

EXPERTS REPORT ON PUMP.

The New One Meets All Requirements of Contract.

Trustees Accept It and Make the Final Payment on It - Mayor's Messages.

The City Board of Trustees met in regular weekly session last night, Trustees Leonard, Wachhorst, Kent, Davis, McKay, Tozer, Bentley, Devine and Pennish being present.

L. T. Hatfield addressed the board in relation to the request of Thomas Hague that it would rescind its action in regard to the extension of Y street, outside the levee, granting certain privileges to the Natural Gas Well Company.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

At the last meeting of the Board of Directors he was instructed to ask Mr. Hague for an abstract of title.

Mr. Hatfield said that the company had signed a contract for the purchase of the land and when Mr. Hague had informed it concerning the title to the land, the first thing he knew was the application made by the board for opening Y street.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

Mr. Hatfield said that the company had signed a contract for the purchase of the land and when Mr. Hague had informed it concerning the title to the land, the first thing he knew was the application made by the board for opening Y street.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

Mr. Hatfield said that the company had signed a contract for the purchase of the land and when Mr. Hague had informed it concerning the title to the land, the first thing he knew was the application made by the board for opening Y street.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

Mr. Hatfield said that the company had signed a contract for the purchase of the land and when Mr. Hague had informed it concerning the title to the land, the first thing he knew was the application made by the board for opening Y street.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

Mr. Hatfield said that the company had signed a contract for the purchase of the land and when Mr. Hague had informed it concerning the title to the land, the first thing he knew was the application made by the board for opening Y street.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

Mr. Hatfield said that the company had signed a contract for the purchase of the land and when Mr. Hague had informed it concerning the title to the land, the first thing he knew was the application made by the board for opening Y street.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

Mr. Hatfield said that the company had signed a contract for the purchase of the land and when Mr. Hague had informed it concerning the title to the land, the first thing he knew was the application made by the board for opening Y street.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

Mr. Hatfield said that the company had signed a contract for the purchase of the land and when Mr. Hague had informed it concerning the title to the land, the first thing he knew was the application made by the board for opening Y street.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

Mr. Hatfield said that the company had signed a contract for the purchase of the land and when Mr. Hague had informed it concerning the title to the land, the first thing he knew was the application made by the board for opening Y street.

Mr. Keyes read the contract and claimed that the company did not owe Mr. Hague a dollar and had carried out all its agreements with him.

Mayor were received:

To the Honorable Board of Trustees: For the purpose of enabling the District Attorney to legally cancel the taxes on the delinquent tax list, and to clear the titles to the property on which such taxes have been paid under the contract which is the board made with M. R. Beard, it becomes necessary for the amount of such collections to be paid into the hands of the District Attorney, who will then relinquish all claim for the amounts due him. It will, therefore, be necessary for the Auditor to draw a warrant for the amount which the city has received on the delinquent taxes, and after such amount shall have passed through his office, it will be returned to the city.

Mr. Beard will also have to pay to the District Attorney the amounts which he has received under said contract, so that the District Attorney can certify that the full amount of these taxes have passed through his hands, and this, I am informed, Mr. Beard is willing to do. The District Attorney will then release all of the property upon which taxes have been paid from the operation of the lien of such taxes. Respectfully submitted,

C. H. HUBBARD, Mayor.

To the Honorable Board of Trustees: I herewith return to you, with my approval indorsed thereon, Ordinance No. 1, entitled "An ordinance declaring the intention of the Board of Trustees of the city of Sacramento to establish the grade of the intersection of Eighth and S streets."

Also, with my approval, ordinance No. 2, entitled "An ordinance requiring cement sidewalks to be colored a dark slate color." Respectfully submitted,

C. H. HUBBARD, Mayor.

Kent moved that the recommendation of the Mayor in relation to the delinquent taxes be adopted and it was so ordered.

THAT COMPLAINT. The complaint to which the Mayor referred was that Officer Pennish had referred for some stock in the Commercial Building and Loan Association and that the complainant had paid $100 on it, on the promise of the officer to return the money on February 1st, when he received his pay. Pennish had received his stock, but did not repay the money to the complainant, S. Voorzanger.

Pennish said that he was familiar with the circumstances, his brother having consulted him in regard to it, and he having advised him to have nothing to do with the association, as he had no confidence in it, thinking it promised more than it could perform.

On motion of Bentley, the matter was referred to the Finance Committee, which will hear both parties.

COMMITTEE REPORTS. A number of bills and salaries were allowed.

Tozer, for the Finance Committee, reported in relation to the proposition for taking the city census, that the Board of Education thought it could be done for $225 extra.

He was requested to confer with the Board of Education and ascertain if it would take the census for that amount.

Wachhorst reported favorably on the plans and specifications for the building for storing the city's tools and the matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

He also reported that eight benches for the Trustees' room would cost $32, and they were ordered made.

He further reported that he had placed an insurance of $1,500 on the old Y street pumping plant.

Devine, for the Street Committee, reported that Mr. Lindenmeyer complained of a tank that stands in front of his house and prevents him from getting a tenant, as it overflows into the street.

The Superintendent of Streets was instructed to have a cover placed on the tank and a valve put in the pipe, the sprinkling driver to keep the trench.

Devine also reported that the committee had conferred with the Humane Society and had agreed that the salary of the Poundmaster should be $125 a month, the profits of the pound to go to the society, which proposes in time to buy ground for the pound, to be drawn up by the Corporation Counsel, and it was so ordered.

NO TAX ON WATER. Devine's ordinance to license water companies came next, and he thought he should reduce the proposed license from $100 a month to $15. He found that much disease had been introduced in the city by the Blue Canyon water, but the citizens did not seem to be aware of the fact. It would be a triumph for decency if the company were shut out.

drinking pure water. He did not see how any man in his senses could advocate so preposterous an ordinance.

Kent wanted to lay the matter over for a week, to take it under consideration, but the ordinance was defeated, only Kent and Devine voting for it, and Wachhorst not voting.

MISCELLANEOUS. Pennish opposed the granting of a license to Ben Durra, at Front and L streets, saying it was only a lodging-house for hobos. Wachhorst moved to lay the matter over for a week, and the motion carried.

The appointment of George W. Herr as special policeman for the Board of Health was confirmed by a vote of 8 to 0.

Bids for the 8,000-gallon sewage pump were opened, the bidders being: J. A. Cunningham, $975; Schaw, Ingram, Batcher & Co., $1,150; Byron Jackson, $985; Park & Lacy Company, $1,100; Krogh Manufacturing Company, $985. The bids were referred to the Finance Committee.

Bids for the sewer's lease of the public square at B and C, Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth were: Mrs. H. Schindler $25, Mrs. Moore $4 a month. The lease was awarded to the latter and a contract ordered drawn up.

The Street Committee and the Superintendent of Streets were instructed to prepare sprinkling specifications and present them next week.

Kent said that the Chief Engineer thought the floor of the addition to Engine House No. 1 should be of cement instead of wood. The Chief Engineer was instructed to have a cement floor put in.

The report of the experts on the test of the new Allis pump and boilers was read, showing a satisfactory test.

The experts also reported on the Stevens and Holly pumps, showing that both are in bad shape and in fair condition for from $1,500 to $1,800. This report was referred to the Water Committee.

The report on the new pump was filed and the pump accepted and sureties released.

The remainder of the price was allowed to the company, in consideration of the fact that instead of six months, as originally expected, the contract had been extended to about two years and the company guaranteeing all breakage for ninety days that was due to imperfections.

The bills of the experts, who had done a thorough job, were allowed, amounting to $700.

McKay stated he had been informed that one of the engineers at the Water Works was drunk and the Water Committee was instructed to investigate and report next week.

A resolution abolishing the positions of the two coal passers at the Water Works was adopted unanimously and the necessity of employing an officer was referred to the Water Committee.

Resolutions of intention to improve the alley between F and G, Ninth and Tenth, and the alley between Fifteenth and Sixteenth, H and I with sewers were passed.

The improvement of Ninth street from O to Q with macadam was ordered, as was the improvement of K street from Fourteenth to Fifteenth with macadam.

The Corporation Counsel said that there was no power in any one except the Justices to issue warrants late at night, or at any other time, as had been asked.

An application to connect directly with the M street sewer between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets was granted, Tozer opposing it for the reason that the Board of Health protests against it, and the board adjourned.

BELLE IS BACK. On February 22nd Belle Davis had an altercation with a companion whom she struck on the back with a bottle, inflicting an ugly wound. A warrant was issued for her arrest, charging her with having committed an assault with a deadly weapon.

The police, however, were unable to locate her, and her whereabouts were unknown until yesterday morning when she walked into the police station and voluntarily gave up. She will be arraigned before Justice Davis this morning, at which time her preliminary examination will probably be set.

Notaries Public. Governor Budd has appointed the following Notaries Public: J. B. Lanette, Oakland; E. O. Larkins and John F. Jordan, Visalia; Chas. H. Brown, San Diego; Wm. Adams, Hornitts; L. A. Desmond, Highland; A. E. Percival, Lodi; H. W. Chenoweth, Anaheim; F. M. Porter, W. F. Jacobs, W. B. Hayes, R. W. Poindexter, Edwin A. Meserve, C. W. Chase, Edwin Baxter, O. W. Krause, E. R. Therkeld, J. C. Oliver, A. E. Halstead, Ralph J. Dominguez, Chas. Lantz, J. Murphy, W. B. Scarborough, E. W. Lewis, Cal. F. Hunter, Wm. Pollard, W. M. Caswell, Alice J. Stevens, W. H. Allen, George W. Parsons and J. H. Preston, Los Angeles; E. C. Denio, Long Beach; Samuel W. Burke, Rivera; R. E. Nickel, Acton; W. F. Siegel, Clements; N. C. Burch, Tropeo; John S. Fox, J. D. Glaesner, Soldiers Home, Los Angeles County; Edwin F. Wright, Auburn.

GAMES MUST BE CLOSED.

Sweeping Resolution Introduced by Bentley

And Adopted by the Board of Trustees, Devine Alone Voting No.

A sensation was sprung last night at the meeting of the Board of Trustees, the result of which will be watched with some interest.

Bentley introduced a resolution requiring the Chief of Police to immediately close all gambling games, lotteries, existing or being promoted in violation of the law; to submit a statement in writing on Monday night, April 5th, setting forth:

(1) What games have been suppressed since the passage of the resolution; (2) what illegal games, if any, are supposed to exist, but for any reason whatever have not been suppressed; (3) why such games have not been suppressed; (4) what steps are necessary to ensure closing of such games and the full and prompt enforcement of the law; also that the Chief make similar statements in writing in his regular monthly reports.

Devine opposed the resolution, saying he had hoped that the matter would be allowed to remain in the same position that it was during the former administrations, by which the gamblers were arrested at stated periods and fined $100. It had brought considerable revenue to the city and he thought it a large revenue.

Bentley said he had talked with Devine about the resolutions and the latter had asked him not to present them, but he believed it his duty to do so. The law of the State prohibits gambling and the board has no right to place itself above the law and allow it to go on without an effort to suppress it.

Devine argued that, although it was the law, it would be better to do as he claimed they did in Maine. There is a liquor law there, he said, but liquor is sold and about once a year the sellers are arrested and fined $500, which produces a large revenue.

McKay disputed the statement and said that when he was in Maine he never found a place where he could get a drink.

That is because you didn't know where to go, said Devine.

Kent said the law should be carried out as long as it is on the statute books and he should vote for the resolution.

Davis said he, too, would vote for it, as he believed the law should be enforced.

The resolution was adopted, Devine alone voting no.

WEATHER NOTES. Director Barwick Discourses on Dew Points, Frost, Etc.

The Weather Bureau reports show the highest and lowest temperatures yesterday to have been 51 and 36 degrees, with fresh to brisk northerly winds and clear weather prevailing.

The highest and lowest temperatures one year ago yesterday were 64 and 47 degrees, and one year ago today 57 and 47 degrees.

There was a heavy frost yesterday morning in this vicinity, and heavier outside the city. Red Bluff and vicinity had a killing frost, where the lowest temperature reached 27 degrees. Oregon also had low temperatures, showing a cool or frost wave on its way southward.

Heavy frosts are predicted for this morning.

The average temperature yesterday was 46 degrees, while the normal is 58 degrees. Yesterday was the coldest for 14 days colder than the average for March 29th.

The dew point at 5 p. m., yesterday was 26 degrees, which is 6 degrees below the freezing point.

Hotel Arrivals. Arrivals at the Golden Eagle Hotel yesterday: Hermann Kind, M. Yachs, M. Vorsari and wife, New York; O. B. Grupe, Los Angeles; H. L. Whitman, St. Louis; L. W. Leavitt, Oakland; Geo. A. Fisher, Misses Rosenthal, C. N. McLouth, F. C. DeLong, H. Danker, San Francisco.

IT RAINED OYSTER SOUP.

Yarn of an Engineer—How He Saved His Train.

He was more than an ordinary accomplished liar for he asked him for a story.

"I can tell you how I once ran an engine and saved a trainload of people with an oyster stew if you want to know, but I don't think of anything more exciting than that," he said, apologetically.

"That's good enough," they declared. "Give us that."

"All right, then; here goes," he said, as he settled back in his chair. "I was once engineer on a road that ran for a long distance through the forests of Northern Wisconsin, and I was frequently bothered by forest fires. They were particularly bad at the time I speak of. One day I had run through one big blaze, only to find that there was a bigger one ahead. The worst of it was we were low on water and there was no chance to fill the tank without dashing through the fire ahead of us. I sent the fireman out to see if we had enough to make the run, but he came back and told me the tank was almost dry.

"I was puzzled for awhile. It was death to all of us I knew to stay there, but how to get out was the question. Suddenly a happy thought struck me. There was a milk car just behind the first baggage and I made for it. 'How much milk have you got?' I says to the fellow in charge. 'About forty cans, I guess,' he answered. 'Why do you ask?' 'Never mind,' says I. 'I want to know if those cans in the corner?' 'Oysters,' he answered. 'But why do you want to know?' 'Never you mind, I told him, and then I ordered the other train hands who had come out to see why we had stopped to come up to the tank and those oysters up to the engine. They did it in spite of the kicking of the milkman, and when they had brought them up I ordered them all chucked into the tank. The conductor came up, too, and declared it was a funny notion to be making oyster stew in an engine boiler when we were in danger of being burned alive, but I soon convinced him that it was necessary if we did not want to stay there and roast.

"Well, we finally dumped in all the milk and all the oysters and started ahead. You ought to have smelled the steam that came back into that engine cab. It would have made you think of an old-time church festival, 'wouldn't you?' 'How that soup did smell!' I made the engine jump, though, and that was all we wanted. We got up a great head of steam in no time, and the way we plunged through that next fire belt was a caution. As we pulled up at the station just beyond I opened up and began to whistle. A great cloud of oyster soup or vapor shot into the sky, of course, and didn't come down till we were out of sight. Then it settled like a thick fog, oysters, soup, and all. Everybody noticed it, of course, and there was a country scientist in the town who was sure it was the greatest phenomenon of the age. It was raining oyster soup up there, he was sure, and the next issue of the weekly papers were full of it—not the soup, but the news of it. After the residents up that way had all swallowed it—not the soup, but the story—we told them about it, and that was the silliest looking scientist I ever saw."—Chicago Times-Herald.

THE SNOBBERY OF EDUCATION. The College Girl Who Affects an Air of Superiority.

Editorially, in the "Ladies' Home Journal," Edward W. Bok expresses himself vigorously in deprecation of the tendency to produce a dangerous element of snobbery into education. He notes the prevailing "I know so much" air that is encountered on all sides, and the feeling that a line is being drawn on a so-called educational basis.

Mr. Bok contends that "an educational process which sharpens and polishes only a girl's intellect, and leaves her dead, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. * * * The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and smacks of the worst kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college-trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how humble I am in my opinion, and the better educated I learn: it is an attitude which few of us are; to reticent of our own opinion when everyone around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But is the girl fresh from her books and colleges, or neglects her heart or soul,