HAWAIIAN ISLANDS AFFAIRS.

PRESIDENT DOLE GOING TO WASHINGTON.

Will Consult With the Administration There on the Subject of Annexation.

HONOLULU, Jan. 6.—(Via San Francisco, Jan. 13.)—President Sanford B. Dole leaves for Washington by the steamship Peru on the 8th instant.

The Chief Executive of this country journeys to the Capital of the United States for the purpose of consulting with the Administration on the subject of annexation of these islands to the greater republic. It is expected that Mr. Dole will be back here by the middle of next month.

After the meeting President Dole said: "It has been considered best that I should go to Washington and meet the Administration upon the matter of pending annexation negotiations."

"I do not expect to be gone more than six weeks. Immediately upon arrival in Washington I shall consult with the members of the Hawaiian Legation." This is the first visit of Mr. Dole to the United States since 1891, at the time the late King Kalakaua was in San Francisco.

A member of the Council of State said: "We decided by unanimous vote that it was wise for Mr. Dole to proceed to Washington at this time and meet with President McKinley and his immediate advisers, and perhaps with some of the United States Senators and foremost American advocates of annexation."

"It is proper and dignified and patriotic that the head of the annexation here, and the head of the well-established and permanent Government of this country, should appear in the United States at Washington at a time when the treaty is before Congress, and when all citizens of the great republic are interested in the annexation question. We believe that this policy is correct, and that the move will result in a material gain for our cause."

"Mr. Dole is a man peculiarly fitted for just such a mission as this. We believe that he will make a good impression, and that some of the Senators and perhaps statesmen in more exalted positions will conclude, after meeting him, that some of the statements that have been made to the detriment of Mr. Dole and his associates are incorrect, to say the least."

J. O. Carter, a great friend of the ex-President, will leave to-day for Washington to work against the annexation treaty. The anti-annexationists here expect a great deal of Mr. Carter. He is a man of good points and certain magnetism that will attract influence. He will undoubtedly be the worst enemy of the treaty sentiment in Hawaii.

THE CHINESE MISSIQU.

Li Hung Chang Wished Col. Fred Grant Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The following dispatch from Li Hung Chang was received by the Chinese Minister of China to the United States: "Be pleased to convey to His Excellency the President of the United States, the distinguished consideration of Li Hung Chang, and say to him that Li Hung Chang would be pleased if he graciously would appoint as Minister to China Colonel Frederick D. Grant, son of the solid steerman, to whom Li Hung Chang was most devoted."

Before the arrival of this dispatch President McKinley had perfected the arrangement by which Mr. Conger was nominated as Minister, and he will be confirmed.

VERDICT SET ASIDE.

New Trial in the Suit of Ketchum vs. the Chicago & Northwestern.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—The verdict given Engineer Fred R. Ketchum against the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad for alleged blacklisting was to-day set aside by Judge Richard W. Clifford. A new trial is granted.

By the verdict Ketchum had been awarded $21,000 damages. The case was an outgrowth of the Debs strike. The ground upon which the court sets aside the verdict and grants a new trial is that of an improper instruction given to the jury in the plaintiff's behalf. The court said in giving his decision that the reviewing court would need nothing more than a mere inspection of the verdict to set it aside.

FEDERAL APPOINTMENTS.

Nominations Sent to the Senate by President McKinley.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The President to-day sent these nominations to the Senate: Lewis Morris Oodings of New York, to be Secretary of the Embassy at Rome, Italy; Richard T. Greaner of New York, Consul at Bombay, India.

Treasury—Second Assistant Engineer William L. Maxwell of California, to be a first assistant engineer in the revenue cutter service.

Prof. Andree's Balloon.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 13.—Professor Nordenskjold, the Arctic explorer, has informed the Swedish Academy of Science that the Foreign Office has received intelligence that several persons worthy of credence saw Professor Andree's balloon early in August in British Columbia seven miles north of Queenella Lake, in the district of Cariboo. The Professor regards the news as being of sufficient importance to call for closer investigation.

Four of the Crew Injured.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Commander McCall of the United States steamship Marblehead, has reported to the Navy department from Port Tampa that while at small arms target practice yesterday four men of the Marblehead were injured by an explosion, two of them very severely. The injured men were removed to the Marine Hospital near by. No details as to the cause of the explosion were given, nor were the names of the injured learned.

Col. Picquart Arrested.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Colonel Picquart, who is understood to be the officer who brought the charges against Count Esterhazy, recently acquitted of treason while at small arms target practice, was arrested this morning and incarcerated in the Fortress of Montvauxen.

GEORGE TALKS SERIOUSLY.

And is Grieved by the Tendency of Mabel Toward Frivolity.

"Mabel, you can trust me, can't you?" Tremulously, almost appealingly, he spoke, yet his deep bass voice seemed to jar the windows.

"Yes, George," replied the maiden; "—"

"When I tell you," he broke in, "that I never loved any other girl; that I never knew what love was—or is—till I met you; that I never could love anybody else if I should live to be as old as the hills—D. B. Hill and Sam Hill—and that since the very first day I met you I have hardly slept a wink—people don't think when they sleep, but it would be taking a base advantage to pick me up on a technicality like that."

"Yes, George," interposed the fair young girl in that low, soft voice which is so excellent a thing in women and children, "I can trust you—"

"I felt sure of it!" fervently exclaimed the young man. "Mable Harknang! the devotion of a whole lifetime—what would it be to me if I didn't have you? It must have been the echo. You needn't talk so loud, George."

He drew a long breath of relief. "I thought it was your father."

"I can hear you in a much lower tone, George. You are sitting"—she measured the distance between the two, "more than a foot and a half away. But that's near enough," she added, hastily, as he showed immediate symptoms of shortening the interval.

"Mabel, why should—"

"The spirit of mortal be proud!" "You interrupt me, young woman, when I am talking to you. I isn't respectful. I am older than you. Four and a half years older. Why should—"

"We mourn departed friends, or shake a—"

"Again, Miss Harknang, I must insist on a respectful hearing."

His voice resumed the melodious, appealing note in which he had begun. "When two people—two persons—who, I am sure—"

"Don't assume too much, George."

"Why should trifles be allowed to separate us? Mabel—"

"He was on a foot and a half," she murmured abstractedly, "a trifle."

"Mabel!" "Well?" "Will you listen to me?" "What was it you started to say? I've forgotten."

"I was trying to find out why you can't be serious with me for once. You treat me as if I were a ground-headed duffer. Have you ever seen me trying to smoke a cane? Did I ever give you the sky-scraping handshake? Do I wear collars that make me throw up my head when I want to nod? Was I ever a Colonel?"

"Broadway Englishman? Do I act like a West Park policeman? You listen to my tale of—of love as if I were telling some old story you had heard a hundred times—"

"Why, so it is, George—an old, old story."

"Mabel Harknang, you shall hear me! You shall not treat me any longer—"

"I have never treated you in my life," she protested, "to anything. I am not an advocate of women's rights to such an extent as that."

"Once again, Mabel, tell me you trust me."

"Oh, yes, George," she said, with a slight frown. "I trust you as far as I can sling a four-year-old mule by the tail."

A Bogus Relic.

A very amusing instance of the way in which museums are imposed upon has just come to light. At the French Revolution, when the Cathedral of St. Denis was so mutilated, the figures which ornamented the beautiful Gothic tomb of Dagobert were thrown down, and for the most part destroyed, all that remained being the body of his Queen Nantilde, which was placed in a casket, and taken to the city of Clovis. When the restorers stepped in subsequently they made the best they could of the bits, putting the son's head on the mother's body and calling it the Reine Nantilde. Not very long ago more intelligent restorers put end to this absurdity, and there are now to be seen at St. Denis two statues on which the original portions of such are preserved. But meanwhile casts of the hybrid were taken, and they still exist in the collection of the Beaux Arts at Paris and in the National Bavarian Museum at Munich. Examples to students of this that is best in Gothic art, but this is not all. In the Great Museum at Berlin, in the sculpture department, there is a small statue of stone, with various cracks and flaws which give it an antique appearance, which is nothing less than a smaller and more imprudently made counterfeit of the hybrid. The forger felt the difficulty which might be raised by placing a man's head above a woman's bust, and so has modified both to a small extent; but there is not a shadow of doubt that he has succeeded in palming off a most unexpected imposture where he could little expect to—St. James Gazette.

It should be remembered that "promoters" are mostly interested in promoting their own welfare.—Philadelphia Press.

"Well, I find $30 for that parrot too high. You say he can't talk?" "No, he can't talk, but he understands everything that's said."—Fleegand Blatter.
