

REPUBLICAN SENATORS MEET IN CAUCUS.

Discuss for Four Hours the Rates of Duty Fixed by the New Tariff Bill.

Wide Divergence of Opinion on the Various Schedules.

A Great Deal of Opposition Developed to the Increased Tax on Beer and the Duty on Leather, Senators Platt of New York, Hanna and Spooner Being Especially Vigorous in Opposing the Former Schedule.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Republican caucus to-day emphasized the fact that there is a wide divergence of opinion among the Republican Senators as to the rates of duty fixed in the various schedules of the tariff bill. The Senators were in caucus nearly four hours. The only official announcement that was made after the caucus adjourned was that it was decided to appoint three Senators in addition to the Republican members of the Finance Committee who were to act as a committee to assist in getting the tariff bill through the Senate. It was generally stated, however, that an agreement had been reached that there should be no set speeches on the bill from the Republican side, except that of Senator Aldrich, which is to be delivered tomorrow.

A resolution of memorandum offered by Senator Burrows was agreed to by those present. It sets forth that the sense of those present, there not being a full attendance of the caucus, is that the Republican Senators having amendments to offer should present them to the Republican members of the Finance Committee, and if the amendments are approved by the committee, they are to be offered in the Senate. If disapproved, the Senators presenting them are to have the right to submit them to the Republican caucus, which is to be called upon each separate amendment. The Finance Committee is to hold sessions each evening for the purpose of hearing propositions from Republican Senators, and to decide upon the advisability of presenting such propositions to the Senate. The object of this proposition is to prevent the Republicans from dividing up on the various schedules which might be presented. The necessity of this arrangement was developed by the debate and the various contentions of Senators.

In the early part of the caucus Senator Allison was called upon for an explanation of the bill and some of the amendments. During the remarks Senator Cullom called for a statement on the sugar schedule, over which there had been so much controversy. The explanation presented was largely technical, but the Senators who heard him understood that the House schedule would largely exclude the coarse and low grades from Java, the Philippine Islands and other points. The protection in the Senate bill was 75 per cent, and equivalent in high protection on low grades and high grades. The effect of the House schedule would be to shut out the lower and cheaper grades of sugar, the system of compound duties presented by the Senate bill was 75 per cent, with a differential of 1/2 of a cent on refined sugar. Senator Aldrich said that this was not an advantageous one to the sugar refiners as the House bill. The explanation seemed to cause general satisfaction. At least, no one questioned the Senator further.

There was some discussion upon the length of time the bill should be under discussion in the Senate. Senator Mason suggested that as soon as the opening speech was made a vote should be taken toward having a vote on the bill in two weeks. It was decided to ask that after the debate had run along for a week the Senate begin its sessions at 11 o'clock, and sit until 5:30, and have evening sessions from 8 to 11.

Debate on various schedules consumed the time of the caucus. A great deal of opposition was given to the increased tax on beer and the duty on leather. Senators Platt of New York,

Hanna of Ohio and Spooner of Wisconsin were especially vigorous in their opposition to the increased tax on beer. It was pointed out that the Democrats had already stated their opposition to this tax; that they thought it would be wise to have an arrangement effected which would relieve Republican Senators from embarrassment. It was determined that efforts should be made to secure the revenue both from beer and tea by a tax, which would accomplish the same result.

Western Senators referred to the wool schedules. Senator Warren of Wyoming, appearing as the spokesman for the wool-growers of the West, said that the duties proposed by the committee were, in his judgment, inadequate, and he thought there should be some increase on the lines of the amendments proposed by the Western Senators.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts spoke against the duty on hides, saying he did not see how he could avoid voting for an amendment which proposed placing hides on the free list. His statement raised a storm among Western men, who said if such a method were proposed they will be compelled to vote for placing certain articles on the free list or for reducing them. They did not expect that the Democrats would vote with them to increase duties. The Westerners announced that they would vote to reduce the duty on articles which their people purchased and did not produce. It was this state of affairs that brought forth the proposition of Senator Burrows to submit proposed changes to the Republican members of the Finance Committee and then to caucus. There was no talk of holding, and no Senator said he would vote against the bill as a whole. It was on the matter of schedules that they disagreed.

The question of abrogating the Hawaiian tariff caused a lively debate. Senator Aldrich stated that the committee intended to bring in an amendment to this portion of the bill.

Senator Frye opposed its abrogation in the strongest possible terms, while Senator Nelson of Minnesota made a vigorous speech in support of the amendment, declaring that the revenue which would be raised from the duty on Hawaiian sugar would be greater than that which the committee expected to get from tea. He declared that the admission of Hawaiian sugar free was in the interest of the sugar refiners, as consumers received no benefit from it.

An African Delicacy.

The flesh of the elephant is eaten in its entirety by several of the African tribes. A detail of the process of butchering the animal is given in the following. The tools used are the assegai and hatchets. The rough outer skin is first removed in large sheets. Beneath this is a subcuticle, a pliable membrane from which the natives make water skins. The elephant yields large quantities of fat, used in cooking and for making candles. The fat is also used in the preparation of vegetables. African explorers of the Caucasian race agree that one part of the elephant's carcass, when properly cooked, is a succulent dish that will regale the most delicate taste. This part, very strange, is the first joint of the leg below the knee, which one would suppose to be the toughest portion of the animal. To prepare the joint a hole three feet deep is dug in the earth, and the sides of it are baked hard by means of large live coals. Most of the coals are then taken out, and the elephant's foot is placed in the dirt oven. The hole is then filled with dirt, tightly packed, and a blazing fire is built on top, which is kept replenished for three hours. The foot is thus evenly baked, and when done, instead of strong, tough meat, is a gelatinous consistency that may be eaten with a spoon.—Public Opinion.

Old Stock.

"D-n that Shelby," said Senator Harris once, as the tall form of the soldier disappeared through the door. "I don't care where he got the impudence to speak to me at all. Me an' Pap Price an' Gov. Allen of Louisiana were down at Carlotta when that rebel chicken-stealer came along. We had fixed up a little distillery, an' I had made 'frantic' whiskey the finest liquor, sub, you ever tasted. This Shelby drank one bottle of it the first day. Next mornin' we had to drive ova the plantations. We let him at the house an' he drank two mo' bottles of it, sub. 'What became of the other bottle?' he asked a listener. 'We used it an' drunk it, sub.' 'How long did you keep it, Senator?' 'Fo' days, sub.'—Chicago Times-Herald.

SAVED THE COUNTY THE EXPENSE OF A TRIAL.

James Berry Pleads Guilty of the Murder of His Wife at Modesto.

Asked That the Penalty be Fixed as Soon as Possible.

Two Men Who Were in the Act of Robbing the Sluice Boxes of a Placer Mine Near Kirby, Oregon, Shot by the Night Watchman—One Instantly Killed and the Other Mortally Wounded.

MODESTO, May 24.—James Berry, colored, who shot his wife last Wednesday, was brought up for arraignment to-day. Against the advice of his attorneys, he pleaded guilty, after being informed that he would be hanged for the crime. This afternoon witnesses who had testified at the examination again gave their evidence of Berry's cold and deliberate shooting of his wife, for whom he had searched for two days. When the prisoner took the stand he stated that he was guilty, and wanted to be hanged, and that all the mercy of the court he wanted was that the penalty be fixed as soon as possible, to-morrow preferably. Berry stated that under the same circumstances he would again kill her. He said she had done him wrong two years ago, and he told her if she repeated the offense he would kill her, and he had kept his word.

Judge Minor fixed time for sentence for to-morrow, adding that the crime was murder in the first degree, without extenuating circumstances. The penalty will be death by hanging. Berry's demeanor was most astounding, and he was the only cool man in the court-room.

Mrs. Berry, the murdered woman, was a popular domestic, and supported her husband, who is indolent. Berry is quite intelligent, and fully appreciates his position.

WILL OF JACOB Z. DAVIS.

The Contest Over the Estate Begun Before Judge Coffey.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—The trial of the contest of the late millionaire Jacob Z. Davis, of Delaker, commenced before Judge Coffey and a jury to-day. Davis died in Philadelphia last October, leaving an estate valued at over a million dollars. His partner, Alexander Boyd, and G. Mastick, his attorney, made diligent search among the effects of the deceased, but were unable to find and will save an old one, by the terms of which Davis left all his property to his wife, who died before him. Three weeks later, however, the document now of record for probate was discovered by the husband of one of the heirs in the mysteriously sealed urn containing the ashes of the late millionaire's property was left to his niece, Mrs. Belle Curtis and Miss Lizzie Muir, who now offer it for probate.

Other relatives of the deceased contest this will, upon the ground of alleged forgery, and some sensational developments are expected during the course of the trial.

DEATH OF LILLIAN HATTERY.

Trial of "Dr." Hastings on a Charge of Murder Begun.

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—The trial of "Dr." Calvin S. Hastings, charged with the murder by malpractice of Miss Lillian Hattery, was this morning begun before Judge Smith. The entire day was consumed in securing a jury. Miss Hattery was a young woman from San Bernardino, whom Hastings claimed he had been treating for a sprained ankle by an electric method, and that while being treated she had succumbed to an attack of heart disease. Mrs. Weaver, who apparently was chief assistant in the Hastings establishment, corroborated the story as told by her employer. Investigation revealed a very different state of affairs, and as a result of the investigation then made Hastings is now being tried on the charge of murder, and upon the conclusion of his trial, Mr. Weaver will also be tried on the capital charge.

MURDERER DUNHAM.

Believed to be in Custody at Lagrange, Texas.

SAN JOSE, May 24.—Sheriff Lyndon is in receipt of telegrams from Lagrange, Texas, which indicate that possibly Dunham, the murderer so much wanted, may be under arrest there. This afternoon the following came from the Sheriff at Lagrange: "Description of Dunham corresponds with your description given the Pinkerton Detective Agency. His identity was given away by Ferguson, a chum of his, to whom he made the statement of being the murderer of California." A warrant of arrest has been wired to Lagrange.

TWO ROBBERS SHOT.

One Instantly Killed, the Other Mortally Wounded.

GRANTS PASS (Or.), May 24.—Word was received by wire to-day from Kirby that on last Saturday night, two men who attempted to rob the sluice boxes of the Gilmore & Bauer placer mine were shot by night watchman Champ Payne. Fair-Craven Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—The sixth week of the trial of the Angus-Craven case, now the main fight of the Fairbanks, began to-day, and bids fair to prove as monotonously weary as those which have preceded it. Expert Max Gumpel resumed his testimony, and although the jury had photographic copies of each and all the exhibits, the witness was required to explain the information of each exhibit, and the various documents introduced most minutely, and explain the innumerable discrepancies which he claimed to have discovered.

Big Land Swindle.

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—Postoffice Inspector Grant believes he has unearthed a big land swindle. He refuses to give the names of the people concerned yet, but says a company owning a few acres of land near Acton, on which trees have died from neglect, had disposed of a large amount of the same by using the United States mail to defraud people. He says some of the people connected with it are prominent.

She alleges that she has twice been married to William Henry Moffatt, but that each time her father-in-law has induced his son to desert her.

Case was out on bonds to appear for trial at Roseburg on June 25th on charges of holding up a Southern Pacific train. The verdict of the coroner's jury justifies and commends Superintendent Dane's prompt action in shooting the robber.

SEE WAS MISREPRESENTED.

The Reporter Meant Well, But He Failed to Please.

Even when her speech was obscured by sobe the writer was something about her voice that showed she could sing high C and assert her right to the center of the stage, says the Washington "Star." It was pathetic to see a strong woman so utterly dejected. "I want to see the horrid reporter who has been writing about me about my miserable suit for divorce," she said after her paroxysm of weeping abated. "He's out," was the prompt and humane answer of the editor, who is a human man.

"Can't I see him later?" "No," he took a week's salary and went on a vacation. He said he wasn't coming back till his money was all spent and we don't look for him in any time less than six months. "Perhaps somebody else could attend to what I want, although I don't suppose there's any use in my asking for justice. It must have been pure malice."

"You refer to that item about your divorce?" "Yes."

"Well, it seems to me that you are exceedingly ungrateful," the reporter said. Why, he did his best to be completely fair. No less than three times he alluded to you as the 'fair plaintiff.' " "Yes. That was very nice of him. But read on."

"I don't find anything that is not in the same vein. He says 'The lady's toilet had evidently been an object of much care. It was a triumph of the milliner's art and a monument of her elegant taste in such matters.' " "That's the sentence!" she exclaimed, rising to her feet. Her indignation dried her tears, and, shaking her clenched fingers at the newspaper, she said: "What did he mean by trying to humiliate me in the eyes of all those spectators? How dared he insinuate that the common old things I wore to that courtroom are the best clothes I have."

AMUSEMENTS.

At the Metropolitan Theater this evening De Wolf Hopper and Edna Wallace Hopper in the comic opera "El Capitan." John Philip Sousa's and Charles Klein's remarkably successful comic opera, whose bright witty lines, sparkling melodies, inspiring marches, fine stage-pictures and rich costumes, delighted New York City theater-goers for four months last season, and whose hero, DeWolf Hopper, surrounded by the mimic representatives of the excellent cast, were heartily welcomed at every appearance. The clever comedians as well as the members of his favorite organization, will be well received here where they are in favor and have many friends and admirers. Mr. Hopper will essay the leading role of the opera, a blustering, cowardly insurgent General, a part, it is said peculiarly adapted to his well-known abilities, and in which he appears to the best possible advantage, in the delivery of his mock-heroic lines and spirited action, supplemented by his melodious voice, which he knows how to utilize. Mr. Hopper comes surrounded by the original New York cast, the grand chorus of fifty voices, including daily Edna Wallace-Hopper, stately Nellie Bergen, the new prima-donna of the company, clever Alice Hosmer, as well as Edmund Stanley, the favorite tenor, little Alfred Klein, the droll comedian; Thos. S. Guise, an excellent baritone; John Parr, Harry P. Stone, Robert Polard, Louis Shrader, Flit Raymond and others. "El Capitan" is breezy, picturesque, full of "go" and its libretto as well as its score is plentifully sprinkled with bright dialogue and sparkling musical gems. The pretty tuneful opera will be assuredly, be given the same elaborate and complete production in this city that characterized its successful run in San Francisco recently, for all of the magnificent scenery, brilliant costumes, the dresses and properties, and other expensive accessories and these will be brought in requisition here. The box office opens at 9 a. m. to-day.

The Wilber Opera Company presented at the Clunie Opera-house last night to a fair audience the delightfully funny and very tuneful favorite comic opera "Olivette." The story of the opera is a comedy rising considerably above the level of most comic operas, as it is coherent, witty and not full of strained effort. It is a flowing, merry, jolly story, easy to understand and charmingly unconventional. It is simple justice to say that while the opera work of last week did great credit to the Wilber Company, that of last night goes more to its credit still, and this despite the fact that one of the best faces and figures and sweetest voices in the troupe finds no role in "Olivette." The opera was just as brilliantly costumed as was "Said Pasha." The acting was better, for the company is now well acquainted with its audience, and the members with each other, and there is more abandon, vigor and spirit, though last week the company was snap and vim and jollity throughout. The male chorus sang stronger and better, and the female chorus was fully up to the work of last week. So the opera was successfully acted and sung, and remarkably satisfying. It ought to fill the Opera-house nightly all this week. It is worthy of it. The striking features last night were: Lewellyn's "Coquette"; it was inimitable work. He rendered it superbly. The fullness of "took" the audience, the fullness of "Valentine," which he sang with taste, informing spirit and excellent judgment; his "Could She But Read My Heart" was charmingly interpreted, and in a voice full of tenderness and feeling; Miss Southwell's solo in the second act, which was well received; the quintet by Nicholas, Rockwell, Busch and Southern, a most satisfying piece of work. Mixed voices have seldom given us anything more effective here in a comedy, and, if indeed, ever before. In the grand act Ellis has another excellent tenor solo, and dandles it well. The duo between Busch and Southern brought out the voices of both ladies finely, and presented them in pleasing, tuneful contrast. Miss Busch's solo in the second act was encouraged. The "Barn-honored," "Topsy and the Whale" was given with good effect and plenty of comedy action, and moved the audience to approving expressions of mirth and pleasure. Hortense Neilson as Montecque, the cabin boy, sang for the first time this season her out of the chorus ranks, and made an excellent impression. She has a sweet and very dainty voice, and she is a very taking figure on the stage.

EVANGELIST BANE.

A Strong Appeal to His Hearers to Lead Christian Lives.

Rev. A. C. Bane preached last night at the Sixth-street Methodist Church. He said he had come to engage in a battle with the devil. He found great pleasure in looking into the faces of so many old friends. He wished them all to have faith in God, the only one who can save a soul. The revival must not be gotten up—it must be prayed down. The work which will make the Sixth-street Church stronger must come down from Heaven. He selected for his text Joshua xxiv, 15, "Choose you this day whom ye will serve." These words were chosen as a basis for an exhortation on some reasons why people should choose to be Christians. A Christian is a follower of Christ—one who trusts in the merits of Jesus Christ for present and eternal salvation from sin. The following reasons were given: Jesus Christ alone has power to forgive sins. He stands ready to do this work. Sinners are condemned, and the only way of salvation is through pardon. Jesus Christ has power to enable you to live without committing sin. Choosing Christ will make a person true to himself. By sin each has robbed himself of much happiness and power. Christ will also make a person truer in all the relations of life. The world will be better if you become a child of God. The only successful life is a life in Christ. Choosing Christ will put you in daily and hourly fellowship with God, to commune with Him until you become like Him. Thus also do we come into fellowship with the best people, and the best books, especially the book of books. In companionship with this book we become like the Christ of the Bible. In being a Christian you will have a clear conscience, realizing that every motive in life is pure, inspired by the Holy Spirit. Our worst enemy is a tormenting conscience. If you want peace of conscience you must find it through the cleansing blood of Christ. Choosing Christ will make love the ruling spirit of your life. Christianity is love. Selfishness is sin. What we need is a world of love. We never get over a life of selfishness until the expulsive power of the Holy Spirit drives it out. Becoming a Christian is noble. It is dignified. It is not humiliating. It is not stooping. It is an exaltation to step away from sin and serve the Lord, Christ. It is a sign, not of weakness, but of strength. Choosing Christ is the only way in the world to preserve the spiritual life. Too many are neglecting this highest privilege in life. Christianity is the only way in which we are in course of preparation, the Prefect of the Seine having observed that the existing plans are rather defective in their topographical details.—Paris Correspondence London Daily Telegraph.

Paris' Subterranean Galleries.

That recent concert in the Catacombs has drawn attention to the fact that one-third at least of the city of Paris is built over the earth's surface, and deep under the earth's surface, are called "The Quarries." Parisians are periodically frightened when they hear this, and begin to look forward to the sudden collapse of their high houses. M. Vickersheimer, however, who is Inspector of Catacombs and Quarries, hastens to assure the timid that there is no fear of any subsidence of the soil of subterranean Paris. The galleries are well propped up and are continually under the supervision of vigilant persons, chiefly policemen, who on their off-duty days are given fuses for inspection walks through the streets, which extend under ground in nearly every direction. Any signs of decay or damage on the vaultings or pillars are promptly reported to the proper authorities, who instantly bring their repairing machinery into play. According to classification, the first group of galleries begins under the Arc de Triomphe, extending in the direction of Passy and Auteuil. The second division runs under the Vaugirard districts, and includes the Catacombs, which are so-called because the bones from old cemeteries were placed there in 1776. The third branch of subterranean arteries is situated under the Boulevard of the Hospital, and extends to the fortifications, and the fourth runs from the Bastille towards Vincennes Wood. The fifth and last group, that of the north, is the most important, and is pierced under Montmartre, the Buttes Chaumont, and the Cemetery of Pere-la-Chaise, and extends out to Noisy-le-Sec. It is supported by thousands of pillars, and its net-work of crossings is the most complicated in underground Paris. All these galleries are stated to be in a good state of repair, but especially care and supervision have to be exercised in the third group, several land-slides having occurred recently at Issy and Clamart. A new map or chart of the subterranean galleries is in course of preparation, the Prefect of the Seine having observed that the existing plans are rather defective in their topographical details.—Paris Correspondence London Daily Telegraph.
