

FIGHTING YELLOW FEVER.

NOT A FORMIDABLE DISEASE UNDER PROPER CARE.

Modes of Infection and of Guarding Against It—Sternberg Alkaline Treatment.

As the yellow flag of Spain has been superseded by the more subtle agency of yellow jack in its attacks upon the soldiers at Santiago, and as the United States is likely for some time to have control of the islands of Cuba and Porto Rico, hot beds of yellow fever, it becomes a matter of concern and interest to the entire nation to know how to deal effectively with this insidious foe. It is fortunate, no doubt, that the medical staff of the army, of the navy and of the marine hospital service, under the attention of the Surgeon General, were so well prepared to treat this malady at the very outbreak of hostilities.

Surgeon General W. K. Van Reypen is authority for the statement that there has not been a case of yellow fever upon any vessel of the navy since the year 1858, and this is to be attributed largely to the sanitary instructions prepared by the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, such as were issued in April by Secretary Long. These instructions are concise and definite, and in part would be quite applicable to residents in dwellings, cities and towns, as to the use of pure water for drinking and culinary purposes, careful attention to the cooking and character of food, to clothing, bathing and the avoidance of infection.

Under the supervision of Surgeon General Walter Wyman, the officers of the United States Marine Hospital service, controlling all quarantine regulations, have just issued a pamphlet of 174 pages upon the "Nature, Diagnosis, Treatment and Prophylaxis" of this disease. The articles are written by Surgeons R. D. Murray, John Gutierrez, H. D. Geddings, H. R. Carter, Eugene Washburn, W. P. Brunner, A. H. Giannini, Seaton Norman, J. H. White, George B. Young, Preston H. Bailhache and E. K. Sprague, and cover every phase of the subject. Supervising Surgeon Wyman, though not an immune, has treated many cases of yellow fever, and does not regard it with the dread common to inexperienced.

Dr. George M. Sternberg, Surgeon General of the United States army, has been recognized by the medical profession throughout the world as an authority upon this subject for many years. He has had the disease himself, and has treated it in its worst as well as milder phases, and his published works upon the subject are accepted standards for diagnosis and treatment.

A DISPUTE AS TO THE MODE OF INFECTION. As to the mode of infection, authorities differ; some say from the food and some from the air. Says Dr. Washburn: "Yellow fever is essentially an air-borne infection, the entrance of which into the system has been supposed to be by way of the alimentary canal; the upper intestine serving the purposes of incubation of its poison, giving rise to the disease. More recently it has been advanced that probably the germ of yellow fever enters the general circulation through the respiratory organs in some obscure manner, and, incubating in the blood directly, poisons this life-giving stream."

Dr. Carter says: "The infection is heavy and hangs and spreads near the ground. It is unable to pass a close wall of any considerable height, although under the shady side of such a wall it may spread well when once started. It seems especially active at night, and certainly out of doors, is less likely to be contracted on clear, dry days. It is believed, I think, universally, to be taken into the human system by inhalation, although other avenues of entrance, since the observations of Sanares, are assumed by pathologists."

factor. The harbor of Havana is a cesspool, which for years has received the drainage of the city, and is vitally a cul-de-sac, with no means of its being scoured by the tides or fresh-water streams. The wharves on the Havana side of the harbor are notorious as foci of infection. Two of these, the Tallapiedra and San Jose, are particularly dangerous. Under the latter conditions, yellow fever patients of the army are treated. It has been said that no vessel has ever been tied to this wharf with a non-immune crew on board without yellow fever appearing among them. It is known among ship Captains as "Devil's Hole."

It is popularly supposed that the negro race is quite completely, if not wholly, immune from this disease. The truth seems to be that whenever an epidemic occurs among persons who are exposed to it are liable to its attacks, blacks usually being less susceptible and developing the disease in milder form. When the epidemic raged in the South in 1878 there were 162 cases among the colored population of Brownsville, Texas, with 21 deaths; at Chattanooga there were in all 685 cases, of which 420 were colored, with a mortality of 46, and 256 whites, with 118 deaths. At Decatur, Ala., there were 28 deaths among 64 whites, and 21 deaths among 186 blacks having the disease.

NO ABSOLUTE IMMUNITY. In general, the further north the nativity of the person attacked the greater the danger. As the result of observations made in Guiana, Dr. Blair says: "The lower the winter temperature the more severe was their sickness, so that while the mortality among the native West Indians amounted to only 6.9 per cent. of the sick, it rose to 17.1 among the Italians and French, 19.3 among the English, 20.2 among the Germans and Dutch, and 27.7 among the Scandinavians and Russians."

General Sternberg says: "In localities such as Havana and Rio Janeiro, where yellow fever has established itself as an endemic disease, the adult native population enjoys an immunity which is almost absolute, and has been supposed to be hereditary. This view, however, is generally accepted by physicians residing in these endemic foci of the disease. There is, however, accumulating evidence that the immunity enjoyed by 'Creoles' is not inherited, but results from a mild and usually unrecognized attack during infancy or childhood." Dr. Dowler was perhaps the first to advance this view in his report of the epidemic in New Orleans of 1853. "Many Creole children," he says, "had during the epidemic a fever, a slight fever, yellow fever, if you please, known as such only in the coexistence of the epidemic than from any severe symptoms among the children, a slight fever never yet described, having generally but one paroxysm, lasting from six hours to one, two or three days, scarcely ever requiring medication. That a few of these cases acquired an alarming violence, and even proved fatal, is, first true, most deplorable." The American Commission for investigating yellow fever which met at Havana in 1879, consisting of Drs. Sternberg, Challie, Hardee, Gutierrez and Burgess, decided that "children born in Cuba are in a condition to contract yellow fever, and possess no natural immunity against it."

Keep the Philippines. (From the Oakland Tribune.) There is no denying the fact that there is a crystallizing sentiment among the best portion of the American people, as well as in England, that this Government should hold and retain every foot of territory wrested from Spain, and over which the protecting arms of the American flag has been unfurled.

It is urged on the contrary that the taking of Manila did not give this country any claim to territory beyond that of the city of Cavite. In answer to this, it is urged that Manila is virtually the Capital of the whole group, at which Capital resided the Governor General of all the islands. And further, the question of what should be done with the Philippines was left for consideration and determination of the Commissioners to consider in the final settlement of the whole question. The Philippines have virtually passed from the sovereignty of Spain, and it would be an act of cruel injustice to the people of the islands to restore to Spain the tyranny of Spain. It would be an attempt to turn the earth backward in its progressive revolutions. It would be a bitter dispelling of the hopes for freedom to the millions of Philippines just as they had set their eyes on the dawn of liberty and caught a glimpse of the flag which guarantees equal rights, justice, mercy and freedom wherever its bright stars and stripes shall float, in aspiration of the free hearts' hope and home and the ending of oppression.

Senator Cannon of Utah expresses the growing sentiment of the American people in his remarks to the President, which we quote. He says: "Regardless of what has been said about the Hawaiian Islands being out of the track of commerce, it will in my judgment, be the depot and the seat of our commerce in the Pacific. With bases there and in the Philippines, this country will become a great Power, probably the controlling Power in the commerce of the Pacific and a participant in the trade of the Orient. The possession of the Philippines is almost certain to draw us into participation in the settlement of the Oriental question. This, I think, will be unfortunate. I do not believe that we should participate in that. Therefore, while I think we should take them, I doubt the advisability of making them a colony and retaining them permanently. I should like to see an independent government established there as early as possible.

Wanted. A SITUATION BY AN EXPERIENCED SALESMAN; good stock dealer; also a good driver; first-class bookkeeper; five years' experience and best of references. Address E. M., this office, 425-7.

and freedom wherever its bright stars and stripes shall float, in aspiration of the free hearts' hope and home and the ending of oppression. It would be dashing to the ground the cup of hope to every nation of advanced civilization, who have placed faith in our Government that it would break down the Spanish walls and open up the commerce in the commerce and trade of the world—relating to Spain, whose tender mercies are cruel, the exclusive role of robbery which marks her course wherever she has control.
