IT DISAPPOINTS AND SATISFIES. There is disappointment in the opposition ranks that the Republican party has put forward William Land for the Mayoralty.

It is found that Mr. Land, who has never before permitted his name to be used for a political place, is close to the people; that his integrity of character, his industry, his steadfast devotion to the interests of the city and his capacity to promote them, all make him an irresistible force in the present campaign; for he will be elected.

There is no reason why in a Republican city, such as this, he should not rally a united party about him, or that he should fail to draw to his support the votes of people outside the party who want a practical business man at the head of affairs; a man with notable executive ability; a citizen who knows the true paths of economy, and who considers the people's trust as sacred as his own private interests and as much to be considered.

William Land's candidacy is daily breaking down and putting aside opposition because of political or personal jealousies, misrepresentation and misunderstanding of the man. We believe that Mr. Land will give the city a vigorous, clean and wholesome administration; that he will be the enemy of waste, the promoter of economy, and yet never niggard nor narrow in the matter of city betterments. He will be firm in advancement of his views, and yet will prove open to conviction.

He will, we believe, be found in harmony with every advanced idea concerning municipal government, and will make it his personal concern and daily duty to see that every executive duty given to him to discharge is performed. This is becoming the conviction of the people as they make inquiry into William Land's capacity and character, and they are coming from outside his party to his support with remarkable celerity.

A NEW COMPLAINT. Complaint is made in San Francisco because the Supreme Court does not out of hand and at once decide the San Francisco Supervisor case now before it.

They are making ready in New England to erect a monument in honor of Harriet Beecher Stowe. It is to be put up in her home city. That is well enough; but there is a monument in honor of her name already bulged in the hearts of humanity that will never crumble, and that towers above any other tribute possible to be paid to her genius.

As the Stockton "Independent" well asks, "Why should they?" It took a long time to present the case. There was filed over 600 pages of testimony, briefs and pleadings, and all these it is expected the court shall overhaul at once, suspending the business of all other litigants, putting aside all other cases and giving up its time wholly to San Francisco interests.

It is an easy matter for politicians on sidewalks and in saloons to promptly decide grave questions of law or State policy, but Judges are hedged about by the law and must set aside their personal or political preferences while the politician has only to consult "the push."

is not likely to be so great as a hasty and erroneous decision might work. They are not responsible for the delay in bringing the matter before the courts, and in taking time to fully deliberate the questions before them they are doing simple justice.

SECURE THE FACTORY. Sacramento has a direct and responsible offer for a large manufacturing industry, to add to her importance and gains; that, too, without any subsidy being asked.

We can have the sugar beet factory then, if the farmers will subscribe to a pledge that the beets will be grown, and delivered at the current market price. We are assured that our soil is admirably adapted to the cultivation, that the climatic conditions are all that could be desired; that commercially we are situated advantageously for transporting the raw material in, and distributing the finished product.

Capital is willing to invest its dollars if farmers in this county will invest the capacity or some of their acres in a common enterprise. If we do not succeed in inducing land owners to embrace this opportunity, it will be to their lasting shame.

A QUESTION TO BE SETTLED. The notice to dismiss the application to the Supreme Court of the United States of the defendant has been served and filed in the Durrant case. It is altogether probable that the supreme tribunal will pass upon it with celerity, since the court will take judicial notice that there are many such cases pending; that it is a matter of more than usual concern in criminal practice, and because there may be need of legislation at the approaching session of Congress that the case should be decided in advance of others, to the end that a remedy for any possible defects in the matter of appeals may be applied.

It is not uncommon for courts to take notice of such matters, though they are not of record before it. If it is held that Durrant's appeal is without merit, that will not be the end of the whole matter, for it will not prevent other defendants in criminal cases from securing delays by appeal from orders refusing intervention on hearing the writ of habeas corpus, and from orders refusing issuance of the writ. It is reasonable to expect, therefore, that the forthcoming decision in the Durrant case, and which may be expected in December, possibly late in November, will indicate what, if any, legislation is necessary to prevent all criminal cases being taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, clogging the calendars of that tribunal hopelessly and practically taking out of the State's jurisdiction for a time every case of felony tried in a State court.

Certainly, the American system never contemplated any such practice. If the laws as they now stand permit these appeals on the mere pretense that a Federal question is involved, then there must be legislation to remedy the evil, for evil it assuredly would be.

There need be entertained no fear, however, that the criminal cases of the courts of the States are to be transferred to the Supreme Court of the United States. We do not believe that the court will sustain the contention made for the defendant in the Durrant and the Worden cases, or any of the many others of like character on appeal. But if it should turn out that the Supreme tribunal is compelled to hold that the laws as they stand give this right of appeal in all such cases, we have faith that the legislative arm of the Government will intervene, and if necessary to do so, which we do not apprehend, that the necessary constitutional amendment will be submitted to the States, and be adopted without demur.

The latest advices indicate that the struggle in Guatemala is approaching a crisis in which Dictator Barrios will probably be overthrown. Incidental to this piece of news is the statement that there have been many outrages upon the persons and property of Americans in Guatemala by the Barrios party, and that our representatives there are unable to afford our people adequate protection. This is the old, old story. We do not hear of similar trespass upon the subjects of Great Britain. There is good reason for it. England protects her subjects with such celerity and vigor, that these petty Central American States stand in mortal dread of England's frown. We should take a lesson from British policy in this regard.

They are making ready in New England to erect a monument in honor of Harriet Beecher Stowe. It is to be put up in her home city. That is well enough; but there is a monument in honor of her name already bulged in the hearts of humanity that will never crumble, and that towers above any other tribute possible to be paid to her genius.

It is an easy matter for politicians on sidewalks and in saloons to promptly decide grave questions of law or State policy, but Judges are hedged about by the law and must set aside their personal or political preferences while the politician has only to consult "the push."

The Supreme Justices are right and though their delay may work hardship to the municipality that hardship draw their charm and their mystery from castles, palaces, cloisters and prisons, are inferior to the modern realities where there are labyrinths of law leading direct from the beiltry charnel to the morgue and from the morgue to the highest court in Christendom. What playwright will ever disclose the winding passages of modern jurisprudence that will lead all away from the galleys?

RADICAL VIEWS. Colusa San: When murder after murder is committed and no law is provided a people are at a fault if they do not insist on such a law being enacted by their Legislature.

A POLITICAL JOKER. Santa Rosa Republican: Governor Budd is entitled to be classed among the humorists of his day.

VOICE OF THE PRESS

EXTRACTS FROM EDITORIAL EXPRESSION.

State and Coast Opinions on Subjects of Living News Interest.

Pasadena News: The business which hopes to make a success without the use of printers' ink as sold by the local paper has been sold by the local paper.

NEAL DOW. Oakland Times: People are so accustomed to associate the name of the late Neal Dow with the prohibition law in all Maine that they forget he was anything more than an advocate of that measure.

THE GROWTH OF CITIES. Los Angeles Herald: Every census shows a greater percentage of increase in urban than in rural population.

THE BALLOT. Seattle-Post Intelligencer: So long as Eugene Debs preaches the doctrine that the right way to reform this country is by ballot, count us among the adherents of Eugene Debs.

AS TO STATE EXHIBITS. Los Angeles Herald: The "Herald," the other day, in speaking of the report that the "leading hotel men" of California had organized and made arrangements to maintain a permanent exhibit of California products in New York City, while commending the idea, said it would be well to investigate the scheme and ascertain its relation to Southern California products.

MISSING NO TRICKS. Los Angeles Times: The United States is not yet sending thousands of bicycles to Europe, but large shipments are also being made of cold-drawn steel for the purpose of transforming into bicycle tubing; and now a Cleveland concern has sent 100,000 tons of hard steel to Birmingham, England.

RESTRICTED LAW EVASION. Los Angeles Express: It would appear from a San Francisco dispatch that a simple and easy means of evading the Chinese restriction laws has been discovered.

THE RUSH. Los Angeles Times: Los Angeles feels aggrieved that the college students have broken out in its midst. These "nack-bawn ruckers" should be rushed off the campus and put behind the plow, where their brains would be fostered in a better place.

PROTECT THEM. San Diego Union: If the reports about citizens of the United States being imprisoned in Guatemala are true, it is fortunate that the Alert was sent to Central American waters, and unless the men are promptly released, a stronger naval force should be dispatched to the scene of trouble.

CALL A HALT. Marysville Appeal: Why do our young people seek to get away from their country homes? Why that overweening desire to come to town to live that is met with whatever way we turn? It is really owing to the fact that diversions are few and congenial companions limited on the farms.

THE DURRANT TRAGEDY. Stockton Record: The certain is again about to raise to afford the world another scene of the Durrant tragedy. Shakespeare's genius was not equal to a conception of the dramas of life in the latter part of the nineteenth century. The old style tragedies which draw their charm and their mystery from castles, palaces, cloisters and prisons, are inferior to the modern realities where there are labyrinths of law leading direct from the beiltry charnel to the morgue and from the morgue to the highest court in Christendom.

The Strength of Nature.

According to the ancient mythology, when Hercules wrestled with Anteus, every time he was thrown he jumped up again stronger than ever, gaining fresh power from every contact with the earth.

Anteus is a perfect symbol of the stomach and liver. Nature is the real source of health and vigor.

It capacitates the stomach and liver to vitalize the circulation and feed the nerve-centres with pure, healthy blood.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It acts directly upon the natural nutritive processes, and creates solid, permanent strength and vital force in the same way that Nature creates them.
