

LAST NIGHT'S BIG MEETING.

Party out of $22,000, and had said because he could not do it any longer that it would blackmail him and that he would not go to Congress. He had faith in their love for their dear ones; that they would rise in their might and set the seal of their condemnation on the infamous blackmailer and those that sympathized with him. (Applause.)

They were representatives of the Republican party, of the manhood of the people, of the interests of their homes. Their interests were greater than his. It extends to the city's future, and as long as it exists, he asks them to sustain him in this fight by their votes and support; not merely because he was a Republican, but because he had labored for Sacramento and done well for it—more, than all the Congressmen for twenty years had done.

If the forces of blackmail defeated him he should look back with pride at what he had done for the community. He had made a record that his children and grandchildren could be proud of; he had done well for the miners and citizens; his action would save costs and lawsuits in the future, and would be monument enough for him in their memories. He had settled the trouble forever. He had received letters of thanks, both from the Miners' Association and from the citizens of the valley, and therefore must have acted properly. He had kept his promise and made a record to be proud of. He had shown the people in Washington that there was such a place as Sacramento on the map.

He wanted to devote the remaining years of his life to the interests of the city. They had been his Assemblyman, Senator, and Congressman, and he asked them to round out his career by sending him back. He was the only Representative for ten years from this district that had made a speech on the floor of Congress and he felt that he had done his duty for the city.

A BUD WITHIN A BUD.

He thanked the clubs for the reception they had given him, and repelled with scorn the charge Jim Budd had made, that they had been coerced into supporting him. He had known them for many years; some of them were brothers in the judges' robes which he belonged to, some he had addressed as jurists; others he had met in the daily walks of life, and he counted them among his friends. No finer or more intelligent body of men were to be found anywhere. He hurried back the baseless slander that the Executive Budd had with a worm in it had cast upon them.

The applause was prolonged, and he had to wait for sometime before it became quiet. The idea, he said, of coercing free and intelligent citizens: It cannot be done and has not been attempted, as every man in the shops knows. So, too, with the other clubs. Have they been coerced? Have the Grand Army been coerced? Had those soldiers that he saw before him been coerced who bared their breasts to the storm of shot and shell to protect themselves and their fellows by supporting the Republican ticket.

In 1867 we shall see their faces marching with ballots and not with weapons upon Pennsylvania avenue to see the inauguration of a man who is a champion of protection. (Prolonged applause and cheers.)

Mr. Johnson was repeatedly cheered during his address and it was evident that the audience was in perfect sympathy with him and that it resented the slurs that had been cast upon him and them.

AT TURNER HALL.

T. V. Cator Talks to a Small, But Enthusiastic Crowd.

The Democrats and Populists held a meeting at Turner Hall last night, which was addressed by T. V. Cator, candidate for United States Senator.

The attendance was small, but all present were exceedingly enthusiastic. One man got out in the aisle when Cator arose to go upon the platform and danced a jig, all the time whooping for Cator.

The meeting was called to order by City Trustee McKay, who introduced Judge Craven as Chairman. The Judge made a short speech on assuming the chair, saying—

Very High Compliment From a Trinity Paper.

(From the Trinity Journal.) Deputy Attorney-General C. N. Post, well known in this county by reason of his able management of the Littlefield murder case, is a candidate for Superior Judge of Sacramento County on the Republican ticket.

Mr. Post is a well known and able lawyer, and has a brilliant, forcible speaker. He knows far more about the ins and outs of parties than the average citizen, and knows just about what to put into his speeches and what to leave out. He talked Populism by wholesale and retail last night, and so mixed it up with Democracy—or what the long ones, and racy—that men of both parties were carried away by their enthusiasm.

It was too small a meeting, however, for a man of Cator's caliber, and the speaker had no opportunity to impress his utterances on any Republican.

Women's Sunday Meeting—The Noon Rest and Other Features.

Bible study is to be one of the most prominent features of the Young Women's Christian Association's work this year.

Rev. W. C. Sherman, pastor of the Fourteenth-street Presbyterian Church, has consented to take a class, which will meet every other Thursday at 7:30 p. m., beginning November 5th. The intervening Thursdays will be occupied by the General Secretary's class in the study of the gospel by John. Any woman who wants to gain a deeper knowledge of the Bible will be welcome in either of the classes.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock Rev. Mr. Sherman will attend the women's meeting at the St. Francis home, in the Church of "The Need of Bible Study." These Sunday afternoon meetings are increasing in interest and attendance.

The noon rest and lunch department will be resumed on Monday, the 24, under a somewhat different plan from that hitherto followed. Small tables have been substituted for the long ones, and six young women have volunteered their services for the noon hour in the dining-room. No effort will be spared to make the association's rooms attractive and pleasant, and it is expected that many young women who are obliged to avail themselves of the opportunity to get away from their homes will be cheerfully served with the same conveniences as those who order from the menu. This department, like the educational work, Secretary Bezell aims to make simply self-sustaining—not a means of profit.

Noona musicales will be of frequent occurrence, and a fifteen-minute praise service will be held each Friday.

The reading and rest room is open daily, except Sunday, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., and all women will be cordially welcomed.

Thirteen different classes are working enthusiastically, and more are forming. New announcements have just been published, and can be obtained by applying at the rooms.

The vocal music class will have the first lesson on Monday at 7:30 p. m. A class in physical culture for girls from 10 to 14 is being formed. Applications for this and the ladies' morning class should be left early with the Secretary. The Friday and Saturday classes are doing fine work.

The Music, Mandolin and Guitar Club will meet at 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening for organization.

The normal Bible class, with Rev. Mr. Trefren as leader, will meet for the first time this fall on Saturday evening, beginning promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

KILLED ON THE TRACK.

An Unknown Man Crushed by a Train in Yolo.

An old man was struck by the Oroville train which arrived in this city at 4 o'clock p. m. yesterday, while walking on the track near Webster's siding, a few miles west of this city, and was instantly killed. His head was badly crushed, and his chest and limbs were reduced to pulp.

The engineer noticed the man ahead on the track, but thought nothing of the matter until the train neared him, when the whistle sounded, but with no result. The man was apparently deaf, and the engine struck him before he was aware of his danger. Death was evidently instantaneous.

The body was brought to this city and turned over to the Coroner. There was on the person of the deceased a pocket-knife, a piece of tobacco, a bar of soap and two slips of paper, on one of which was written the name, "P. T. Stark," and following it was an itemized account showing the bearer had been cutting wood. On the other side was written the words "Swan's" between Market and Mission on Fourth street.

Other than this there is no clew to the dead man, who was apparently 60 years old, had pleasant features, was scrupulously clean, and had evidently seen better days. Whether Stark was his name or not is not known. Swan's is a restaurant in the vicinity described.

AT IT AGAIN.

Steve Butler, Jr., Does Up His Enemy Horstmeier.

About a year ago Steve Butler, Jr. had trouble with a man named Horstmeier, who occupied a room in Butler's house. The difficulty was of a domestic nature, and the men gave different versions of the cause.

CRIMINALS ARRAIGNED.

They Plead Not Guilty and Their Trials Are Set.

Frank Holden was arraigned yesterday before Judge Hinkson and pleaded not guilty of the Wachhorst robbery, and his trial was set for November 17th. James Buford pleaded not guilty of grand larceny, and his trial was set for November 17th.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Hamilton Wallace of Stockton is visiting the city.

Miss Kate White of Oakland is a guest at the Golden Eagle.

Watson Chalmers, the veteran Chico Journalist, is visiting the city.

Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Eddy of San Francisco are at the Golden Eagle.

Ex-State Surveyor-General Robert Gardner has been spending several days here.

AMUSEMENTS.

At the Clunie Opera-house this evening for the last time the romantic pantomime drama, "The Ensign," Monday night.

Chief of Police Drew has detailed his force for the month of November as follows:

- Beat 1—D. W. Higgins, day; George E. Naghel, night. Beat 2—M. A. Pennish, day; J. A. Wilson, night. Beat 3—W. L. Talbot, day; M. Fisher, night. Beat 4—J. A. Douglas, day; G. W. McLean, night. Beat 5—J. P. Bagley, day; A. Green, night. Beat 6—G. W. Hayes, day; V. F. Taylor, night. Sergeants—J. P. McManus, day; J. J. Plunkett, night. Court Bailiff—W. J. Hardy. Patrol Drivers—H. Balz, day; J. Fitzgerald, night. Police Station at Night—J. F. Logue.

Take Tom Reed's Advice.

Should the people of Stockton desire to be benefited by the results of Republican administration and legislation they must take Tom Reed's advice and aid in securing a Republican Congress to enact such legislation. The dependence of a community on the patriotism of the other parts of the country is a relation to be fruitful of results. If the people of San Joaquin will not stand by its own Representative that has done most for them in the past, it deserves to enjoy prosperity of the special benefits that Republican success will bring.—Stockton Record.

Oak Park Silverites.

The Democratic and Populist county candidates will close their campaign at Oak Park Monday evening under the auspices of the Silver Club of that place. There will be a torchlight procession in which the People's Party Club and also the Democratic Bryan Club of this city will parade.

The Veteran Soldiers.

The veteran soldier will vote for Grove L. Johnson for Congress. It is his duty to do so. Mr. Johnson proved himself true to the bill in the last Congress for the increase of pensions from $6 and $8 to $12 per month. Every soldier who fought in defense of the flag ought to vote for Grove L. Johnson.—Mountain Echo.

Bryan's Panic.

Grove L. Johnson is opposed to Bryan's panic and to all the other measures of his party which have brought misery upon the country. Marion De Vries indorses all of Bryan's wild theories which Bryan admits will bring about a panic if indorsed by the people.—Stockton Independent.

Going Home to Vote.

Those of the State officials and employees in and about the Capitol building who do not reside in the city yesterday departed for their several homes in order to vote for the candidates of their choice. They will not return until the smoke of battle has cleared away.

Unjust and Indecent.

The "Examiner's" attack upon Grove L. Johnson has been unjust, indecent and uncalled for. People of Sacramento should resent the insults by giving him a big vote. Vote for him and learn that you are a lesson.—Sacramento County Ledger.

Hotel Arrivals.

Arrivals at the Golden Eagle Hotel yesterday: Hamilton Wallace, Stockton; Miss Kate White, Oakland; Ed. Ferguson, Cincinnati; C. H. Hirst, Louis Titus, J. P. McCarthy, W. H. Groat, T. V. Eddy and wife, R. F. Allen, F. Duffy, San Francisco; J. J. Eddy, New York.

Tricked to Kill Himself.

Yesterday a Japanese named I. No-naka, who was sick and despondent, tried to cut his throat with a pocket-knife, but was prevented from carrying out his purpose.

Again in Business.

John Bellmer, after a few months' needed rest, has engaged in his old business again. He and his son have purchased the grocery business of F. J. Deal at Tenth and N streets, and thoroughly renovated and restocked the store. Mr. Bellmer's long experience and well-known reputation for fair dealing is a guarantee that the store and the public will be treated right. "The best goods at lowest prices" will be their motto.

A NEGLECTED FRUIT.

It Belongs to the Orange Family and is Only Appreciated Here.

D. Morris, writing to the "Saturday Review" from Kew, says: "I have been asked more than once lately whether there is no fruit yet unknown to most English palates which might be introduced into this country and form a pleasant article of food. As there seems to be some general interest in the subject, your readers may perhaps like to hear of some fruits which have come under my notice.

"The pumelo of India, one of the giant members of the orange tribe, is well known to people who have lived in the East. Some very large specimens have been known to attain a circumference of more than two feet, and to weigh from fifteen to twenty pounds. Generally pumelos are not held in high esteem in India and Ceylon, except by those who have lived long there, and know how to select the best sorts by their size and color. The best Bombay pumelos are said to be exceptionally good. They have a pink pulp of a juicy character, are sweet in flavor, with a slight, but agreeably bitter taste.

"The first pumelos were brought to the West Indies by Captain Shaddock about 150 years ago. Since that time the fruit has always been known in that part of the world as the Shaddock. In compliment to the person who introduced it owing to circumstances of soil and climate, and to the raising of plants almost exclusively by seed, many varieties have sprung up that have become recognized by distinct names.

"Of the larger fruits the pumelo or Shaddock proper, there are two well-marked forms: the first is the apple-shaped Shaddock, usually with a whitish or pale pink pulp. The other is a pear-shaped fruit, with a pink and sometimes a deep crimson pulp. Both of these are large fruits, weighing from three to six pounds; they have the characteristic pale yellow skin, which is side there is a white pithy layer more or less thick; then comes the pulp with the vesicles or juice bags very prominent; indeed, the latter are so distinct that they can be easily separated one from another. The bitter flavor is very marked in the inferior sorts, but in some instances it becomes quite acid. The best sorts have a sweetish flavor and only a slight taste of bitter.

"Of the smaller fruits, which Macfadayan has given the name of Paradise fruits, there are in the West Indies two well-marked forms. The apple-shaped fruits are known as forbidden fruit, while the pear-shaped sorts are known as Barbados grape fruit. Both these are very attractive looking fruits; they have a pale yellow skin, usually very thin, are soft and silky to the touch, and are refreshing and refreshing. The slightly bitter flavor is regarded as giving them tonic properties of great value in dyspepsia and allied ailments.

"During the last fifteen years the Paradise fruits, generally known as grape fruit, have been in great demand in the United States, and are now very strongly recommended by the medical faculty, and in consequence their use has become an important feature in the diet of a large number of American people. The consumption of them has increased by leaps and bounds, and every year for the past few years has more than doubled. A few days ago, says "Garden and Forest," two barrels of small-sized grape fruit realized the extraordinary price of $1 each in New York, and seven barrels of similar fruit were sold in Philadelphia for $5.10, each.

"Such fruit would retail at more than $1 apiece. This is probably the highest price ever paid for specimens of the orange tribe. It shows very clearly how keen is the demand for grape fruit and what importance is attached to it as a refreshing and healthful adjunct to the food supply of the United States. At one time there was a better market for grape fruit—or rather forbidden fruit, as it was called—in the United Kingdom than in America. But the tables are now turned. America, especially California, is the great producer of these West India Islands which are in Florida, has now absorbed almost the whole supply from the West Indies.

"Sooner or later, however, English people will realize the special merits of the grape fruit, and a demand will arise for it, to the possible advantage of those West India Islands which are in a position to supply it. It would be well, therefore, for the people in that part of the world to establish small orchards of grape fruit trees of the best quality and to be prepared to ship the fruit in such a condition that they may get the best price for it. This would be one way of alleviating to some extent the depression under which they are now suffering, owing to the unremunerative character of the sugar industry."

Best Served Districts.

Those districts that have returned the same men to Congress for many years have always been the best served because their Representatives by their constant attendance at other meetings, as well as with Congressional affairs and methods, are able to exert influences which no new member can. For this reason those districts that send new men to Congress every term are apt to be ill served by the Representatives and neglected by others. The Second California District was an exception to this rule during the last Congress because it was represented by a man of unusual force of character, of unusual ability, with a ripe experience, extensive information, and a great familiarity with parliamentary affairs and the courage to break through the musty traditions of Congress which discourage a member in his first term.—Nevada Transcript.

His Own Great Trouble.

An old, bed-ridden fisherman at a fashionable watering-place was frequently visited during his last illness by a kind-hearted clergyman, who wore one of those close-fitting clerical vests which had been the fashion of the day. The clergyman saw the near approach of death one day in the old man's face, and asked if his mind was perfectly at ease.

"Oo ay, I'm a' rich," came the feeble reply.

"You are sure there is nothing troubling you? Do not be afraid to tell me."

The old man seemed to hesitate, and at length, with a faint return of animation, said: "Weel, there's just as a thing that troubles me, but I dinna like to speak o't."

"Believe me, I am most anxious to comfort you," replied the clergyman.

"Tell me what it is that troubles and perplexes you."

"Weel, sir, it's just like this," said the old man, eagerly. "I canna for the life o' me mak' oot hoo we manage ta get intae that westcoat!"—Tit-Bits.

A Little Surprise at Home.

Von Blumen—I had the most singular thing happen to me the other day. Did you ever go into a man's place to pay a bill you owed him and find him out? Flatly refused to pay (except seven) and K. Golden Eagle Hotel block.

"It did. I had a notion, or rather I nerved myself up to it, to settle up some bills that I owed. So on my way up from the office I dropped in to see my fishmonger."

"And he was out?"

"Correct. Then I tried my grocer."

"Right. Plenty of shopmen, but no proprietor. Of course I left word that I called in to settle up, but wanted to see the proprietor first. Dispute about bills. See?"

"Oh, yes, that straightens your credit."

"Exactly. Then I called to see my butcher, and I'll be hanged if he wasn't out also."

"By Jove, but you were in luck."

"No, I wasn't."

"Why not?"

"When I got home I found all of them waiting for me."—Western Figaro.
