OF MEN'S AND YOUNG MEN'S FALL SUITS.

AN OREGON CITY EPISODE.

Not An Easy Matter to Tame the Spirit of a Young Woodcock.

(Special Correspondence of Record-Union.) PORTLAND (Or.), Sept. 30.—The following is a true account of an occurrence which took place recently in the little neighboring town of Oregon City, and goes to show what sort of grit and determination is embodied in some of the native "Woodcock" girls. Kittie, the heroine of my story, was the oldest of a large family of children, and lived with her parents on a small farm a short distance above Oregon City. Kittie was 15, pretty and well developed for her age, and in spite of her youthful years, had numerous admirers, but she would have none of them, and treated them so capriciously that one by one they gradually dropped away—all but one, and he was looked upon with favor by the girl's people because he had wealth. But Kittie regarded him with open dislike, and was not slow about letting him know; but the ardent lover was all undaunted and persisted in persecuting the girl with his unwelcome attentions. Unlike the generality of girls, Kittie was not touched by the dog-like attentions of her elderly admirer, who was twice her age, and finally, when they became positively boring, she persuaded her parents to allow her to go to Oregon City to work. Here she secured a position in a boarding-house where many of the mill hands lived, and soon became a prime favorite among the rough, good-hearted inmates of the house. Her mother was determined to be of short duration. Her would-be admirer did not like the idea of his sweetheart being out of his sight, and by dint of much persuasion finally induced the girl's mother to accompany him to Oregon City for the express purpose of taking the girl home. However, the man had failed to take into consideration the fact that Kittie had both a will and a temper of her own. She told them that she was happy and contented; that she was earning good wages and moreover did not want to be married. Her mother and arguments being of no avail, the mother took things into her own hands, and going to her daughter's room proceeded to pack up her belongings. Meanwhile the news of this high-handed proceeding ran like wild fire over the town; much indignation was expressed, but as no one seemed to know just what to do, or how to act in the matter, the weeping girl, who had not yielded without a struggle, was passively allowed to depart between the triumphant mother and the obnoxious lover.

It Is Needed.

The Sacramento "Record-Union" is hard at work in the interest of a Government road through Yosemite Valley. That such a road is needed everyone concedes, and the "Record-Union" hopes the "Record-Union's" effort to have it constructed will bear early fruit. The matter is to be presented to Congress next winter, backed up by petitions signed by residents of all parts of the State. If the desired end is attained the "Record-Union" will be entitled to the credit.

The good-hearted woman offered to hide her, but the girl refused to stay, and before her friend could interfere had left the house and was running wildly down the street. Her one idea was to get as far away from the town as possible; to make for the hills where she could hide until she felt reasonably sure that all search for her was over. Fate was against her again, and almost the first ones she ran against in her flight were the very ones she most wished to avoid, and they did not allow her out of their sight again until they had her safely at home.

When the mill hands came home that night and heard of the trouble they at once organized a searching party to go out in the hills, find the girl and bring her back. As a rule they were good-natured though rough fellows, but ugly when crossed, and it would not have been absolutely healthy for Kittie's elderly admirer had the boys run across him that night.

Not knowing that the girl had been taken home, the men searched the hills all that night, returning in the gray light of the early morning, tired out but not discouraged. Someone in the meantime had consulted a lawyer, who told them that though Kittie was under living restraint, she had no legal right to carry her off against her will, nor to marry her to anyone to whom she was so bitterly opposed. With this high authority, the search was kept up for her a day longer, but with no better success. Anxiety friends were depicted upon every face, and considerable strong talk was indulged in among the mill hands, but before they could resort to extreme measures in walked Kittie one morning as fresh and rosy and smiling as ever.

For the third time she had run away and made her way back to her home.

No returned prodigal could have had a more joyful welcome. Each man constituted himself her special protector, and it was not long before a place in a private family was obtained for her, while a strict watch was kept for her persecutors; but they evidently abandoned their plan of forcing the high-spirited girl to marry against her will, as they never showed up again. Today Kittie is happy and contented in her new home, with never a sigh or a wish for a beau. She has many friends, who all know her story and take a deep interest in her welfare, and not only that but her dearest wish of going to school and making an accomplished woman out of herself has been realized.

BANKS LOADED WITH GOLD.

Difficulty in Making Payment at the Clearing House in Bills.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The plethora of gold in the banks and the Treasury, and the scarcity of greenbacks is causing banks some difficulty in making their payments at the Clearing-House in bills, and may cause most of them in a short while to return to the practice of years ago, and settle their daily debt balances in gold. The first movement in this direction was made when the National Park Bank paid its entire debit balance of $586,000 in gold. Two other banks have also paid gold in settlement of the debit balance. It is charged likely that other banks will have to follow suit shortly.

Just at present the banks prefer to receive bills rather than gold in payment of their credit balances.

The gold is paid into the Clearing-House in the shape of Clearing-House gold certificates, which is the most convenient form to follow suit shortly.

Purchase of Cuba in Contemplation.

There is a rumor afloat in official circles that, if true, is most important. This is nothing less than that this Government is about to make overtures to Spain for the purchase of Cuba. However this may be, it has long been known to the world at large that the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a remedy for constipation, malaria, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney complaint and nervousness is beyond all price. A wine-laxative before meals imparts a hearty relish for the food, and a corresponding dose before retiring contributes to sound repose. No medicinal stimulant on the market ever received such strong professional endorsement as the Bitters. It is a most genial tonic, affording strength to all who use it. Not only in this country, but in many foreign lands, it is an admitted specific and preventive. As a safeguard against all disease of a malarial type it is particularly valuable.

GREATEST Silk Sale

Of the Season.

TWO LOTS. TWO PRICES.

MILLINERY.

The interest in winter millinery actually begins now, as the days for wearing it draw near, and our great stock will command increasing attention from day to day as the marvels of beauty continue to be added to an already seeming complete stock.

Walking Hats.

More Walking Hats for women and more kinds, including the Dakota or Cowboy Hat, than you will find elsewhere. We are headquarters for them. Judging from the quantities sold, these nobby hats, in their various and becoming styles, are to be the popular hat of the season. The fashion hat of the day for outing, for cycling and general use. Perhaps 'tis our extremely low prices have made them so.

Women's Fine Kersey Cloth Cape

in light tan color, strap seams and trimmings with fancy front ornaments, fancy velvet inlaid collar, wattle back, some have braid trimming as finish to straps, full silk lined, full sweep, perfect in hang, and the most stylish garments of the season. All similar to cut and priced $5.50, $9, $10, $12 and up.

Women's Fine Kersey Cloth

tan colored jackets, same as and similar to illustration. Handsome and serviceable garments, the latest styles, box cut fly front, velvet inlaid collar, half silk lined, silk piped seams, a garment which is becoming to any person. Priced from $7.75 upward.

MONDAY MORNING AT 9 O'CLOCK we will place on sale a large purchase of Silks sent us by our New York buyer. The lot represents this season's best styles. They were bought low, and rather than place them in regular stock we decided to close the entire lot out at special sale, and in order to make the lot large enough to last the day we take many handsome Silks from our regular stock and place among them. There is perhaps 1,000 yards of these beautiful Silk Novelties in blendings and designs without number, principally two-toned, changeable grounds, mottled effects, with wavy scroll and figured designs of contrasting colors. Also among them you will find the Fashion Silks of the day—checks, plaids and Roman stripes. All of the colorings are of the newest. You can select from them a cut for a handsome waist, a lining for a jacket or suit, a separate skirt or a full costume. Such Silks as these perhaps you will never again find at the price.

A tip or a wing, some velvet and ribbon, and the know how—and you can conjure your own fall hat with a frame for the foundation that will not cost you much. There's no end of feather ornaments, etc., and choosing is really hard because of such a great variety.

For ages 2 to 6 years, price $1.65 to $3.

For ages 6 to 12 years, price $2.75 to $5.50.

At 65c per yard. LOT 1 contains 600 yards of these above described Silks at 65c yard.

At 75c per yard. LOT 2 contains the remainder of the 1,000 yards, from which you'll take your choice at 75c yard.

Then there is our trimmed millinery creations for ladies from our work rooms that vie with the world's best patterns. How can they sell such stylish hats at such low prices? is the remark often heard here. We'll tell you how it is. So great a stock means great selling, and greatly facilitates the production of our corps of deft trimmers. Thus the price tendency is lowered. You can select from a goodly assortment of ready trimmed goods or trimmed to your order for $2.50, $3.75, $4.25 and upward in price.

The little folks, too, come in for their share in stylish and artistic millinery and your choice from dozens of pretty hats trimmed with feathers, ribbons, etc., at $1.50, $1.75, $2.25 and up.
