

OPPENHEIM BONDS ARE SAFE.

Were Shown Yesterday in the Union Trust Company's Vaults.

Philip Oppenheim Returns From Canada and Exhibits the Bonds Intact.

After all the talk, and allegations, and gossip concerning Philip Oppenheim and the $50,000 in Government bonds held in trust for him by his mother, brother, sister and himself—

Indeed, Philip Oppenheim is now in San Francisco, where he arrived yesterday from Canada, and exhibited the bonds in the vaults of the Union Trust Company in the presence of Dr. W. R. Clives, C. W. Clarke and representatives of the "Record-Union" and two San Francisco papers.

In the latter part of last May Philip Oppenheim disappeared from San Francisco and was heard from in Canada a few days afterward, and then there were all sorts of speculations and surmises indulged in by the public and press. On the 3d of June, referring to this incident, the "Record-Union" said:

PHILIP'S FLIGHT. "Philip Oppenheim did not produce in San Francisco yesterday the $50,000 in Government bonds belonging to the estate of his deceased father, Raphael Oppenheim, as he was recently directed to do by Judge Brewster of Placer County, who presided at the trial of the case here in which Oppenheim's mother sought to have the court revoke the order by which the funds of the estate were placed in his keeping as trustee for the other members of the family.

"Hiram W. Johnson was on hand at the bank to which the bonds were to be turned over, and Judge Brewster also took occasion to go to the bank for the purpose of seeing that his order was properly and fully complied with.

"But the bonds did not put in an appearance, neither did Philip Oppenheim. A messenger was sent to his house, but all that could be learned there was that Oppenheim was in his country. It was subsequently learned that he took his departure very soon after Judge Brewster made his order, a couple of weeks ago, appointing T. M. Yates of Santa Rosa receiver of the estate pending the result of the litigation inaugurated by Oppenheim's mother to have the property taken out of his hands. It is said that Oppenheim is in Toronto, Canada.

"It has been claimed all along by Oppenheim that he had the bonds in safe keeping with the California Safe Deposit Company in San Francisco, but Mr. Johnson learned yesterday that Oppenheim has not had any boxes there at all.

"Oppenheim has been living in San Francisco since (and prior to) his father's death, and has been engaged in stock broking and other precarious occupations, and his mother's attorneys fear that the Government bonds left by his father have been invested and lost.

"A well-known citizen who has spoken to regarding the flight of Oppenheim, expressed the opinion that the situation is not as bad as it looks. He thought it not unlikely that Oppenheim had merely gotten out of the jurisdiction of the court in order to prevent the property being placed in his hands as receiver until the Supreme Court had had an opportunity to pass on the merits of the suit brought to oust him as trustee of the estate, which case he apparently believed would result in his favor."

HISTORY OF THE CASE.

In 1890 Raphael Oppenheim, an old and reputable merchant of Sacramento, died, leaving an estate worth about $80,000, and a family consisting of his wife, two sons and a daughter. By his will he devised all his property to his wife. The wife was made executrix of the will, and in August, 1891, the administration was closed in the Probate Court by decree distributing all the assets to the surviving wife.

She immediately thereafter conveyed by deed all the property to her elder son, Philip Oppenheim, who then ever since has resided in San Francisco, in trust to hold and pay the income to her during her natural life, and on her death to divide equally between himself, his brother and sister.

All the estate, except the widow's residence in this city, was at once delivered to Philip as such trustee, and he continued to hold and manage the estate and pay over the income to the widow until March, 1895, when a suit was brought in the name of the widow to have the deed of trust set aside.

This suit, it is claimed, was really brought at the instance of the younger son, Emanuel, who had continued to reside here, and most of the time with his mother, over whom he had great influence. Emanuel is a young man who is credited with a love for fast horses and an aversion to hard work.

The first borrowed of the trust estate, and then from time to time he prevailed upon all the parties in interest to be allowed to draw, in advance, upon his interest in the trust estate, until he had received the greater portion of his share. In March, 1895, he could obtain no further advances, and thereupon the suit was brought, in the name of his mother, to set aside the deed of trust.

Shortly after the suit was brought the old lady discovered to what extent her name was being used, and tried to have it dismissed. But Emanuel prevented her, and then in fear that she might succeed in dismissing the suit, filed a cross-complaint in which he attacked in his own name the deed of trust and also asked that his brother Philip be removed as trustee.

The case came to trial finally on May 5, 1896. At the trial an effort was made to have the trustee removed and a receiver appointed. But the trial was closed without the appointment of a receiver, and the case was taken under advisement by the court. On May 21, 1896, the Judge appointed a receiver, without any reflections upon the trustee's management.

When the receiver was appointed the only property remaining after the advancements to Emanuel was the widow's residence at Sacramento and $50,000 in United States bonds. The Judge directed that these bonds should be delivered to the receiver on June 23, at the vaults of the California Safe Deposit and Trust Company in San Francisco.

The 23d of June came, and the receiver went to the vaults of the Safe Deposit Company, but Philip Oppenheim, the trustee, came not. On inquiry it was learned that the trustee had several days before departed to Canada. No attempt had been made to serve the order appointing the receiver and directing the trustee to deliver the bonds to him, and hence it is claimed the trustee was not in contempt of court for not making the acquaintance of the receiver.

It has since developed that the trustee was fearful that the court might break the deed of trust and throw the whole estate back into the hands of the mother, where he feared the younger son would get it and squander it, hence he shifted the bonds to other vaults and betook himself to Canada.

Newspapers of this city and San Francisco came out with glaring headlines to the effect that Philip Oppenheim had betrayed his trust and fled to Canada. Shortly after Philip went to Canada he was indicted by the Grand Jury on an indictment against Philip for perjury in swearing at the trial of the case that he had the bonds in the vaults of the California Safe Deposit and Trust Company. The indictment for perjury was found, though the clerk of the Safe Deposit Company came to this city and testified that Philip Oppenheim had a box in the company's vaults. No attempt was ever made to extradite Philip, but the indictment was used by the younger brother to keep him away.

The bonds being in San Francisco and Philip in Canada, he could not get at the coupons, and pretty soon Emanuel began to complain to the court that Philip was withholding the income and starving his aged mother. This move on the part of Emanuel seemed to have greatly disturbed the Judge, and he made an order, at Emanuel's request, that the residence be mortgaged to raise funds for Mrs. Oppenheim to live on.

When the old lady heard that her home was to be mortgaged, she got out and made a move herself. She demanded a hearing before the court, and on the 23d of December, 1896, she went into court and compelled a substitution of attorneys in her behalf and declared that the suit was never brought as prosecuted in her name, was never authorized by her, and then and there demanded dismissal.

MUCH IN DEMAND.

Eastern People Interested in California Weather Reports.

To show the appreciation of the weekly crop bulletin of the Weather Bureau, as issued by the State Agricultural Society, as well as the Monthly Weather Bureau reports of California, issued by the same society, quotations are taken from letters received recently:

"The Cutting Fruit Packing Company of San Francisco, writing to Edwin F. Smith, Secretary of the State Agricultural Society, under date of the 27th, says:

"We have in some unaccountable way lost a copy of your weekly crop reports for 1896 and we find it of much interest and value, would ask that you mail us a duplicate set, at the same time placing our name on your mailing list to receive the report for the coming season of 1897."

A letter in reference to the monthly weather service was received yesterday by Director Hancock from George E. King, Assistant General Passenger and Ticket Agent of the Michigan Central Railway Company of Chicago, in which he says:

"Having made a small investment in California, I am naturally somewhat interested in the weather reports. If it is consistent, I should be glad if I could be put on the list for a copy of your monthly weather review."

Mr. Parwick has compiled with both requests, and has sent a complete set of the weekly crop bulletins for 1896 to the Cutting Fruit Packing Company and has placed Mr. King of Chicago on the mailing list and also forwarded to him a number of back reports of the weather review.

This shows that our weather reports, weekly and monthly, are appreciated both at home and abroad.

A PINK DOMINO.

Ladies of the Eastern Star Entertain Their Husbands and Brothers.

The members of Naomi Chapter, No. 31, Order of the Eastern Star, showed their Masonic brothers how to get up an entertainment they could enjoy.

The ladies wanted to let the brethren know that there was every reason why the old rule should be relaxed, and that they would like to see a Master Mason, as there has been a fellowcraft, so they provided a "mouse-trap" into which all the Master Masons fell. It was in the nature of a pretty little farce.

Of course they did not understand all the rigid rules of initiation, or they would never have fixed up the "trap," in which the participants were: Mrs. Somers, Miss Bonnie Waggoner; Mrs. Campbell, Robert Joy; Mrs. Curwin, Miss Clara Keber; Mrs. Beams, Mrs. W. A. Gett; Mrs. Miller, Miss Minnie Newman; Mr. Robert Call, Pearl Waggoner; Jane, Mrs. E. B. Willis.

Before the trap was sprung a very delightful quartet, "The Chimes," was rendered by Mrs. E. B. Willis, Miss Eva Reeves, Mrs. F. M. Jones and Mrs. C. Macfarlane, which called forth rounds of applause.

There were a number of selections, both before and after the trap was sprung, by Neale's Orchestra, and a delightful solo by Miss Hattie Nelson.

Then there was a pink domino dance that was kept up as long as the ladies could keep their legs from dancing on the floor.

LADIES' NIGHT.

Odd Fellows Offer Their Feminine Friends a Rare Treat.

A large number of persons assembled in Temple Hall of the Odd Fellows' Temple last evening to take part in the eighth ladies' night of Capitol Lodge, No. 87, I. O. O. F., and thoroughly enjoyed the fine musical and literary program that was offered for their amusement. After its close all adjourned to the banquet hall and partook of refreshments. The programme was as follows:

Opening remarks by Chairman W. A. Stephenson; piano solo, Miss Eva Brown; vocal solo, Miss E. G. Smith; violin solo, Miss E. G. Smith; recitation, Miss Fredrica Ross; Polish dance, Miss Edna Ferriter; piano solo, Miss M. Dupuy; tenor solo, Frank Bell; house recitation, Miss M. Carmichael; quartet, Achille Club Quartet, Messrs. Brier, Johnson, Smith and Keeney; duet, clarinet and piano, St. Clair Moore and Miss Clara Burnett.

Joe Murphy had a good show at the Metropolitan Theater last night. The play was "Shaan Rhue." The support was good throughout. The play is a simple story of life among the lowly in Ireland, that makes some who care it anything but unprofitable. Murphy's play serves its best purpose in giving Murphy and most of the other players excellent opportunity to present Irish peasants in character with ease and grace, and without the exaggeration of the stage Irishman as the day gives us, if indeed he is not the best of the time. His work is clean cut, sparkling and attractive, and he gets very far into the sympathies of his audience without appearing to do so. His leading lady, Miss Elberts, is very clever, very comely and of good stage presence, and Misses Perrell and Italia are not inferior to her. The latter's assumption of the part of the "Softy" boy was, indeed, an artistic bit of work. The men of the company are all large, strong and manly men, in contrast to the very diminutive stature of the women. There will be no matinee to-day, as at first intended. To-night Murphy and his company in "Kerry Gow," an Irish comedy drama in four acts. The troupe does not leave here until to-morrow evening, so that no fear need be entertained that there will be any cutting of the play to-night.

At the Clunie Opera-house this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and this evening at 8, the Leavitt Vaudeville Company, No. 2, in the full programme of music, song, dance, feats of strength, equilibrium, contortion, clown acts, etc.—a varied and very satisfactory variety. There is not a dull nor uninteresting number in the programme.

The song recital of the Bogart Concert Company, under the direction of Francis Stuart, will be given this evening at the Congregational Church to a large and most appreciative audience. The numbers upon the programme were in the line of the latest so-called London method—that of resurrecting the old
