

claim until spring. Meanwhile the lawyer is responsible for its condition, and it eats eight baits of hay a day.

A curious accusation of German imitation of British goods comes from the Transvaal. Cornish miners are in great demand in the gold fields on account of their skill, and receive higher wages than others. It is asserted that Germans there assume Cornish names and imitate the Cornish accent well enough to pass themselves off for the original article.

The United States authorities declare that there is no other post in the country where so much trouble is caused by drunkenness among soldiers of the regular army as there is at Fort Preble in Portland, Me. Probably soldiers drink no more in Portland than they do elsewhere, but in Maine, as in all prohibition States, the liquor sold is adulterated as to be poisonous and almost maddening in its effects.

MISS CATHERINE CLEMMONS. The Lady Who It is Announced is to Wed Howard Gould.

Much interest is manifested in the betrothal of Howard Gould and Miss Katherine Clemmons. The Gould family is silent upon the matter and it is not known whether or not they oppose it. If Howard Gould marries against the wishes of his brothers and sisters, his share of his father's fortune, in accordance with Jay Gould's will, will be reduced one-half and this would, in his case, amount to about $5,000,000.

Miss Clemmons is a very beautiful and charming woman. Her name, of the stage, is Viola Dayan. She was born in Illinois, but lived for some years in San Francisco, where she was one of the most beautiful women who were prominent in high social circles. As an actress she was not a great success. There can be no doubt that Howard Gould is very much in love with her, and the match will be purely a love affair.

A Parody on the Present.

What thought a lassie don the brook, W' ho bloomers braes and a' that? We bend in adoration, meek And are her slaves, for a' that. For a' that and a' that, The wheel bestrid and a' that; Blythe Cupid's eyes heed no disguise, She shall be wooed, for a' that. The world may tremble at her call, W' ho bonnet duff and a' that; Her voice will fill the council hall, She bids a lass for a' that. For a' that and a' that, Our duds usurped and a' that. The one who marries to the gowd, He is the man, for a' that. —Washington Star.

He Got There First.

There is a small town in one of the Eastern States, not far from Boston, whose inhabitants take great pride in their excellent town in their vicinity. They try every new invention, and if it has any sort of merit it is sure to be assigned to duty in some part of the place. Two worthy gentlemen, one a sea captain and the other a lawyer, both retired from active life, were the prime movers in the experiments and adoptions, and, naturally, in the course of time they failed to agree. Extreme jealousy then prevailed, and a bitter animosity sprang up between them. Unfortunately, these two gentlemen lived next door to each other—in fact, so close were their houses that the side walls almost adjoined. One very windy night the lawyer was reading a book in his study when a terrific crash upstairs startled him. Upon investigation he found that an unruly chimney had ruthlessly hurled itself through his roof, doing considerable damage. That in itself was a matter of great annoyance, but when he discovered it was the sea captain's chimney that was responsible, his wrath knew no bounds. Hastening down to his library, he pulled out his law books and hunted up similar cases, devising and scheming how he could secure satisfaction from the detestable Captain. While thus engaged advice arrived from his enemy that read as follows: "Sir—If you don't return those bricks at once, I will put the matter in the hands of the law."—Harper's Round Table.
