

SOMETHING ABOUT OLIVES.

An Industry That Would Prosper in Sacramento.

How Young Orchards Are Thriving in the Foothills—Practical Information.

The olive culture in Central California is rapidly becoming one of the leading industries of the farmers. For several years past a number of persons in the southern portion of the State have made a business of growing olives for oil and pickles, and have become prosperous. It is a fully settled fact that the olive will annually produce a larger profit than any other known tree.

There is no more care or expense attached to the cultivation of an olive grove than there is to any other orchard, and the tree will thrive and produce well on moderately good soil. In fact, the best quality of oil is produced from the olive tree grown on gravel or granite soil. A liberal depth of soil and good drainage is required, and thorough cultivation is necessary.

In the vicinity of Oroville are a number of large groves which have been producing very profitable crops for several years. Near Auburn, Newcastle, Loomis, Roseville are a number of very fine olive groves, ranging from one to twenty years old. They are thrifty and producing to the full satisfaction of the owners.

Mrs. Emily Robinson of Auburn exhibited olive oil from her place at the World's Fair in Chicago and captured six first prizes. Mr. Cooper also exhibited olive oil from his place at the World's Fair held in Paris, coming in direct competition with France, Spain and Italy, and he received one of the first premiums. We, therefore, need not fear foreign competition.

Fred Bivins of this city has a very large and profitable olive grove of about 50 acres, of which 25 acres is three years old and the rest six years. Last year the income from the six-year-old trees was sufficient to pay all the expenses of his grove and left a very handsome surplus.

In February and March, 1894, the Sacramento Olive Company, owned principally by Sacramento people, and which is under the general supervision of W. D. Lawton of this city, planted 10,000 olive trees, covering 115 acres. It is one of the largest olive groves in the State. For the information of persons proposing to plant olive groves a short description of the manner in which this grove has been handled is here given. This company was very careful in the selection of its trees. The holes were fully 18 inches in depth and diameter; the ground being plowed twice, each time 12 inches deep. As soon as the trees were planted, being 24 feet apart, the cultivation commenced, and was kept up continuously. To be more explicit, the ground between the trees was cultivated twice during each month. In February of each year the ground is plowed twice. Then commences the cultivation, which is kept up until October, and sometimes later. Late in the fall, or early winter, the trees are pruned—not in the way that many orchardists prune, as the trees are not topped, but the surplus limbs are taken off close to the trunk. In this manner the young trees are pretty well thinned of wood, but all desirable limbs are allowed to grow without topping.

During the summer months the trees are suckered, not broken off, but cut off with a clean sharp knife. Some 9,000 of the trees, when set out, were two years from the cutting and 1,200 trees were three years old. The two-year-old trees gave the best satisfaction. The company has never irrigated, depending entirely on cultivation. The trees when set out were one-fourth to one-half inch in diameter at the butt. They now range from two inches to four inches in diameter (at the butt) and are from six to ten feet high. This year at least 6,000 of the 10,000 trees were literally covered with blooms. The company will not permit them to bear this year, as they do not wish to retard the growth of the trees.

The varieties planted were the Missions, Uvaria, Rubra and Pendulina. They make excellent oil, and average-size pickles. The Manzanillo, Nerdalla Bianco and Sivillano are very fine growers and produce a fine, large pickle olive and make good oil. The Sivillano is the largest known olive.

That which has been accomplished by the Sacramento Olive Company and other olive growers can be accomplished by any farmer who is willing to cultivate thoroughly and use good business judgment.

There are thousands of acres of land along the foothills and the rolling land in Sacramento County from Galt to Michigan Bar, and about Folsom, are just as good olive land as is found in Spain, Italy or elsewhere, and any farmer who has ten acres or more of well-drained land can plant olive trees and care for them without materially interfering with his other work, as no irrigation is required, provided the orchards are cultivated thoroughly.

One need not fear over production, as the demand for oil and pickled olives is increasing much more rapidly than the supply, and the profit will justify the labor and time while waiting for the first crop. In this manner the owners of the trees they are expected to pay expenses the fourth year, with a liberal increase each year thereafter.

The Saturday Half-Holiday. San Jose Herald: We are glad to note that the recent agitation for a Saturday half holiday by the "Herald" has aroused or re-awakened interest in that proposition among our contemporaries. The press is taking it up very generally and thus far we have seen no dissent from the wisdom and expediency of the proposition. The Sacramento Record-Union, which has from time to time in the past been an advocate of the Saturday half holiday, has an editorial on the subject from which we cut the following excerpts:

"The seasons for a half holiday in each week in addition to the Sunday holiday are obvious and are taken of the trees they are expected to pay expenses the fourth year, with a liberal increase each year thereafter. The press is taking it up very generally and thus far we have seen no dissent from the wisdom and expediency of the proposition. The Sacramento Record-Union, which has from time to time in the past been an advocate of the Saturday half holiday, has an editorial on the subject from which we cut the following excerpts:

"Given a full half holiday on Saturday and the excuse for public games on Sunday would disappear. Sunday observance is not a far more general than it is, while men and women who are compelled to labor full six days in the week and take their outings on Sunday or have none would accommodate themselves to the new order.

"There will be just as much trade prosecuted, just as many goods sold, just as much food consumed, just as many exchanges made, just as much industry prosecuted with a half day given over as a season of recreation, sport, excursion or whatever other change may please men now in the groove, and keep them from being so devoted to any part of the first day of the week to outdoor sports and exercises or indulgence in leisure, as suits them best.

"The half holiday is a step in progress, and is a social and physical betterment. It is a moral advantage likewise. It will bring their men to their work on Monday in better condition for duty doing, and actually more will be accomplished by such workers than when they crowd their recreation into Sunday. It will tend to better our civilization and to invite to California more of the desirable home seekers who regard our present method of making Sunday a day of sport with something akin to horror."

THE WORLD IS MUYON'S. All Great Discoveries of Schools of Medicine are Brought to Munyon's Laboratory.

MUNYON ESTABLISHES THE STANDARD OF MERIT.

Professor Munyon keeps in touch with medical investigation and experiment throughout the world. His systematic methods have become so well known that the greatest discoveries are now submitted to him for practical test. Munyon's approval of any new remedy establishes its character and insures a fortune for its discoverer. Munyon believes that there is a cure for every disease, and that people should die only from old age or by accident. Fifty-seven absolute cures are now included in the Munyon system, and others are added as experience demonstrates their efficacy. There is no guesswork and no theorizing. Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure is prepared expressly to cure dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. Munyon's Rheumatism Cure is a specific for rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica. Munyon's Kidney Cure conquers the various and dangerous affections of the kidneys. Munyon's Nerve Cure rebuilds the nervous system. Munyon's Catarrh treatment cures catarrh of the head, throat or stomach. He has a separate specific for each disease. For sale by druggists. Mostly 25 cents. If you do not fully understand your own case write to Professor Munyon, at Philadelphia, and he will tell you free of charge.
