should never have reason to regret doing so.

LINCOLN WHITE. Said he was glad of the opportunity to present himself before them. He advocated a standard of 16 to 18—sixteen votes for himself to one for the other candidates. His principal reason for desiring the office was that there was a $2,000 salary attached to it, and he wanted that salary, and would give in return what ability he had, together with an exact administration of justice.

If elected, they would probably have a better opinion of him in two years than they had now. He asked their support for him as a Sacramento man. What he wanted most was votes.

OREGON ALL RIGHT.

A Former Sacramento Man Says She is for McKinley.

Writing from Portland, Or., to the "Record-Union," a Sacramento woman says she is for McKinley. After such an enthusiastic gathering as I witnessed last night in the Exposition building, I cannot help but address you and tell you that while Oregon has long been conceded to be in the Republican line, the night's demonstration, when the Hon. C. A. Tuttle of Maine addressed the citizens of Portland and vicinity, demonstrated beyond a doubt what the verdict would be on November 3d. The room was packed, and cheers as greeted Mr. Tuttle were never before heard in the history of Portland.

So, while I see California is very enthusiastic, we here in Portland do not want you to be ignorant of the fact that just so sure as the sun rises and sets on November 3d, the sun rises and sets on McKinley, and he is one of the many States that will give William McKinley a handsome majority. Populism is fast dying out, and good common sense is taking ground, and will continue to do so and increase each day. William McKinley's majority.

It is true the Bryanites are getting desperate and have several times resorted to lawlessness in trying to break up McKinley meetings and parades, but even if Portland has a Populist Mayor she has got a Republican Governor that believes in law and order, and if need be he can call out the State troops to suppress any undue interference with the rights of American citizens. Not only that, but he has the backbone to do it; so if Mr. Penoyer, as has been reported, intends to carry the election by dishonesty, I fear he will get more trouble than he bargained for, and that some of his pet policemen won't look as well as they did.

A VOTER.

EFFICIENT AND ACTIVE.

The Kind of Man to Represent This District.

(From the Stockton Independent.) San Joaquin Republicans should see the necessity for returning to Congress an efficient and active worker who is able to do good service for the district. There are pressing needs of this section which will make it important to re-elect Congressman Johnson, and thinking men will exert themselves to that end. Mr. Johnson has learned the ways of Congressional workers and can be of more service to his district in other terms than was possible when he went there for the first time. Aside from the great importance of strengthening the President with a strong Congress it is of pressing necessity to keep an efficient legislator in the House of Representatives.

CHURCH BURGLARIZED.

The English Lutheran Church was burglarized on Monday night. Officers Fisher and Maley investigated it yesterday morning and found that a panel had been cut out of the back door so that the key could be turned from the inside.

The thieves carried away some undesignated items that had been donated for the poor, broke open the two poor boxes, and carried away part of the communion service, which was found bent up on the floor, having evidently been dropped by them when leaving. It is not known how much they got from the poor boxes.

Will be Elected.

If Amador County fails to give Congressman Johnson a good, rousing majority, it will make a sad mistake. But we feel certain that this county will give him the vote he is entitled to, and that he will go out of Amador with a good majority. He is a man of high character, returned to Congress all right, and our people will make a big mistake if any sulking is indulged in.—Amador Republican.

Minor Cases.

Lou Morris was sentenced yesterday in the Police Court to forty days in the County Jail for vagrancy. The cases of John Hudson and Joseph Peters, charged with battery, were continued till to-day, and that of Dave Friedlander, charged with violating the peddling ordinance, was continued until November 4th.

Governor's Proclamation.

Governor Budd has issued a special proclamation offering $100 reward for the arrest and conviction of any persons intimidating voters, voting fraudulently, falsifying or destroying election returns, changing or destroying voted ballots, or purchasing or selling votes.

Land Patents Signed.

Governor Budd has signed land patents for sixteen and thirty-six sections of school lands—John T. Rodda, 49 acres in Nevada County, and W. H. Schneider, 52.74 acres in Napa County.

Also, a patent for swamp and overflowed lands to Deane T. Knott for 61.06 acres in Fresno County.

DOING GOOD WORK.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children met last evening in Superintendent Eriewine's office, President Herrick presiding. There was quite a good attendance. The Secretary, Rev. A. Simon, reported several cases investigated and in hand, and Special Officer reported fourteen cases investigated, several corrected or in hand, and several concluded through legal process.

Mrs. Parsons, from the Committee on Badges, made a final report and submitted the badges, many of which were at once taken by members. The badge consists of a solid silver heart engraved with the letters in black enamel, "Child's Friend." It is small and neat, and is in two forms, one as a stick pin and one as a lock or clasp pin. The first costs its possessor ninety cents, the latter $1.25. The badge is not conspicuous, but very pretty and quite ornamental.

The following new members were elected: Mrs. Mary Schowler, Mrs. F. W. Fratt, A. J. Moffett, Mrs. Dr. Snider, Mrs. H. Wolf, Dr. F. Tyrrell, Henry Miller and Dr. Ogden.

The society discussed several matters of interest to its work, audited its bills, received a report from Treasurer Eriewine, and adjourned until the last Tuesday in November.

SIGNAL CORPS.

It is Laying Out Plans for Heliographic Work.

Instead of holding the regular drill last evening the Signal Corps, under command of Lieutenant F. L. Martin, marched in the State Capitol, where the large relief map of the State, showing the proposed route of the high-altitude signal line, was examined by the members of the corps, with a view of securing suitable locations for heliographic work during the coming winter.

Commissioner Marsden Manson of the bureau was on hand to receive the boys, and much interest was shown by the corps in his explanation of the various topographical features of the State. Many lines of heliographic work were pointed out, and in the near future the corps will make an effort to break the present record of sixty-seven miles for heliographic signaling in this State, now held by the Second Brigade Signal Corps of San Francisco.

On the return to the Armory a business meeting was held, and the corps decided to give its first annual ball on Tuesday, December 1st. The following committees were appointed: On Arrangements—Sergeant J. H. Watkins (Chairman), Corporal E. A. Robin and Corporal J. A. Byrne. On Invitation—Sergeant W. F. Bailey and Corporal George B. Cosby, Jr.

BOUND OVER.

Fred Needlein Gives a Bond to Keep the Peace.

F. W. Needlein was in Justice Henry's court yesterday on a charge of making threats against his wife's life. The testimony was substantially the same as the statement of the case published on Monday morning.

Justice Henry bound Needlein over to keep the peace, his bail being fixed at $200. The charge of assault, growing out of the Sunday night affair, was continued.

It is understood the parties are about to agree to separate, and possibly a divorce will follow.

Arrested on Suspicion.

George Dunstan and Thomas Brooks were arrested yesterday by Officers Maley and Fisher on suspicion of having tried to garrote two different men the night before at Fifteenth and N streets.

The officers suspect them of being the ones who burglarized the English Lutheran Church. They were only a few days ago released from the County Jail, where they had served terms for petty larceny.

Boxing Night.

There will be several boxing bouts on Thursday evening at the gymnasium of the Athletic Club. The chief event of the evening will be four rounds between J. Kane of San Francisco and William McGraw of the local club. The men are lightweight.

Lost and Found.

A little boy, son of S. A. Street, wandered away from his home yesterday morning. He was not found for several hours. He finally turned up at Filand's store at Second and P streets.
