

VERY NEARLY A WHITWASH.

BUT ONE RUN FOR THE BEACH-COMBERS.

The Gilt Edge Aggregation, However, Filled Up No Less Than Fifteen.

There was a promise of top-notch baseball at Snowflake Park yesterday afternoon, and until well nigh the close of the game that promise was fulfilled.

When the smoke of battle rolled away the blackboard showed: Sacramento 15, Santa Cruz 1.

The Santa Cruz people came up full of snap and vigor and played ball, and the Gilt Edges, who, owing, it is said, to the diplomacy of Henseny, were all on the diamond except Shanahan, who is sick, played in their usual form; and the crowd of about 2,000 people were treated to a sight of baseball as it ought to be played.

Harvey and Stanley, in the points for the Gilt Edges, worked hard and made a great showing, but the locals were almost totally unable to locate the right hooks sent in by Louis Balz, who learned to play ball in Sacramento, while Daubenis, the husky backstop, slaughtered every man who attempted to slide to second or anywhere else.

For four innings neither team got a man over the plate, but in their half of the fifth the local people spurted, and a streak of luck coming their way, they made the first tally. It was done this way:

Stanley rolled one to Devereaux at third, who fumbled it—the first error made—and the Gilt Edge catcher was safe. Lockhead was retired on three strikes, and while he was doing it Stanley tried for second, but Daubenis shot him out. Borland drove one into the south bleachers for two bases, and Harvey dropped a safe over the infield. Borland getting home, Dennis batted one to Balz, and was out.

In the sixth the locals piled up three more runs, and the dissatisfaction which finally ruined the game broke out. The Santa Cruz men declared the umpires were giving them the short end of the deal, and some persons in the crowd—not many—thought likewise.

Stanley was running to third base, and he and Devereaux ran foul of one another. Henseny claimed that Devereaux had held Stanley, the crowd agreed with Henseny, and Umpire Griffin agreed with the crowd, and Stanley walked home and added one to the string. Though the Santa Cruzians were sore they kept waving wood, even though the score was 4 to 0.

In the visitors' half of the sixth Balz picked up one of Harvey's drops and batted it out of the county and far over the fence, and walked around the bases—a home walk. The crowd rose at Balz, and he was beyond question the hero of the game.

It was in their half of the seventh that the visitors made the "kick" of the season and stopped playing ball, though after twenty minutes' deliberation they agreed to slouch around in the field as usual to get their portion of the receipts, and allow the crowd to yell when the locals would slouch out a ball that nobody would go after.

In the seventh it began to look as though the visitors were out to win the game. McGrath flew an easy one to Doyle in center field, whose fingers were greasy, and it slipped through. Fitzgerald flew a hard one to Borland, who gobbled it up. Daubenis hit safe into Doyle's garden, and McGrath was on second. He started for third, but changed his mind and beat the ball back to second. Huches heaved the ball to first, and the umpire declared that Daubenis was out.

There is no doubt that the visitors had ground for a kick. The play was a remarkably close one, and the fact that the home team is entitled to the doubt, if any exists, seems to have been lost sight of by the umpires.

Every man of both teams was on the middle of the diamond a minute later, and if one of the umpires did not call "time" there would seem to be a total understanding that the game was off. McGrath loitered around the second cushion, waiting for a settlement of the point, and showed no inclination to walk around to the plate.

After five minutes of wrangling McGrath lumbered to the bench, and when the visitors finally agreed to call Daubenis out a Gilt-Edger got a ball from somewhere and poked McGrath in the short ribs, and the umpire called him out because he was off his base and "time" had not been called.

Some people at the game thought the visitors did not get a square deal at the hands of the umpires—not many, though.

At any rate, the Santa Cruzians walked from the field and packed their effects. They decided to play out a game in which they maintained they were given no chance to win. And then the Gilt Edges—all except Henseny—wanted the visitors' share of the receipts withheld and added to their string, and for another quarter of an hour nothing was done.

At the end of that time the men from the ten-ball-players, every one of them—walked out into the field. But the life was out of them. They merely went out to get railroad fare, and not to play ball. Balz, his combed hair, went over to third and "crack" pitcher, while Devereaux threw some straight easy ones at the Gilt Edges, who knocked them all about the field at will. McGrath, the man who was called out at second, and who had played great ball at first, would merely wave

THE ORDER MAY COME TO-DAY

CITIZEN SOLDIERS ARE READY FOR DUTY.

California's Quota Expected to be a Little in Excess of Two Thousand.

The expectation is that the order calling for a specified number of volunteers from the organized militia of this State will be sent to-day by Governor Budd. The Governor has been making his headquarters in San Francisco, where he was interviewed on Saturday by press reporters.

Governor Budd estimates that it would cost the State $300,000 to maintain the National Guard in active service for thirty days, and he does not feel justified in authorizing this expense in view of the uncertainty regarding the number of troops that may be called for from California under the proclamation of the President.

The dispatches from Washington were carefully studied at headquarters. The announcement by wire that the President would call for 125,000 men gave the military authorities an opportunity to approximate the number to be furnished by California. It is expected that the State's quota will be 2,300.

The statement coming from Major-General Miles, U. S. A., that volunteers will go into camp in their own States for thirty days before leaving for the Gulf Coast, engaged the earnest attention of Governor Budd. After reading this telegram the Governor remarked: "This plan for holding troops in their respective States for thirty days will give me time to make a careful selection of officers."

When asked what point or points he would designate for the State troops to go into camp the Governor replied: "I think San Francisco will be the point designated. The troops may go into camp at the Presidio."

The Governor is still of the mind that Sacramento, Los Angeles, San Diego, Fresno, Stockton and other large cities of California where National Guard organizations are maintained, should have equal opportunity with San Francisco and Oakland for representation in the first two regiments of volunteers to be mustered into the United States service from California. On this point the Governor said:

"I shall make an effort to give representation to all parts of the State. Since it appears now that the troops will remain in camp here for thirty days before going to the front, I will probably have time to consider this subject in all its bearings. If troops were expected to move immediately I might adopt the plan of sending two regiments as now organized and officered."

The Act of Congress authorizing the President to call volunteers into the service of the United States gives the Governor the right to appoint and commission all officers below the rank of Brigadier-General. The Colonels, Lieutenant-Colonels, Majors, Captains and Lieutenants commissioned by Governor Budd will be in command of the rank in the United States volunteer service.

It is well settled that officers for active service in the field will be selected with regard to their fitness to command, but it does not follow that the wishes of the men to be commanded will have no weight in the selection.

Early this morning the Governor will doubtless receive from Washington the official call for volunteers. Immediately upon its receipt steps will be taken to place two regiments of infantry in the field.

THE PRINTERS.

Enthusiastic Meeting of the Typographical Union.

The regular monthly meeting of Sacramento Typographical Union, No. 46, 251 Broadway, was held last evening and was a large attendance, notwithstanding the baseball attraction—the typists' unarmored weakness.

Applications for reinstatement were received from members who are now located in Washington, Oregon, Nevada and various parts of this State, and two Sacramentans applied for initiation.

The Sick Committee reported that a disabled member is being amply provided for from funds at the committee's disposal.

Labels issued by the union have been withdrawn and supplanted by those of the Triple Alliance—printers, pressmen and bookbinders.

Delegates to the Sacramento Federated Trades Council reported the Council as having voted a liberal sum toward the striking printers and pressmen, and cigar-makers had likewise forwarded substantial sums to the strikers, the first named union's donation being $250.

The Deputy District Organizer, who for a week was an active participant in the executive affairs of the San Francisco strike, reported the situation as improving from day to day for the strikers, and that the soon-to-come break which the employers anticipated had not materialized.

By unanimous vote it was decided to levy and collect a weekly assessment of five per cent on the membership, the same to be forwarded every week to the striking co-workers of San Francisco.

It was also decided to request the Federated Trades Council to call a general meeting of unions for the purpose of enlightening all union men on the fairness of the request for nine-hour day, as promulgated by printers and pressmen.

The President announced his intention of an early departure at Uncle Sam's first call to the front, and the meeting adjourned amid declarations to support the strikers and to defend Columbia.

A SUSPECT.

The Supposed Sleeping Car Thief Under Arrest.

A colored man named George Parker was landed in the City Prison by Officers Fisher and Maley yesterday, and the officers feel confident he is the person who for the past two months has been looting Pullman sleeping cars in California.

Many complaints have recently been made that grips, money and jewelry had been stolen from coaches in this city, and that overcoats, and even vests and hats, were stolen while passengers slept.

The officers got a good description of the man supposed to have done the stealing, and yesterday rounded him up on K street near Fourth.

When searched a set of Pullman car keys, which will unlock any car turned out by the Pullman Company, were found on him, and it was subsequently learned that he was at one time employed as porter on one of the cars running between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

A BAD PAIR.

Pedersas and Ellsworth Tell of Their Thievery.

Ed Ellsworth and Frank Pedersas, the hen-roost operators who were on Saturday last gathered in by Chief of Police Dwyer and Officers Maley and Fisher, yesterday did a great deal of talking, each trying to lay his comrades far into the mire as possible, and each bragging his own skirts worse with every word.

As stated in yesterday's "Record-Union," Pedersas confessed to having stolen a great many articles and being pointed out some of the places where raids had been made.

To even up matters, Ellsworth yesterday expressed a desire to tell what he knew, and Stenographer B. C. Brier was called in to take his statement. He mentioned twenty-six places where he and Pedersas had robbed roosts, and said there were many others he could not then recall.

The officers have located the rings and earnings said to have been stolen by Ellsworth from the house of Mrs. Guadalupe, about two weeks ago, and as a trunk was broken open when the property was stolen, a charge of burglary will be placed against the thieves.

Weather Reports.

The Weather Bureau reports show the highest and lowest temperatures yesterday to have been 89 and 54 degrees, with light to gentle southerly and westerly winds and clear weather prevailing.

The barometrical readings at 5 a. m. and 5 p. m. yesterday were 29.98 inches and 29.89 inches respectively.

The highest and lowest temperatures on any one day yesterday were 82 and 54 degrees, and on any one day to-day 80 and 60 degrees.

The average temperature was 72 degrees and the normal 60 degrees, showing yesterday to have been 12 degrees warmer than usual for the 24th day of April.

Rooted Too Viciously.

Olof Anderson, one of the "rooters" who came to this city with the Santa Cruz baseball aggregation yesterday, yesterday made an effort to give representation to all parts of the State. Since it appears now that the troops will remain in camp here for thirty days before going to the front, I will probably have time to consider this subject in all its bearings.
