EXCUSES FOR THE CITY ADMINISTRATION. The sidewalk circular that was born on Saturday trots out our distinguished fellow townsman Dr. George MacCabe Dixon, to say over his own signature that things have been bad.

But, exclaims the doctor, in those persuasive dulcet tones that so distinguish this medico-political philanthropist. "Do you know how utterly powerless Mayor Hubbard has been?"

Do you realize how utterly impossible it has been for Mayor Hubbard to give us a clean, progressive, non-partisan administration of municipal affairs?"

Of course, of course, good medico, of course. It has been impossible; that's just the matter. That is precisely why the "Record-Union" urges the election of the whole Republican ticket, that for once and for a change, we may have a Mayor and a Board of Trustees in harmony with no excuses and finger pointing at the "other fellow."

We wish to be perfectly fair with the circular, and the doctor who has so foolishly opened his mouth and put his foot in it. The reason advanced for the inability of Mayor Hubbard to give the city a "clean, progressive, non-partisan administration" has been and is, that the Trustees would not permit him to do it.

In a narrow sense that is true, and it will without any qualification whatever still be true if Mr. Hubbard by any mischance should be re-elected.

The only thing that can bring that dire calamity upon the city, however, is the tripping of Wm. Land within the next twenty-four hours over some of the Croly protruding man-hole curbs on accepted streets, whereby his neck may be broken.

Keep off of Seventh street, Mayor Land and take no chances. You and others have protested against those protruding man-hole devices and have thought—vain delusion—that some of that extra macadam metal might be put about those spots to raise the surface to its lawful level. But you and all others forgot, Mayor Land, that the stone was needed to macadamize the whole half street in front of Superintendent Croly's house without any order or knowledge of the Trustees or any letting of contract, or any making of bids. But then it was done to "fill holes" under the plea of making "repairs."

Now it is submitted that the Trustees are not blameworthy for such gross mismanagement and maladministration as that, which is but one small sample out of many. That hybrid Board of Trustees has sine to answer for, Heaven knows, but in the name of sweet mercy forbear charging it with macadamizing the street in front of Croly's house at general expense, while the well-hole curbs stick up in air on other streets like disconcerting mile posts, because there is no money in the fund to pay for banking up a little earth around them to save the city a big bill of damages when some one is wounded on account of these obstructions.

But admit, for the sake of the argument, and that alone, that the doctor is right for once, that the Trustees have blocked the good intentions of Mr. Hubbard; it was a "non-partisan" board so called that did the work. Just such a mixture as Dixon plainly tells us should be elected again to block the wheels of progress anew.

The idea that a Democrat, a Populist, a Republican, an Independent, responsible to no one, jammed together make up a non-partisan body is so absurd as to excite ridicule. Non-partisan means no politics, no party, no political faith, no championship for party, no responsibility to organization. It does not mean spoils division, nor dividing offices among party men.

For these reasons the "Record-Union" which has never advocated a measure, or supported a man in this city except it was for the good of this city, and from sincere concern for municipal prosperity, economy and wisdom, expresses its conviction that the straight narrow and direct road to clean, progressive administration, is through the election of a Republican Mayor and all the nominees of the Republican party.

Thus we will have a Board of Trustees strongly Republican, a Mayor Republican, an Auditor Republican, a Collector Republican, a Treasurer Republican, working in harmony, and responsible to the Republican party that will be on trial, with these independents and citizens' mixtures sitting on the fence and watching the outfit closely, to see that it does not haul its individual coil with the city tonnage. Crolyize the streets in front of their own premises at general expense or permit the street sprinklers to curse them in tongues they cannot understand.

A MEAN PLING. It was only possible for such an expression and sneer to come from such a source as that which gives it voice, when the champion advocate of the present administration charges that the admirable address of Wm. Land to the people was not written by Mr. Land, but by another person.

So it always is with the unconscionable and suspicious. Being themselves scaly they cannot think any others are clean of skin. Mr. Land is a collegian, a graceful, pungent writer; a good reasoner and a clear thinker.

We read essays and papers of his years ago with pleasure, because of their perspicuity, and later his letters of observation from Europe, which were gems of good English, original thought, simplicity of style and graceful diction. Can it be that the purblind opposition has been putting Mr. Land down as an illiterate? That would be just too funny.

COERCING JURORS. The dispatches tell us that in a murder trial at Kansas City on Saturday the jury after being out all night came into court and reported inability to agree. Thereupon the Judge ordered the jury locked up again, saying: "This court has all next week to reason about it, and you will be well taken care of. You will reach a verdict, gentlemen."

It is conceded that a jury should not be discharged if it has not fairly deliberated upon a case given to it. But we protest that the remarks of the court in this case were little short of infamous. They amounted to coercion. It was a threat to imprison the jurors indefinitely unless some of them yielded their convictions for the sake of liberty.

If the purpose of the law is to do justice, then when a jury after an all-night deliberation declares that the doubts of guilt are so strong in the minds of some jurors, or the convictions of innocence are such with some of the jury that there can be no agreement of judgments and good conscience, further attempt to crowd the jury to a unanimous verdict is actually in defiance of justice.

NEGLECT OF THE STREETS. It has been the steady reply of those responsible for the shameful condition of the residence and other streets, choked with rubbish, the gutters filled up, the manhole strainers caked over, and the arches of the streets the dumping places for filth and yard scourings, that arrests would be made of offenders "if complaints were sworn to."

That is to say, some one must do for that official precisely what the Superintendent of Streets is salaried to do. Why, in the name of reason, has he not corrected these abuses? His attention has been called to them almost daily for a year, but not one has he abated.

Even as late as 1 o'clock Sunday morning on a chief residence street, not far from the unlawfully macadamized street front of the Superintendent, a pile of yard rubbish in the center of the highway was smoldering and blazing by turns, where it had been carted to be destroyed by fire.

Think of any town having pretensions to decency permitting its highways to be used in that manner? What would be thought of Chicago if a rubbish heap were found burning and lighting up the whole country on Wash avenue? What would be thought of Cleveland if her beautiful Euclid avenue was used as a dumping ground?

Yet that is what is done in Sacramento all the time, day after day. A vote against the Republican ticket today means a vote for the continuation of the present despicable and disgraceful system. The law is ample; it is the administration that is weak.

Attorney-General McKenna has published a statement concerning the sale of the Union Pacific Railroad under the foreclosure of the first liens, that completely sweeps away all the falsehood, misrepresentation and mendacity with which the whole business has been slimed over by the howling anti-railroad and the lurid press. The full statement of General McKenna appears this morning, and it will be seen that it flatly and unequivocally gives the lie to every charge the consciences press has made. The simple truth is that these lurid sheets do not want the railroad question relative to Government indebtedness closed and the matter settled. It would deprive these journalistic vultures of precious morsels with which to feed prejudice. It would break up their business as anti-railroad howlers, and put their slanders out of commission.

There is an effort to concentrate the opposition in the Third Ward against Mr. Payne; not because he is disliked; not because the slightest objection can be or is raised to his candidacy, but simply because of the ambitions of others to get into the Board of Trustees. For this very reason, therefore, the nominee of the Republican party ought to be elected. But there are other reasons still, and one of them that should not be overlooked is the necessity, as essential to progressive and harmonious government, for a strong Republican majority in the board to work in harmony with the next Mayor, who will be William Land.

BILLY APOLOGIES. Without sufficient money, exclaims the sidewalk circular in advocacy of the Hubbard-Croly combine, the "Record-Union" expects the residence streets to be kept clean. Mistaken again. The "Record-Union" expects nothing of the kind.

But it, along with about thirty thousand people, expects the laws to be enforced which make it a crime to dump rubbish in the residence streets, as certain nominees of the citizens' organization, so called, do constantly, and are now doing and have done ever since their nomination as well as before.

The "Record-Union" and others also expect—and it is reasonable—that if, week in and week out, month in and month out, for two years the Mayor and his Superintendent of Streets have been beought, begged, implored to stop these abuses of dumping in the streets, at least a single effort would have been made and crowned with success.

No, nobody expects streets to be cleaned without cost. But if Wm. Land is elected Mayor you can rest assured that his Street Superintendent will swear to complaints and cause arrests to be made, until unclean people find it profitable to be decent. His Superintendent will see to it that the law is enforced if, after the manner of our illustrious Governor, "the militia have to be called out."

When his Superintendent is informed by cleanly people that the offense of street obstruction committed by the dumping of rubbish and filth, garden cuttings, tree trimmings, yard sweepings, stop emptings, old hose, hoops and hides, tin cans and wire, etc., all to remain and be beaten down into the street surface, or scattered by passing vehicles—his Superintendent will see to it that the nuisance is stopped or he will lose his job. Those are the words of Mr. Land, and the people can trust him to do just what he says.

The present administration has done nothing of that kind. It has not even attempted to do so. It was within the term of this administration, was it not, that the wheelmen turned out one evening and cleared off five wagon loads of rubbish from two blocks on a residence street, every pound of which was on the highway in spite of the law, and every man jack of them who put the filth and rubbish there was known to E. J. Croly and C. H. Hubbard? But not an arrest. Arrests cost votes, sometimes.

General Weyer has taken his departure from Havana and is now en route to Spain. On leaving he gave expression to thoughts which words do not conceal. They leave the distinct impression that General Weyer does not look upon the "insurrection as much, if any weaker than when he undertook to pacify Cuba. Likewise, it is to be read between the lines that General Weyer does not look forward to Marshal Blanco having any greater success than he has achieved. In short all through the expressions of the General there is a tone of hopelessness. All this will encourage the Cubans. Blanco will come to them with overtures for peace, but he will not find, it is believed, more than a very small number of native Cubans who will aid him. The great mass of Cubans, assuredly the mass outside of Havana Province, will be found to be bitter opponents of autonomy, or any ending of the war except upon the basis of recognition of independence. There is one thing related to this exchange of Generals in Cuba that has a mournful aspect. It promises to narrow, if not close, the field for the lurid press so far as the doings of the Spanish in Cuba are concerned. Blanco will not prove a fount of joy for the yellow persuasion of journals.

The sidewalk circular declares that it is possible William Land does not know there is such a thing as a bonded indebtedness on Sacramento. Alas, the circular need not doubt, or fear, or inquire. Mr. Land is a very heavy tax payer and no rate payer in Sacramento is ignorant of that wonderful debt which, apparently, grows the larger the more payments are made upon it.

It is practically endless, seemingly. It is like unto the old man of the sea on the shoulders of the unhappy Sisyphus. We were told fifteen years ago that seven years more would wipe it out. Then there was the prophecy that five years would blot it out, and then it was promised death in two or three years, and it has been two or three years since. Still the thing hangs on, and, like a mill stone about the neck of the city, keeps it down. What has the present administration done to wards getting rid of the nuisance and putting something of the burden upon the coming generation? Oh, yes, Mr. Land knows all about the bonded debt, but dollars to dimes the present administration cannot explain the present condition of that mysterious debt?

Not all heroes are adults. Here is the case of the little girl Donna Coulter. She is the daughter of a New York family. On a visit to friends in Canada she saw a small boy fall from a wharf into the Scogog River. The lad was rapidly drowning, when Donna ran down to the river and at the risk of her own life drew the boy ashore. It was the act of a heroine. The Royal Humane Society heard of the act and sent a medal to the Mayor of Lindsay to be delivered to the little girl. Whereupon the Mayor assembled the dignitaries of the city, fifty in number, and they marched to the house where the child was stopping, and with much ceremony delivered the medal to the rescued boy, that he might hand it to his rescuer, which impelled the brave little miss to throw her arms about the little fellow and give him a hearty kiss, and so the ceremony ended. But the effect of it will be to stimulate other children to do heroic acts, to sacrifice self for others' good, not to gain the reward of a bronze medal, but because the delivery of the medal teaches that society stands ready to recognize humanity, mercy, kindness and heroism as qualities of natural nobility.

The effect of the city election will have a direct influence upon the election of next fall. Republicans, therefore, should stand together, turn out and work for the ticket. Send the news abroad that Sacramento has thrown down the Republican ticket this year, and what a morsel of aid and comfort it will be to the enemy in the greater campaign that will begin inside of six months.

When the young man Hawkins, a nurse at the public hospital in San Francisco, volunteered to care for and nurse the unhappy man taken with typhus fever some weeks ago, we said it was a noble, a heroic act. He went with the sick man, accompanied by a physician equally heroic, to the pest-house, and the two cared for the victim until he died. Now comes the news that Hawkins is himself stricken and must die. The deadly pest has seized upon him by his devotion to his altar. Whether the courageous young physician will be a victim also remains to be seen. To Hawkins, living or dying, there should be raised a monument of gratitude by the San Francisco public, that men may understand communities are neither forgetful nor ungrateful, much less unkind of true heroism.

Dixon, the politico-medico head of the hybrids, says it has been impossible for the Mayor incumbent to give the people a "clean, progressive, non-partisan administration," because those contumacious, wrangling fellows in the Board of Trustees wouldn't let him. That's bad. But elect a Republican Mayor and a Republican Board of Trustees and Republican officials generally, and there will be no cause for wrangling and jarring and blocking each other's efforts? Non-partisanship of the kind we have has not worked well in the present administration, and no repetition of the dose is desired.

If Wm. Land is elected, and he will be, there will be no buying of coal and other supplies by public officials in the same job lot along with city supplies. Such things may be and were undoubtedly honest and square, but seven citizens out of ten will believe that it is bad form and likely to lead people in this suspicious age to think that some unexpressed considerations entered in. Dollars to nickels that with Wm. Land as chief executive of the city, public officials will buy their eggs at their own corner grocery, and carry them home in other than city baskets.

The news of the latest dispatches is that Germany is so agitated over the operations of the new tariff law of the United States that it is seriously considering retaliatory measures. By some, we are told, it is proposed to notify the United States of intention to modify the "most favored nation" clause. By others it is asserted that the new Minister to Washington bears instructions to open negotiations for an adjustment, having the removal of the tariff hardships in view. It all amounts to this, then, that Germany proposes to have our country for a market whether we will or not, and if not, then to exclude us from her markets by legislation similar to ours. As to that the United States is estopped from raising any objection. Setting up a protective policy ourselves our mouths are closed against complainings when other nations protect themselves against the output of our wares and produce in like manner. There will be this difference, however, if Germany acts as is threatened; her protective measures will be distinctly discriminating, aimed at and confined to American goods. Whether she will be able to thus discriminate remains to be seen. We may justly complain if we are the only nation excluded from German markets. The present protective policy of Germany is general and applies, as does ours, to the products of all nations alike. We have no fear, however, that Germany is going to do as is now threatened. Reciprocal agreements may be reached, however, as the result of the present attraction.

Every vote cast against Wm. Land to-morrow will practically be cast for the continuation of the maladministration that has characterized the past two years concerning the cleaning, care and repair of the streets.

Parties who are working in the interest of other candidates are busy circulating reports among saloon keepers to the effect that if William Land is elected, he will have the liquor license raised to a thousand dollars a year. The saloon keepers are not such fools as to take any stock in such stories. As liquor licenses are governed by the Board of Trustees, Mr. Land could not raise them, if he were so inclined. Mr. Land is making a clean campaign, indulging in no mud-slinging and he will be elected by the votes of the best citizens of Sacramento.

Every vote turned away from the Republican ticket to-morrow will be a vote for the continuation of the present inefficient management of street and sewer superintendency.
