

RYAN'S STOCKTON MEETING.

A GRAND RECEPTION TO THE SACRAMENTAN.

One of the Most Remarkable Political Demonstrations Ever Seen There.

(Stockton Independent, October 30th. If Sacramento succeeds in giving a more enthusiastic reception to the Republican candidate for Congress from this district, who is a Sacramento son, than Stockton gave to Frank D. Ryan last night she will have to begin early and keep moving. The gentleman was more than pleased and expressed some wonderment that so great a number should turn out to meet him in his opponent's home. He arrived from Tracy yesterday morning and spent most of the day moving about among the Republicans in the city, meeting old friends and making new ones.

THE PARADE.

The largest cavalcade of horsemen ever seen on the streets of Stockton at a political gathering turned out last evening in honor of Mr. Ryan. The affair must have reminded him of his home at Sacramento, for no efforts had been spared to show him that even though his opponent was a resident of this city he would not be overlooked when the ballots were being dropped into the boxes on November 8th next. The parade formed on Hunter street square, with the horsemen in the lead, followed by the band, the Gage and Neff Club, 400 strong, and the colored Republicans in front of the carriages, in which rode Frank D. Ryan, Frank H. Short, Frank L. Coombs and members of the County and District Central Committees. It had started on Hunter street square, thence to Market, to California, and to Main, where, at the Commercial Hotel, it had picked up the speakers; up that thoroughfare to El Dorado, thence to Weber avenue, to San Joaquin and to the Pavilion. Roman candles in the hands of those who marched made the route as light as day, while bombs kept the horses dancing and added to the enthusiasm. It was the largest political procession of the campaign and a fitting testimonial by the Republicans to their Congressional nominee. The streets along the route were lined with people anxious to get a glimpse of Mr. Ryan as he rode by in the first carriage.

The crossing at San Joaquin and Main was so blocked with people that it was with difficulty that the parade passed that point. Bonfires were burning at the corners of the pavilion facing on San Joaquin street and the big bombs fairly shook the buildings in that vicinity as the parade came in sight. The band played "Columbia," and a wave of enthusiasm seldom seen at a political meeting passed over the crowd. THE MEETING. The audience which gathered at the Pavilion was one of the best of the year, second only to that which greeted the head of the Republican ticket. The seats in the north wing were all occupied and there were as many in the main portion of the building as have attended the meetings at which the speakers' platform was where the small stage of the building is located. C. M. Keniston was the Chairman and he was greeted with applause. The large audience seemed to be in an audacious humor and showed it frequently throughout the evening. Mr. Keniston said that for the first time in his experience the Central Committee had chosen a number of ladies to act as Vice Presidents along with the men, and he will. These cheers for Henry T. Gage, the next Governor, followed.

Ripans Tabules of inestimable value. I know of a score or more in this immediate neighborhood who have been greatly benefited or permanently cured by use of them. I can say nothing too strong in favor of the medicine. It will do more than the makers claim for it.

A Rhode Island Clergyman, speaking very earnestly of his experience, declares: "In all cases of indigestion, insomnia, nervousness and allied ailments, I have found Ripans Tabules of inestimable value. I know of a score or more in this immediate neighborhood who have been greatly benefited or permanently cured by use of them. I can say nothing too strong in favor of the medicine. It will do more than the makers claim for it."

FRANK RYAN'S ADDRESS. As Mr. Ryan stepped forward to respond to the introduction he was greeted with a round of cheers which lasted so long that he had great difficulty in making a beginning. When he did he declared that he realized that the enthusiasm was not for him, but for the Republican principles which he represented, and for the fact that if given the opportunity to vote in Congress he would be voting to support the present brilliant Administration of President McKinley. He felt that the enthusiasm expressed stamped the simple approval of the people of what William McKinley had done. This district had many varied interests, mining, farming, stock raising and fruit farming. He realized that such varied interests meant much work and much worry. He knew that some little appropriation had been received in past, but they were entirely inadequate, and the people also realized that for the past two years there had been no appropriations for the district whatever. It was thought necessary that work should be done, and he believed that for various reasons that work would be done under a Republican Administration and most likely by a Republican Representative. A reason why it would have to be done under a Republican Administration was that a Republican Administration would invariably have money in the treasury, while the Democratic Administration usually had a deficiency starting it in the face, and the reason why the work would most likely have to be done by a Republican Representative was that he was more likely to be heard than a Democratic Representative. After paying his respects to the fusionists and the manner in which the three-party combination was brought about, Mr. Ryan said: "From what I have seen it looks to me that many of the (non-Republicans) are going to stand together this year and vote the Republican ticket and endorse the Administration of President William McKinley. The Republican party has given us a good Administration. It has kept, I think, all its promises. It has brought about a new tariff law. Have they not kept that promise? It promised the settlement of the Cuban question. Has not President McKinley taken up the question, and has he not, so far as he could, settled the proposition as to the affairs of Cuba, and as to the independence of Cuba? In the war that was brought on, has he not pursued a course and a policy that has given satisfaction to the American people? I do not propose now to go into a discussion of these matters. "It is a matter of history and we all know that by his conduct he has brought about a concord among the different sections of the nation. We know that to-day prosperity reigns all over the country, and we know that the sections of the nation have been brought more closely together. Regarding the alleged railroad influence at Sacramento, he denied that it had anything to do with the nomination of Mr. Gage. It was the united strength of the people of the southern part of the State which nominated Mr. Gage, and when one man from such a large section could come to any convention with such backing he was a pretty good man for Northern California to support. His answer to the assertion regarding the so-called funding bill for the payment of the Central Pacific Railroad debt in twenty semi-annual payments with interest, being a Republican measure, was that it was written by Senator Morgan, a Democratic leader, was endorsed by Senator White, a Democratic Senator from California, vouched for by Chairman Jones of the Democratic party and by the leaders of all the other parties, and was passed by a unanimous vote of all parties in the Senate. He did not know what was being said so far as he was personally concerned, but he did know that it was not nominated by the influence of any railroad or any other corporation, and he also knew that if he was elected to Congress his whole effort would be given to the Sacramento District and to the support of the present Administration. He believed that the Second District had been overlooked, as indicated by the fact that the Postoffice site had been purchased but never built upon. One reason was that when the Democrats were in power there was no money, and when there was money in the treasury the Representative was voting against the Administration, and it could not be expected. He declared that if in two years he did not get something done with that Postoffice site he would not ask to be returned. He said that McKinley had kept all his promises, and that he believed the people felt like endorsing what he had done. They could not do it by sending a Democrat to Congress. Democrats are politicians, and during the next two years they will do politics. They cannot do otherwise. They will see the fact that McKinley was very close to the people, and they would try to defeat his plans if possible, and a Democratic Congressman sent from this district could not do otherwise than vote with his party and against the President. As the next Congressman took his seat after thanking the audience for their attention the cheers were strong. While the band played a number who came to hear Mr. Ryan solely took the opportunity to leave, lacking the time to stay longer, as soon as the next speaker was introduced the audience settled down once more and enjoyed the talk without worrying about the time. Chairman Keniston called for three cheers for Frank D. Ryan, the next Congressman, and they were given with a will. These cheers for Henry T. Gage, the next Governor, followed.

White and Brass Not much over a year ago white enameled beds were coming to us, as they are coming to other dealers now, six and twelve at a time. But things have changed and we get them now in carload lots. The enormous saving in freight rates that we gain by this method can hardly be appreciated by one unfamiliar with these things. Suffice it to say that we share with you the benefit of every advantage we gain. The bed shown above, of white enameled iron, with brass rail across top and foot end, brass rings and brass balls on top of each post, we price at $12.50. This price includes our famous $3. Breuner woven wire fitted to the bed. Choice of double or three-quarter size. "The handsome show windows in town." Dozens of people made this remark yesterday (Saturday), referring to our present displays. "Haviland" No business name is better known throughout the world than that of "Haviland." It stands for the very best it is possible to obtain in chinaware. From Limoges, France, the headquarters of the Havilands, there has come to us during the past week some elegant white Haviland dinner sets of the very newest pattern that we will offer at exceptionally reasonable prices. One hundred piece sets at $36.90. Fifty-two piece sets at $18.75. Kitchen Tables $1.75 will be with-tandards sets of this kind from Sacramento. Strong fall leaf kitchen table, size, with leaves up, $2 by 47 inches; with leaves down, 19 1/2 by 42 inches. Price, $1.75. John Breuner CORNER SIXTH AND K.

EVERYTHING FOR THE HOUSE Sacramento, Monday, 31 October, 1898.

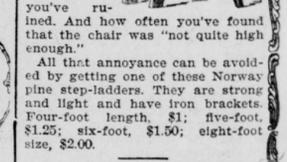

Get a Jewel range before Thanksgiving and do the Turkey up brown. The housekeeper who prides herself on her cooking cannot afford to trust her dinner to an uncertain range on the greatest dinner day in all the year. With a Jewel you are safe, for the whole world knows no better stoves and ranges than these. The Jewel steel range that we are selling now at $29.50 is worthy a careful inspection by prospective buyers. Instead of common sheet iron, this range is made of the highest grade of cold rolled steel and the asbestos interlining not only economizes fuel to a very great extent, but also prevents the radiation of unnecessary heat into the kitchen. And in many other points is this range superior, but come in and let us explain the construction to you—you won't be urged to buy.

Step Ladders How often do you have to get up on a chair to fix a curtain, or mend the sash, or clean the windows? And how many chairs you've ruined. They are strong and light and have iron brackets. Four-foot length, $1; five-foot, $1.25; six-foot, $1.50; eight-foot size, $2.00.
