

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

New York Herald: Quite naturally there are numbers of American writers who draw more or less of their inspiration from the French, English and German authors...

The American Dramatists' Club publishes annually a list of players and their authors that would be quite instructive reading to those who regard the native playwright as a harassed, hounded and downtrodden creature...

Ellen Beach Yaw, the soprano of wonderful register, is to appear at the Metropolitan Theater December 17th. She will be supported by Maximilian Dick, a violinist of whom the New York "Sun" says: "A young artist who lays claim to a brilliant future..."

La Lole Fuller, the spectacular dancer, who has created such a furore in the East and lately in San Francisco, and is on her way to China to play an engagement under patronage of Li Hung Chang, the Viceroy, is to appear with a vaudeville support at the Metropolitan Theater Thursday next.

Los Angeles Times: One word about Miss Yaw's wardrobe. It is nonsense to say that she "affects" this or that style. The poetic nature grasps at once at the fitness of one thing to another, and this gifted girl has not been left without the ability to design her own costumes.

Plays and Players: Manager D. W. Truss & Co's Wang Company had an amusing experience while playing recently in a Vermont town. As is well known, Vermont enjoys the distinction of being a prohibition State.

Lewis Jordan, head of the Flying Jordans, says that the danger in an aerial trapeze performance is of a minimum quantity. During his experience of twenty years he has met with only one accident. It occurred while giving a performance at the Riche-Halle, Berlin, about four years ago.

quite naturally, the unsuccessful works of obscure persons.

The great majority of plays produced in any part of the world are failures out and out. Even the men who have written the most successes, like Victorien Sardou, the late Dion Boucicault, Arthur W. Pinero, Henry Arthur Jones, George R. Sims, Augustin Daly, Bronson Howard, David Belasco and the late Bartley Campbell, have occasionally demonstrated that long practice and intimate knowledge by no means make the work of dramatic authorship at all certain in its results.

San Francisco Music and Drama: Lole Fuller is an American girl who has made a great hit abroad. In fact, it can be said she was never fully appreciated in her own country until she created a furore in Paris and London by her arrangement of dances that struck their fancy.
