

MORE TROOPS THIS MORNING

FOUR TRAINLOADS OF TENNESSEE'S VOLUNTEERS.

One at 8 O'clock, One at 10, One at 12, and the Other at 2 p. m.

The Red Cross workers have another busy day before them. Between 8 o'clock this morning and 2 this afternoon they will have four trainloads of Tennessee volunteers to welcome and to provide with food.

The good women who are engaged in this commendable work, and the citizens who are assisting them, will have to do some lively hustling this morning to be ready for the first train of the soldier boys from Tennessee, but they will be equal to the emergency.

It had been expected that the first train would not reach the city until after 12 o'clock noon, and arrangements were made yesterday for that understanding, but the "Record-Union" learned last night from Superintendent Wright's office that the trains were approaching his division more rapidly than was looked for, and that the first might be expected here if no unforeseen delays should occur—by 8 o'clock this morning. The second train should come in by 10 o'clock, the third by 12, and the fourth by 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

One of the Red Cross committees was notified, and for a while the telephone wires connecting the homes of the Red Cross officers were kept hot with "calls to arms." In a short time arrangements were perfected to have an abundance of sandwiches and coffee ready for the first batch of hungry soldiers when they reach here, and after that it will be plainer sailing.

There are about 1,200 men comprising the Tennessee regiment, and it is estimated that three sandwiches to each is a small allowance for hungry men, so that some 3,600 sandwiches will be required. The number reported up to last evening as ready for the first trainload was 1,050, but as these were to be delivered about 10 o'clock they could not all be available for the men who have to arrive at an earlier hour, hence provision had to be made last night to meet the new conditions.

Those who had announced their readiness to go to the depot at 8 o'clock are: Mrs. H. G. Smith 100, Mrs. J. B. Wright 100, Mrs. Frank Miller 100, Mrs. A. P. Scheid 100, Mrs. A. N. Buchanan 75, Mrs. P. Bohl 100, Mrs. J. C. Boyd 75, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gropp 200, Mrs. M. W. McKim 100.

About 2,000 more sandwiches will be required, and all who can contribute should have them at the depot as early as possible this morning. There will be considerable work for the ladies at the depot in filling baskets to be passed into the cars, and it is hoped that all who can lend a hand will do so.

THE LATE JOHN T. GRIFFITHS

A TRIBUTE TO HIS WORTH BY REV. J. B. SILCOX.

Fitting Remarks by the Pastor at the Funeral of the Deceased.

One of the best citizens of Sacramento was laid to rest on Tuesday—the late John T. Griffiths, and the last honors that can be paid to the dead were bestowed in a manner attesting the esteem in which he was held in this community. Besides the large number of friends present, the members of Sacramento Lodge, No. 40, F. and A. M., of the Order of Eastern Star and the United Workmen attended as organizations.

The pall-bearers were E. C. Atkinson, H. D. Nash, S. S. Holl, James Fopert, A. B. Chapple and A. Norman. At the cemetery the Masonic burial service was conducted.

The services at the home were conducted by Rev. J. B. Silcox, pastor of the Congregational Church, who, after reading appropriate selections of Scripture, spoke at some length on the life and character of the deceased.

Though bereavement by death is common, he said, yet it is always of great sorrow to every heart that feels it. We are called together again to express our sympathy with those who mourn and to pay our tribute of affection and esteem to our brother whom God has called to rest and reward above.

Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord. They rest from their labors, but their works do follow them. We do not mourn as those who have no hope. Death cannot touch character. It cannot touch love. Love lives on, and those who have left us are still ours, and we shall meet them again in that larger, fuller life beyond the grave. Jesus has assured us of a Father's house of many mansions. Through the gates of death by the grace of Christ we enter that better life and home above.

The pastor spoke of the life and character of the deceased. He came to this city from the East in the early days of the State's life. In all the positions he had filled, he won the esteem of his fellow-citizens. In manifold ways he contributed to the betterment of the social life of the community. He was forward in temperance work. He did much to foster the musical life of the city. As President of the Board of Education, he helped advance the intellectual growth of the community.

He was not only a kind and generous man, but he possessed those finer qualities of character that made the truly Christian gentleman. He was kindly, courteous, polite, amiable and chivalrous. He brought the sunshine of a loving heart into his home and into the lives of those who were near him.

He was a man of high character and high integrity. He was a man of high principle and high courage. He was a man of high honor and high respect.

He was a man of high ability and high achievement. He was a man of high energy and high industry. He was a man of high courage and high valor.

He was a man of high character and high integrity. He was a man of high principle and high courage. He was a man of high honor and high respect.
