

SOME NOTES OF NEW BOOKS.

"RECORD-UNION'S" LITERARY TABLE-EARTHQUAKES.

Two New Novels—A Theological Essay—Story of a Prisoner—Stevenson.

From William Doxey (San Francisco), the publisher, we have the "Rubayyat of Omar Khayyam," translated into English verse by Edward Fitzgerald. It is one of Mr. Doxey's "Lark Classics." The neat little volume is prefaced by a poem by Omar Khayyam, by Justin H. McCarthy, and a poem by Porter Gwinnett. The introduction, dealing of the astronomer-poet of Persia, is by Mr. Fitzgerald. There are several pages of explanatory notes. The little volume sells at 50 cents.

"Christ in the Daily Meal" is a volume from the press of Ford's, Howard & Hulbert (New York), and is by Norman Fox, D. D. It is a historical commentary and a Christian view of the ordinance of breaking bread. The work of Dr. Fox is brought out by the recent article on this subject by Professor Briggs in "The Independent," and his statement that "there is no doubt that we are on the eve of a reconsideration of the whole subject," is but one of many indications that the origin, history and ecclesiastical position of this sacrament are to be subjected to renewed study, says Dr. Fox.

The position taken in this book is that Jesus had his disciples eat and drink "in remembrance" of him, not merely once a month, once a week, occasionally, now and then, but whenever they ate bread and drank wine, even in their own homes; that his words do not command a separate meal, but a remembrance of him in the ordinary meal; that the New Testament knows no "supper" consisting of but a morsel of bread and a sip of wine, but the only meal of the Apostolic churches being the agape, or love-feast, an actual repast; and that Paul's censure of the Corinthians because "one is hungry" implied that their church supper was to be one at which a destitute brother might be filled, his criticism of their meal being, not that it was too sumptuous, but only that it was not shared in brotherly love. The writer offers no suggestion of change in the present church supper, although it has no scriptural precedent; he merely contends that it should not be called the, but only, to use Paul's expression, "a supper of the Lord." He condemns "close communion" as an outgrowth of the doctrine of baptismal regeneration, declaring that the church should invite to the table all devout persons, baptized or unbaptized, who desire to unite in a remembrance of the Master.

"The Crook of the Bough" is a novel by Menil Muriel Dowie, author of "A Girl in the Karpathians," press of Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, and sells at $1.25. The scenes are in part laid in the Orient, and the people range from monks to Princesses and Counts and other nobility. The Turk, the Greek, the Englishman, the Armenian and other nationalities figure throughout the dramatic story. It is a stirring, active and charming life story, full of dramatic vigor, and is especially noticeable for the strength, sharpness and clearness with which the characters of the romance are drawn.

"Seven Months a Prisoner" is the stirring recital of J. V. Hadley, recounting the trials of a soldier of the Union taken captive by the Confederates. He was a Lieutenant upon the staff of General J. C. Rice, Second Brigade, Wadsworth's Division, Fifth Corps. The story is one of the most graphic and thrilling imaginable, full of horrors, and full also of tender sentiment and burning patriotism. It is an admirably told tale. The book gives us some side light views of General Grant and other Union commanders.

From W. F. Powell, Sacramento, we have E. R. Herick & Co's New York publication of Virginia Frazier Boyle's "Brokenburne," a Southern Auntie's war tale. It is freely illustrated. It is a dialect story, not long, well told, full of interest, charged with quaint humor and not without dramatic character. There are smiles and tears all through the handsome quarto, and at no instant does the interest in either relax.

"The Girl at Cobhurst" is a novel by Frank R. Stockton, press of Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. It is one of the most extended of Mr. Stockton's romances. It is in the best vein of this popular author.

"A Lowden Sabbath Morn" is presented in handsome quarto form with free illustrations by A. S. Boyd. It is scarcely necessary to comment upon this charming Scotch poem by Robert Louis Stevenson. It breathes of hills and dales and woods and flowers; of quaint old Scotch customs and people. Mr. Stevenson said: "It may be guessed by some that I had a certain parish in my eye, and this makes it proper that I should add a word of disclaiming," and then in his best humor he makes it clear that while his characters are drawn at large he really had individualities of his experience in view when he wrote lassies and elders, and parsons and all the rest. The poem was never in choicer setting than Mr. Boyd has given it with his strong, boldly drawn figures and his cool and breezy glimpses of landscape. Press of Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, $1.75.

We have from the Lick Observatory a "Catalogue of Earthquakes on the Pacific Coast from 1769 to 1897," by Edward S. Holden, LL.D., late Director of the Lick Observatory. It is reprinted from the Smithsonian miscellaneous collections, No. 1,087, for distribution by the Lick Observatory. It is a volume of 253 pages, with many maps and illustrations.

ADMIRAL CERVERA.

Whom the American Fleets Would Like to Capture.

The Spanish Cape Verde fleet, toward which the eyes of all the world have been turned with interest, is commanded by Admiral Cervera. He is an ancient mariner, wily, full of resources and well informed in his profession. He has won his promotion by merit as well as by political influence, and has grown old in the service of his country without having much experience in the actual activities of war.

He is a man of determination, and expects to be able to accomplish much with his ships. He is excessively cautious, and has the confidence of the Administration of Spain. He is assisted in his work by Admiral Villamil of the Spanish torpedo squadron. Admiral Cervera is cheery and benevolent, and has many personal friends on this side of the waters.

EVERYBODY'S COLUMN.

Under this heading the "Record-Union" will publish short letters from correspondents on topics of interest to the general public. The matter in these communications will be understood to represent only the views of the writers. All communications must be accompanied by the name of the writer, and for publication unless so desired, but as a guarantee of good faith.—Eds.

The Tramp Nuisance.

Eds. "Record-Union": I see that under the caption "Not a New, But a Wise Proposition," you endorse a suggestion of Henry Rood in the "Forum," holding that communities should organize and give food or shelter to men unwilling to work for it in advance. It is not my purpose to find fault with, or dissent from, the position taken by Mr. Rood and endorsed by you, as well as by many others, who insist upon the tramp as a necessary evil, for under present conditions there must be tramps so-called. But time and a better understanding of our duty toward our fellow-men by those who can and do provide work for those found deserving by Mr. Rood's rule may dispense with a system which often deprives other and perhaps better men of employment. This system prevails because most people means delight in the thought that they are doing an act of charity while merely permitting a man to live—are "laying up treasures in heaven," while as a matter of fact they are but making exhibitions of themselves as Pharisees. While granting the wisdom of Mr. Rood's proposition, and pleading guilty to adding the last sentence to sustain your position on that point as matters now stand, permit me to suggest that all may be changed if we so will it.

Do not be surprised when I say that there need be no such word as charity in the offensive sense in which it is often used to torture the deserving poor. Given average health, a reasonable knowledge of business methods, honesty, integrity, industry and professional ability; wanting money to exercise these qualities for the benefit of self, family, if any, other people in any event, to the extent of labor required to prosecute business; problem, how to obtain money? Who is going to work out the answer, and who knows what it will be? Mr. Rood will never work it out by his method; the associated charities have no method for the work; the Pharisees who delight in telling their stories on the street corners of the meals they have "given to the poor whom they compelled first to earn them, may attempt an answer, but it will not be the true one; the business man will not find the answer except with the sure element of ample return, though he will "go down in his pocket" to help the man for "sweet charity's sake" whom he would not oblige in a business way; the banker will not solve the problem because, at his own request, the law so hedges him about that he is obliged to require "collateral" for every dollar he loans.

Where, then, is the answer? Is it presuming too much to say that the problem may be made easy of solution by a simple change in business morals and honesty among the people who have the power, namely, money, to devote to the furtherance of the interests of the masses, and the consequent improvement of the country in a material sense?

In the glad day when men shall be actuated by a sincere desire to honestly do their duty in all that constitutes the true man and the good citizen, there will be little need for charity in the sense in which it is applied to-day. The able, the efficient, the honorable citizen can find the equivalent of these qualities in the necessary means to carry forward his work for the good of his kind, when that day of moral reform shall come, instead of being compelled, as he is now, to accept a pittance, or, worse, to be content with nothing, or to try his fortunes honorably as a journeyman with little better success than when he asks the poor privilege to toil in the city he has helped to build. It is a crime to force such men upon the road to be looked upon as tramps and treated as outcasts; yet all these people whom I have suggested as possible competitors in the effort to solve my problem are a few who voluntarily become tramps, and thus share the responsibility for the "tramp nuisance," the people who fail to distinguish between the self-respecting citizen who is every way worthy of their confidence and the man who cannot be trusted for a meal, need take no credit upon themselves for charity—need, in fact, seldom exercise charity, if they would but reach out the hand in a business way to the ablest of the unemployed, and to the slough of despond; I give you my hand and accept yours as a pledge for the good that we can do.

It is mistaken charity to help those who will not help themselves; and it is equally a mistake to withhold the means to do so from those who are capable and honest, and any man who himself is not the creature of a "fortunate accident"—that is, who has not been "born with a silver spoon in his mouth," or received a chance visit from Dame Fortune—can make a good thing out of establishing soup-houses for men who are capable of earning and dispensing three good meals a day to three-fourths of the victims of charity, but are now asked to work in advance for a single meal, or to bow in abject humiliation before the dispensers of grace, who say often blunder, than thou." Charity cannot serve a higher purpose than to hasten the day when those men who have tasted poverty through some chance of fortune without fault of their own, may be enabled to look the whole world in the face and say, "I will not be helped." "Come with me along the high-way of success; humanity is not what it was when you and I were despised because we were poor; if you prove true to me we shall work and win." This is the key to the problem, work it out.

True Comfort.

A prison chaplain recently related, at a religious meeting, one of his experiences in a convict prison. He had visited a sick prisoner and told the warder that if the man grew worse in the night he—the chaplain—was to be called. In the morning he found that the prisoner had died in the night; and calling upon the warder to account for his neglect, the latter assured him that it was all right, for he had "offered a new word" himself. The following appear to have been the words of comfort that the warder found appropriate to the occasion: "Warder—Awkins, you have been a bad 'un. Prisoner, wearily—Yes, sir, I 'ave. Warder—Awkins, there is no 'ope for you. Prisoner, sadly—No, sir, no 'ope. Warder, relentlessly—Awkins, you will go to a bad place. Prisoner, turning restlessly—Yes, yes, Warder—Awkins, be thankful that you have a place to go to.—Household Words.

Do you have headache, dizziness, drowsiness, loss of appetite and other symptoms of biliousness, or are you troubled with humors of the blood? In either case Hood's Sarsaparilla will cure you.

We Close at Noon Decoration Day.

Monday, Decoration Day, our stores will close at 12 o'clock, and remain closed during the balance of the day.

"Solid Comfort."

A delightful change over night in our Model Apartment. The dreary kitchen (every woman's nightmare) is no more. "Solid Comfort," the exhibit which has taken its place, will please you, and give you hints of much value.

MONDAY, MAY 30th, Sale of 350 Yards Novelty Waist Silks, 75c YD.

Included are Block Checks and Fancy Plaids.

We have never offered more desirable silks at special prices than these novelty waist silks in twenty-five new colors, which we shall place on sale Monday, at the opening of business. All are of this season's latest styles and colorings, and included are what is left of our two and three-toned block checks, handsome taffeta plaids, fine Lorraine novelties, etc. To say this will be a rare opportunity for silk buyers will be to use an old expression that will gain a new significance from this sale. Don't be unwise, and expect to find many of these patterns after Monday's selling, and remember that our stores will be closed Monday afternoon. Be on hand early. The silks will be offered at the opening of our stores Monday morning.

Monday's Price, 75c Yard.

G. A. R. Hats.

These new hat cords for women and children are made of braided silk cord, 3/4 inch wide, in the national colors. They are very pretty, and you can show your patriotism wearing one on your hat. Just in time for Decoration Day. 15c.

G. A. R. Hats, complete with cord and wreath, $1.36. Separately, hat $1; cord, 25c; metal wreath, 11c.

Fine Shoes and Ties.

Two of the swellest styles in our stock—and not only swell in appearance, but combining, as well, the qualities that make shoes genuinely good.

The first, a very pretty new style tie, made of fine kid, in a rich dark brown shade, with silk vesting inlaid lace stay and top. The toes are neat coin toes, with square-cut kid tops; the heel is a full French stitched heel. Price, $4.

The second, a fine dress shoe, right up to date in all particulars. Made of black patent leather with black cloth top, long pointed toes and French stitched heels. Price $5. You will find it decidedly interesting, and profitable as well, to see our fine shoes for both men and women before purchasing elsewhere. No trouble to show the shoes to you, and no necessity for you to buy unless fully satisfied.

TUESDAY, 9:30 A. M.

SPECIAL SALE OF Enameled Ware, Etc.

Next Tuesday the number of money saving opportunities that are to be met with at all times in our House Furnishing Department will be augmented by the offering of a number of kitchen articles at less than the regular prices. Don't you want something from the following list?

LOT I.—Good, dependable, enameled, lipped saucers, two-quart size. Tuesday's Price, 9c.

LOT II.—GALVANIZED DISHPANS AT 18c. These dishpans are in two sizes, made of galvanized iron; will not rust or leak, unquestionably the most serviceable dishpans to be had. 14 quart size and 17 quart size, both to be sold, while they last, at Tuesday's Price, 18c.

LOT III.—Enameled cooking kettles, 12 quart size, 33c. Cooking pots or kettles suitable for use as soup pots or for the putting up of fruit. Made with two handles and furnished with tin cover. Just such pots as formerly sold for 75c. Tuesday's Price, 33c.

LOT IV.—Large size bottle washing ammonia, good and desirable as to quality. We were fortunate in securing a large quantity of this ammonia at a close figure, hence we are able to offer it at Tuesday's Price, 6c.

LOT V.—Enameled saucepan, like illustration, 5 quart size, made with long handle and furnished with tin cover. These saucepans are all in perfect condition, and are bound to be picked up in a hurry at Tuesday's Price, 23c.

LOT VI.—Fireproof stove stew kettles, with wire bail handles, in 4 quart and 6 quart sizes. These kettles can be placed directly on top of the fire—will stand all kinds of heat. Will boil or stew much quicker than metal kettles, and retain heat much longer. Our special price is just one-quarter of the sum they were formerly sold at. Tuesday's Price, 18c.

LOT VII.—Asbestos griddles, two kinds, two prices, 21c and 28c. First round griddles, asbestos lined, with two cold brass handles. It is made of Russia steel, and is just the thing for summer use on gas, coal or gasoline stoves. Tuesday's Price, 21c.

Second kind is made in same manner and of same materials, but is oblong in shape, size being 17 inches in length by 8 inches in width. Tuesday's Price, 28c.

To My Old Patrons.

I STILL OFFER MY VALUABLE services, if you are so unfortunate as to require them. When a man is sick and needs a physician the inquiry is where can I find one who has been long enough in this climate to understand the peculiar status of disease in our midst, with a mind matured and enriched by studies of an advanced order. I can safely say there is hardly a disease in the catalogue of human life that I cannot treat successfully. Ladies, I am always ready to assist you. My knowledge has been increased by extensive experience. I am now able to treat you with assured success. No complaint peculiar to your delicate organism is beyond my control. My female monthly medicines are superior to any offered heretofore, and are sure to have the desired effect. Those of the public who need my services I guarantee gently, honorably and scientifically treatment at reasonable rates.

Persons afflicted, if they prefer, can come to my office, giving symptoms of the disease, and receive medicines, all by express with full instructions. All communications to be addressed to J. J. JOSELYN, M. D., 406 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal., room 11. In all cases a cure guaranteed or no pay required. Consultation personally or by letter free. Apartments for patients, when desired. NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

PURSUANT TO AN ORDER OF the Board of Trustees of the State Normal School of San Diego, California, notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by said board until 10 o'clock a. m. of June 24, 1898, for furnishing the material and performing the labor necessary for the erection and completion of the central portion of the San Diego State Normal School Building.

Separate proposals will be received and separate contracts made for furnishing the material and performing the labor necessary for each of the following parts of said building: 1. For the masonry work, including all brick, concrete and ironwork, and all necessary excavations and fill; 2. For the iron work; 3. For the carpenter, plastering, electric and glazing work; 4. For the plumbing and gasfitting work; 5. For the painting and varnishing.

No proposal will be considered unless accompanied by a bond in such amount, equal to 10 per cent of his proposal, with at least two good and sufficient sureties, conditioned that if his proposal shall be accepted he will duly enter into a proper contract.

Each proposal must be made on blanks furnished for that purpose, and, together with the above-mentioned bond, enclosed in a sealed envelope, addressed to the Trustees State Normal School of San Diego, California, before 10 o'clock a. m. of June 24, 1898.

Said proposals will be publicly opened and contracts based thereon will be made on June 24, 1898, at 10 o'clock a. m., at room 35, Fisher Opera-house Block, in San Diego, California.

The plans and specifications of said building can be seen during business hours at the office of Helms & Co., Architects, Grant Building, San Diego, California.

The Board of Trustees reserves the right to reject any or all proposals made.

Attest: Robert C. Jones, Secretary.

Yankee Doodle, or the Spirit of '76.

The Wax Group now on exhibition in the Dark Room (rear of the Carpet Department in the annex to our stores) is attracting wide attention. This famous portrayal of patriotic spirit in its modernized reproduction in wax appeals to young and old. The undaunted spirit of three generations tells more eloquently than words of the strength, force and stability of this, the greatest of all Republics. The group is an object lesson for the young and an exhibit of special interest to the old. Everyone should see it. Come and bring the children with you.
