

CHARM.

Women endowed by nature with the indescribable quality we call "charm," for want of a better word, are the supreme development of a perfected race...

When we look at the portraits of the women history tells us have ruled the world by their charm, and swayed the destinies of empires at their fancy...

Pause, reader mine, a moment, and reflect. Who has impressed the place in your thoughts, who has filled your soul and influenced your life?

In the burly days of the life we lead in these latter days, we lose sight of so many things our fathers and mothers clung to, and have drifted away from so many of their gentle customs...

That we should accept it as a matter of course, and have come to think it quite natural and proper for a young wife and mother to pass her mornings at golf, lunching at the clubhouse...

It is just in the subtle quality of charm that the women of the last ten years have fallen away from their elders. They have been carried along by a love of sport, and by the set of fashion's tide...

It is not my intention here to rail against the shortcomings of the day. That ungrateful task I leave to stern moralists and busy reformers...

Mumyon's Headache and Indigestion Cure will cure every form of headache in 10 to 15 minutes, correct indigestion, stimulate the nerves and build up the system...

Weak Men! Weak Women!

LET ME HELP YOU?

My Electric Belt has made 1,000 sufferers rejoice during the past five years. It has cured them of weakness and of the pains and misery resulting from the loss of nervous energy...

DRUGS WILL NEVER CURE.

You who are making a drug shop of your poor, delicate stomach, listen! Drugs give strength; they stimulate like alcohol, but their effect has passed off, after the poor stomach and nerves have recovered from the stimulation...

THEN LISTEN TO ME!

You must have strength. The organs which are suffering are weak, WEAK, WEAK. They want help. Nature gives it to you. Nature has provided a remedy and almost worn-out with joy. You will feel your spirits jump with ecstasy, your blood will become warm, your nerves firm, and you will feel the joy of living again. My

DR. SANDEN'S ELECTRIC BELT

Will do this for you. It is simple, but grand. It pours its life into your body while you sleep at night. You awake in the morning bright and full of ambition. You get stronger daily and soon your heart is gladdened by feeling the life-blood warming your veins, causing joy and power that you have never before known.

on a bicycle, frantic at having lost her race? Shade of gentle William, who said that "A woman moved, was like a fountain troubled. Muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty. And while it is so, none so dry or thirsty; Will wait for it to come one drop of it. Is the modern girl under the impression that men will be contented with poor imitations of themselves to share their homes and be the mothers of their children?"

The moment she steps out from the sanctuary of her home, the glamor that girlhood or maternity has thrown around her cast aside, that moment will cease to rule mankind. Women may agitate until they have obtained some political recognition, but will awake from their foolish dream of power, realizing too late what they have sacrificed to obtain it, that the price has been very heavy, and the fruit of their struggles bitter on their lips.

There are few men, I imagine, of my generation to whom the words "home" and "mother" have not a penetrating charm, who do not look back with softened heart and tender thoughts to fire-side scenes of evening readings and twilight talks at a mother's knee, realizing that the best of their nature owes its growth to these influences.

I sometimes look about me and wonder what these words "mother" and "home" will mean later to modern little boys. They will evoke, I fear, but a confused remembrance of some centaury-like being, half woman, half wheel, or of a radiant creature in gauze and jewels, driving away to endless fetes—fetes followed by long mornings, when he and his brothers and sisters were told not to make any noise, or play too loudly, "poor mamma was resting."

What man, unless he be singularly dissolute or unfortunate, does not turn his steps when he can towards some dainty parlor where he is sure of finding a smiling, soft-voiced woman, whose welcome he knows will soothe his irritated nerves and restore the even balance of his temper; whose charm will work its subtle way into his troubled spirit?

MRS. M. A. PEALER

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, County of Sacramento. In the matter of the estate of MARY R. HARRISON, deceased.

Notice is hereby given that FRIDAY, the 21st day of October, 1898, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, and the courtroom of said court at the courthouse, in the city of Sacramento, County of Sacramento, and State of California, has been appointed as the time and place for proving the will of said Mary R. Harrison, deceased, and for hearing the application of Mary A. Coomes for the issuance to her of letters testamentary thereon.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this 14th day of October, 1898. (Seal) W. B. HAMPTON, Clerk. C. S. WACHOST, Deputy Clerk. Indorsed: Filed October 14, 1898. Hiram W. Johnson, Attorney for Petitioner.

When apples are eaten, save the seeds, so that you can try the "apple-seed" trick of sticking an apple-seed on each eyelid and naming each seed. The person whose name is given to the seed that sticks the longest will stick to you through life. Put three candles at an open window, each candle named for a sweetheart, and then watch and see which will put out first, and show fickleness, and which will flicker and flicker in the breeze, and yet burn brightly the next moment, showing the one who will ever remain faithful.

"Instead of the Halloween custom of suspending an apple by a string, hang a number of popcorn-balls, as many as there are guests, and at a given signal let each try to eat his corn without once touching his hand. No one can imagine how hard it is until he has made the attempt; and no one can do it with a sober face. As the guests bid the hostess adieu, let her present them with five bay-leaves, with the request that before retiring they put them on their pillow, one on each corner and one in the middle, giving some name of the opposite sex to every leaf. The one of whom the sleeper dreams is the destined wife or husband."
