

HOW KLONDIKERS ARE MULCTED.

Canada Reaps a Rich Reward From the Gold-Seekers.

Duties Levied Upon Everything Belonging to Their Outfits.

Even the Clothes That the Men Wear Not Exempted—A Sum Aggregating Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars Collected From Prospectors Entering British Territory Since the Duties Went Into Effect.

SKAGWAY (Alaska), per steamer Farallon, Seattle, Wash., Nov. 11.—The Canadian Government has recalled a number of customs officials who have been stationed at Tagish House, between Lakes Bennett and Tagish, and the British Columbia authorities have also reduced the number of provincial police who have been stationed at Lake Bennett and Takish House since the great rush to the Klondike country last July.

Deputy Collector of Customs Fred W. Davey, who has just returned from Tagish, said to the Associated Press correspondent that duties had been collected during the season on 400 outfits. Each outfit represented from four to seven men. The duty collected on each outfit averaged $90, and the total collected aggregated about $35,000.

Duties were levied upon everything belonging or in any way appertaining to an outfit, even the clothes that a man wore not being exempted. Several cases of attempted smuggling were detected, the goods being confiscated in most instances.

Travel down the lakes has practically ceased, and Mr. Davey says that hundreds of people will be caught in the ice and forced to go into winter quarters wherever they may happen to be when the ice surrounds them.

Rich gold discoveries are reported on the McClintock River, and branches of the Hootenlingua, some running as high as $40 a day to the man. There has been quite a rush to the new fields, which will be prospected during the winter.

ICE-BOUND WHALERS. The Bear Will Probably Sail on the Relief Expedition Next Week.

SEATTLE, Nov. 11.—Captain Tuttle of the United States Revenue cutter Bear expects to receive orders to-morrow to proceed to the Arctic Ocean and endeavor to relieve the ice-imprisoned whaling fleet. It is expected that the Bear will be ready to start the latter part of next week. She will carry 100 tons of provisions.

Captain Tuttle says: "I do not see of what avail my going will be, as there is hardly a remote chance of the best planned expedition reaching the whalers until next August. As I have before said, I think the whalers will be able to pinch through on short rations. I shall take a year's provisions for the Bear, as we might ourselves be caught in the ice. In fact, I look for that very thing to happen."

Captain Tuttle did not think that the proposition to sled relief parties in by reindeer and dogs would be practicable. Leaving here, the Bear will probably go direct to Unalaska, and then proceed up the straits between Nunivak and St. Matthew's Island, until stopped by ice.

It is known that Mrs. Massey has been operating here for at least three years. She has been suspected around several stores for that length of time, but as she was never actually caught in the act of stealing anything, she escaped arrest.

MUNICIPAL REFORM. ONLY WAY IN WHICH IT CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED. Duty of Every Good Citizen to Take an Active Part in Politics.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Governor Hazen S. Pingree of Michigan delivered an address to-night before the Nineteenth Century Club at Sherry's. There was a large attendance at the meeting, Sherry's ball-room being filled with men and women in evening dress. Herbert Wash of Philadelphia had also been invited to talk on a similar subject. He spoke of reform in his native city and the abuses of ring rule there.

President Taylor introduced the speaker of the evening at 8:30 o'clock, and Governor Pingree began to deliver his address, reading from manuscript. The Results of Ten Years of Municipal Progress.

The Governor stated that it was the duty of every good citizen to take an active interest in the politics of his municipality, not only to vote, but to take part in caucuses and primary elections.

This, reviewing his connection with the municipal affairs of Detroit as Mayor during the past seven years, he told how, under his administration, the city had acquired its own electric lighting plant, and was now splendidly illuminated, at less than half the old rate; how gas had been reduced at least one-third in price; how the toll roads had been made public thoroughfares; how the street pavements had been wonderfully improved; how the public school facilities had been bettered; how the streets and public buildings had been greatly improved; and the cost of transportation lessened, so that now one company sells six tickets for a quarter, with transfers, and another railroad tickets with transfers; how all street car companies had been compelled to sell at least half the tickets at 3 cents during certain hours, and how by the starting of an opposition company, telephone rates had been reduced more than 75 per cent.

In conclusion, he said: "How long can a Government last which increases constantly the burdens of the Industrial classes, and gives to those who prey upon the bone and sinew of the nation? It is the duty of Government to protect the weak against the strong; the poor against the selfishness of wealth. I say right here, that unless the Republican party comes out as a champion of the average American and his welfare, and unless it ceases to cater to syndicates, trusts and monopolies, it will be carried to oblivion. We must begin by advocating a municipal ownership of natural monopolies, and take away from them the item of profit and relieve the wage-earner to that extent."

One for the Tailor. When Poole, the famous tailor, was an old man he was at Brighton on a vacation and one afternoon went out to walk upon the pier. A young man was also upon the pier with a couple of ladies, to whom he said, as he saw Poole coming:

"Now, you wouldn't take that good looking man for a tailor, but he is. Just listen while I take him down a notch or two. I'll tell him my coat, which I have just had from him, doesn't fit."

As he spoke, Poole approached and politely acknowledged the salutation of his customer, who, walking up to him, said: "Here, Poole, now do take a look at me. Does this coat fit?"

Poole took in the situation. "It certainly does not fit," said he, and pulling out a piece of French chalk, he proceeded liberally to mark and cross the coat all over, and then observed, with the utmost urbanity: "Now, if you will kindly send that coat to my shop the alterations shall be attended to."

For Bachelors. Some curious figures have lately been made public by a celebrated British physician, which seem to point to the fact that if a man wants to live long and preserve his health and strength he ought to marry. Among unmarried men between the ages of 30 and 45 the death rate is 27 per cent. Among married men between the same ages it is only 18 per cent. For forty-one bachelors who live to be 40 years of age seventy-eight married men triumphantly arrive at the same period. The difference gets all the more marked as time goes on. At 60 years of age there are only twenty-two bachelors to forty-eight married men; at 70, there are eleven bachelors to twenty-seven who are married; and by the time they reach 90 the married men are three to one, for there are nine of them to every three bachelors.
