

NAVAL BATTALION GOSSIP.

THAT BODY TO WORK INDEPENDENTLY.

Governor Budd Issues a New Order That is Making Some Talk.

The San Francisco "Chronicle" of yesterday states that Governor Budd, as Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard of California, has issued an order making the Naval Battalion independent from the land forces of the State, known as the division under the direct command of Major-General James. Hence the Naval Battalion will be under the orders of the Governor only.

This order merely carries out the provisions of a general order made six or seven years ago, but among the politicians of the National Guard it is considered a slap at Major-General James, brought about by Adjutant-General Barrett, whose relations with the division commander are not the most friendly. It is not generally known that this has any significance in connection with the recent forced retirement of Colonel H. P. Bush from the position of Assistant Adjutant-General and chief of James' staff.

The history of the Naval Battalion shows that shortly after that body of troops was organized General Order 20 of 1891 was issued. By this order the gun divisions of the Naval Battalion in this city were made a part of the brigades of the National Guard stationed in this city, and the gun division in San Diego was made a part of the brigade in Southern California.

Soon after this General Order 22 of 1891 was issued. It stated that, as the attaching of the sailors to the brigades of land forces was deemed inadvisable, that portion of General Order 20 in regard to the gun divisions of the Naval Battalion being attached to the brigades should become void.

For some time this order was carried out, but it finally fell into disrepute, and the Naval Battalion practically came attached to the division, but not in any brigade as before.

This condition of affairs existed until last Thursday, when Lieutenant-Commander Louis H. Turner received orders from Commander-in-Chief Budd calling his attention to the General Order of 1891 and instructing him to carry out the intent of those orders in the future.

Some National Guardsmen say that apparently the order is nothing more than proper, as a General of a body of soldiers would hardly be the proper person to give orders to blue-jackets, but that in this case Major-General James made the Naval Battalion his favorite part of the National Guard, as he was formerly a naval officer. James is a graduate of Annapolis, and did much to properly equip and increase the efficiency of the Naval Battalion.

For this reason, though all admit the land and sea forces should be separate, the action of the Governor at a time when there was no pressing necessity for a change, is considered a victory for Adjutant-General Barrett and the other military-political enemies of Major-General James.

Lieutenant-Commander L. H. Turner, who is a patriotic and conscientious guardsman, has not looked upon the matter in that light. He had regarded the order only as advantageous to the Naval Battalion.

"I cannot consider this," he said, "a slap at the Major-General. This order is the logical outcome of the growth of the Naval Battalion and progress toward naval accomplishments. It would be the height of ridiculous to find ourselves under the control of a land General if we were ordered out to sea service or any service but riot duty."

"All the Major-Generals of the National Guard have not been naval officers like General James, nor do I suppose those who may follow in the future will have been. The work of the sea forces is necessarily separate, to a great extent, from those on land. The order would have to be in force some time so that the advancement of the Naval Battalion would not be impeded."

OREGON PHEASANTS. This State Now Being Liberally Stocked With Them.

The pheasants recently received by the State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners are being placed in favorable localities as expeditiously as possible, at present the demand exceeds the supply, says the "Breeder and Sportsman." The commissioners are being aided seconded in their efforts by sportsmen, game warden and clubs in all parts of the State.

A number of the birds have been liberated in various localities up to date. San Luis Obispo has been supplied lately, a number of the birds having been liberated in that county in favorable cover.

George H. Barfield, Game Warden at Merced, has placed several pairs along the Merced River. M. L. Weaver of Visalia, Game Warden for Tulare County, received five pairs of pheasants from the board; he has turned them loose on Thomas Jacobs and Brothers' ranch near Washburn Station. Sportsmen in the vicinity of Hollister are making efforts to have that district stocked.

The liberation of the birds has been noted by the local journals and it is to be hoped that they will be left free from molestation and allowed to multiply. At the end of the protection period in Oregon the State was literally alive with Mongolian pheasants. If the same results are happily brought about in this State then indeed will the sportsmen have cause for congratulation.

Electricity for Woodland. There is said to be a movement in Woodland looking to the introduction there of electricity for light and power purposes. In connection therewith is a rumor to the effect that the Sacramento Electric, Gas and Railway Company will furnish the electricity, but this cannot be verified here.

Poisoned Potatoes. Fred Menke and wife were poisoned the other day by eating potatoes over which some rats had run after getting poison on their feet. Mrs. Menke suffered most, but it was thought she would fully recover. The Chinese cook was also made sick from the same cause.

Next Sunday's Stake to be Limited and the Entrance Fee Increased.

Though the weather was foggy and cold yesterday morning there was a fairly good attendance at the coursing park. As the fog disappeared and the sun shone out warm and pleasant the crowd increased and the betting became lively.

The visiting dogs from Solano did not make much of a showing against the home flyers, and those who risked their money on the short-enders came out at the small end of the horn, as the saying goes.

Satisfactory judging was uniformly satisfactory, there being but one very close decision. It occurred in the second series in the course between Forget-Me-Not and Lanky Bob. The course was won by the former, the score being 5 to 4.

First money fell to T. Kennedy's Little Delight, second to Gilt Edge Kennel's Forget-Me-Not, third to Tilden & Phillips' Lily T., fourth to J. H. Ryan's Lanky Bob, fifth to H. B. & D.'s Skylight and sixth to J. H. Ryan's Forest Queen. The run down resulted:

EXHIBITION GAME. Mason's Laundry Team Defeated the Hilberts Yesterday.

Owing to the slippery condition of the diamond, occasioned by recent rains, the game of baseball between the Mason's Laundry and the Hilbert Bros. teams, advertised to take place at Snowflake Park yesterday afternoon, was deferred one week, and on next Sunday, provided the weather should be in the meantime prove propitious, the young men will meet at the park to ascertain which team can slog the sphere over the east fence and spike the home plate the oftener.

After yesterday's game had been postponed the teams and the assembled crowd adjourned to the vacant lot at Twenty-eighth and Q streets and as dry land appeared there in spots several practice innings were played, resulting in a victory for the Mason's Laundry boys by a score of 8 to 2. The losers say they will be re-versed when the teams come together for blood.

SLATER'S SEANCES.

He Puzzles Another Large Audience With His Strange Tests.

John Slater, the clever physicist and test medium, gave one of his interesting seances to a crowded house at Pythian Castle last evening, and, as usual, succeeded in mystifying his audience with the readiness with which he answered unasked questions, and placed the thoughts of his auditors in words.

Slater told the people of absent friends, frequently named them, and told where they were located, answered intended questions on domestic, personal and business affairs, etc., before they were asked him, and in almost every instance the person interested admitted the correctness of the answers, and all were willing to swear so, he said, that Slater knew neither them nor their business.

Mr. Slater will appear in his seances Tuesday and Wednesday evening, at which time he promises to attempt what he calls the "ballot test."
