INSTRUCT THE SENATOR. One of the very first acts of the Legislature after organization, and for that reason if for no other organization should be hastened, should be the passage of the necessary resolution instructing our Senators to vote for the ratification of the treaty of peace with Spain.

California is deeply, immediately interested in the ratification of the compact. But aside from that, her concern in National honor and welfare, puts her strongly on the affirmative of the question.

They do not wish their State to be placed in the list of those whose timorous fears withhold them from taking any step toward assertion of the importance and right of the nation among the powers of the world.

It is really unnecessary to discuss the matter very much since we assume that the legislators to assemble here next week, will come up thoroughly instructed by their constituents concerning public sentiment on this matter.

California is emphatically in favor of expansion, if by that is meant the refusal to throw away the fruits of a costly war.

She is opposed to turning back to Spain the unfortunate people rescued from her tyrannical grasp, or to committing them to inevitable domestic disorder if at once forced to assume the duties of self-government.

Expansion was an issue that we have practically passed upon at the polls, and California's verdict was rendered without any room for doubting its meaning.

In the late election it was here as it was in Pennsylvania, the Democratic ticket represented the non-expansion element.

Such papers as the Philadelphia "Record," a leading Democratic journal, made the fight of the campaign upon the one issue of expansion, opposing the Administration policy with vigor and acrimony.

But so thoroughly were the people imbued with the expansion idea, that they put aside issues involving the retractions and punishment of thieves officials, in order to emphasize the more their affirmation of the expansion doctrine.

So in California the vote for the Republican ticket represented the desire of this people for retention of the fruits of the war.

However much men in California may differ concerning the policy to be pursued towards the islands after we have ratified the treaty, we on this coast are of one mind, that the peace the treaty assures should be concluded.

That treaty cedes to the islands in question and that is expansion. How we will govern them afterwards is another question. What we will do with them is a matter not affecting the question of ratification.

It is enough to know that we are to free them from Spanish rule. After that is fully accomplished, we will honestly debate methods of control or disposal.

It follows, therefore, that Senator Perkins should not be permitted to misrepresent the sentiment of this State, as he assuredly will do, he declares, unless instructed to the contrary.

He has put it upon the Legislature to speak in the premises. He as much as says: "If you are now silent I will take it that you do not wish me to vote for the ratification of the treaty of peace with Spain."

covering from the State the percentage allowed tax collectors for collecting the State's share of public revenue.

There is just so much revenue to be raised to maintain the State Government. If the counties recover from the State the sums claimed by reason of the allowed percentage for collection not having been deducted to the credit of the counties, the State will be short just that much money, and as a matter of course will collect from the people through the county machinery the sum necessary to replenish its strong box.

What sort of a dilemma will the counties then find themselves in? They will have paid to the attorneys who are engineering the scheme from 10 to 40 per cent. of the sum recovered for their services, and having to make the State treasury good once more, the counties will find themselves out of pocket to just that amount.

Some idea of the gigantic dimensions of the scheme to recover the alleged dues to the counties may be gained by considering what the sum of money involved is, and what the contingent fees of the attorney firms who are working up this business will be.

Up to and not including the December settlements with the State treasury, the sum involved and which is to be sued for if the scheme goes through—indeed, some suits have already been brought—is $1,500,000.

That is, a million and a half dollars are to be drawn from the State treasury and paid over to the counties for the work done by tax collectors in collecting the State's revenue.

Including the December settlements, not yet complete, the sum total will reach the enormous figure of $1,750,000. Now for recovering that sum the attorneys who discovered the scheme to the Boards of Supervisors are to receive certain percentages, varying from 25 to 60 per cent.

It is safe to say, therefore, that the compensation they will receive for transferring State coin from one pocket to another in the same garment, will be $500,000.

When, therefore, to repeat—this $1,750,000 hole is made in the treasury, the State will proceed to tax the people to supply the deficiency, and so the taxpayers will put back the entire sum, and in addition be out the $500,000 the attorneys have pocketed.

There is every reason to believe that the Supervisors have no right to enter into these recovery contracts; that if the matter is brought to a test, all these contingent fee contracts are void.

Here now is an opportunity for the Legislature early in the session to put its heel firmly down upon a gigantic scheme to profit private pockets at the expense of the taxpayers' purses.

Through the expose made by our San Francisco contemporary, the "Chronicle" and forwarded against a most atrocious attempt to plunder the State Treasury by the sale of a worthless and inefficient voting machine.

This was to have been accomplished by the corruption of some legislators and the deception of others. The arts of the unscrupulous lobbyist were to be employed to push through a bill early in the session for the purchase of a machine which had been prepared for the express purposes of sale, but not for service.

Most of the men in the scheme were involved with full knowledge that the thing was a swindle from the outset, while others were probably deceived and were to put up their money as a simple investment in a seemingly fair business venture; that is, to capitalize a company to manufacture and sell a voting machine to be adopted by the State.

The bottom schemers themselves were not so tied up to the fraudulent machine that they were not ready to take up any other device, provided they were allowed to have the lion's share of the plunder in consideration of their nefarious work in pulling legislators and manipulating the necessary bills to effect the robbery of the State.

The "Record-Union" has favored for some years diligent inquiry into the system of machine voting, in order to fall upon some device that would, without at all limiting the rights of voters, further protect them from fraud, enable the returns to be speedily and invariably ascertained, and avoid the mistakes which invariably occur where the counting and tallying are done by election boards, which in largest part are made up of incompetent persons, clerically considered.

But there must be no schemes put through to fleece the State, even for these desirable ends. It is not the fault of a system that refuses fall upon it and attempt to pervert it to their damnable ends. If it is desirable to adopt a machine voting device, the State must be amply protected on all sides. It must know beyond all manner of doubt that the machine is what is necessary, efficient, economic and thoroughly reliable in its methods of operation.

It must know that the entire right to the use of the machine in California can be vested in the State. It must deal directly with the original inventors or controllers of the machine, and have no go-betweens. It must, as a guarantee against extortion and fraud, have a distinct pledge, binding in law, from all parties presenting machines for inspection, as to their price for the right of use, and the cost per machine in case of adoption.

That is to say, the cost must be a part of the competition. But beyond all this the whole subject matter must be committed to such hands that not even the suggestion of fraud and corruption will be tolerable. Any attempt on the part of the Legislature to settle upon a machine by vote will be open to the suspicion, after the exposures just made, that there is a steal behind the whole matter.

In its own interest the Legislature must wash its hands of any legislation that will by any possibility open a door for fraud, or even leave room for the bare suspicion of wrong doing.

In short, the Legislature must purchase by direct act no voting machine of any kind. It must rent no machine. It must itself use with no company representing any machine so as to create a legal liability.

If it arrives at the conclusion that machine voting is desirable, and will prove a corrective of present evils and delays in the electoral system, it must commit the work of securing such a machine to those who are above suspicion of jobbery, and guard even these by all necessary legislation against any possible trickery and cheating. And all this can be done. It is no herculean task to avoid the traps of legislative lobby rascals.

THE PASSING OF SENATOR MORRILL. The death of Senator Morrill removes a really great American. For no man can be returned to the national councils for forty years by a constituency of intelligent, free people, and not have attained the rank of national greatness. If such a man was not brilliant he would be great simply because of the supreme confidence reposed in him by his fellow citizens.

Senator Morrill was one of the few remaining links of the chain of statesmen whose lives and services bind us to the great past of our country. Morrill was an old and experienced member of Congress when the civil war broke out and threatened the disruption of the Union.

He was a courageous man, fighting in the front rank of American patriots in Congress, when the cause which led to the rebellion first showed bud and then broke into the blossom and flower of war.

His name is inseparably attached to one of the most famous tariff measures ever tried by the nation. In all his long and useful career the breath of scandal never blistered his reputation, and no unclean thing tarnished his character.

To such a man a grateful nation can well pay the tribute of respect high purpose and lofty character inspires. His death is a national loss.

VOICES OF THE PRESS. EXTRACTS FROM EDITORIAL EXPRESSIONS.

State and Coast Opinions on Subjects of Living News Interest. Tulare Register: Gentlemen who are writing long articles, and papers that are publishing long editorials, entitled "Should the Philippines Be Annexed?" should be called to order.

That question is not before the house, and not likely to come before it. The question of protectorates and dependencies and of colonializations are, however, in order. SPLENDID SPIRIT. Redding Free Press: No more enthusiasm nor larger outpourings of the people characterized President McKinley's trip to the West than to the South.

It is Democracy, from the politician's standpoint, to be against the President's foreign policy, yet regularly, there will be pictured platoons of gaudy men and women, bony and sunken of cheek, with skeleton fingers clutching at space in the delirious belief that it doesn't want to starve it had better keep away from California.

This uproarious exaggeration will not be due to generous heart-promptings, either. It will not be owing to a humane feeling ever on tap in the head offices of the big papers. It will be because opportunity is recognized to boom the circulation. In all the accounts the important feature of the hunger and destitution will be that the sensational papers sent down the canned beef and cast-off clothing to relieve it.

It is all very disgusting to people who understand, but it is very characteristic. It illustrates over again the way in which the California nest is constantly befouled by its leading papers.

INJURY TO STATE TRADE. San Diego Union: A considerable consignment of California wine was recently seized at the City of Mexico and condemned by the authorities as adulterated, an examination showing that salicylic acid had been used to age the wine, and thus to enable it to rate at higher grade.

According to the "Two Republics," which recounts the incident, there was no question about the wine having been "doctored," and that paper charges that this is not the first time California dealers have sent adulterated wines to the Mexican Capital.

The paper even declares that it is the practice to doctor the wines of this State. That this latter accusation is true, may be doubted. The fact probably is that honest dealers are being made to lose money because of the tricks of the unscrupulous.

Unfortunately this is the case with those who raise or handle other California products. Each industry has its black-sheep. Pure-food legislation rigidly enforced is the only remedy.

AGONICILLO. Los Angeles Times: Agoncillo, as well as the Spanish Commissioners, filed a protest against the conduct of the American Commissioners. Perhaps in the future some profound student of history, in searching the archives at Washington, will find both these protests. No one, save, had a sensation hence, is likely to know that they ever existed.

AN ABUSE ABRIDGED. Fresno Republican: The Sacramento "Record-Union" recently published a very interesting compilation showing the difference between the legislative "pickings" under the new law and under the old law.

Under the old law the total expenses for salaries of State house employees were $1,826 per day; under the new law they will be only $68 per day, saving $1,339 per day, or nearly $80,000 for the session, besides a large amount in mileage and extras.

In former years there were 68 $8 per day jobs; now there are only two, with 14 $6 a day places as a partial compromise. The rest are at $5, $4, $3 and $2.50 a day.

There will also be such temporary jobs as the work justifies under the custodian of the Capitol in caring for the building, but they will not be under political control. The Secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the Assembly may employ extra help when authorized by a vote of four-fifths of their respective houses.

A small minority can thus effectively block any patronage jobbery. Another abuse that will be reformed is the flooding of the Capitol with old copies and newspapers to add in the temporary organization of the Legislature. Under the new law a few specified hold-over officers are required to attend at the opening of the Legislature and are permitted to draw mileage, but no other officers are permitted until after permanent organization is effected.

These facts ought to be given a wide circulation in order to keep the swarm of office seekers at home, where they belong, and also as an indication of the coming of better politics. Political work will never be what it ought to be until it is absolutely understood that there is to be no such thing as "reward" for party services except to those who can get themselves elected to office by the people.

McKINLEY'S SOUTHERN TOUR. Los Angeles Express: Nothing since the outbreak of the Spanish war has so inspired and strengthened the spirit of national unity as the visit of President McKinley to the South and his addresses to the Southern people. All trace of partisanship and sectionalism has been recognized in McKinley's impassioned, yet wise utterances.

His "marching through Georgia" has been a triumphal tour in the highest and best sense of the term, and he has invariably said the right thing at the right time and in the right place. It is very gratifying to see the fact of his approval as a factor of encouragement for the future.

When Tuskegee Institute and its allied forces shall have completed their work and fulfilled their mission, there will be no more racing in the South. It is gratifying to see the President of the republic, whether he be Mr. McKinley or some other man, get close to the people, and it pays.

UPHOLD THE ADMINISTRATION. Willows Journal: The Democrats seem to be in for a row over the acquisition of territory and working up an opposition to the Administration's every move. As far as the "Journal" knows about the situation, it will sustain the Administration in upholding the honor of the nation and getting out of the trap into which we walked unwillingly and unwittingly.

We are in for it, and it is as much a patriotic duty to assist in getting out of it and getting the war matters in good shape, as to do the fighting, either with body or mind. These matters can be arranged properly, long before the next Presidential campaign, at which time we expect to howl Democracy again, but we do not approve of any unfair action to bring reproach on the President for political effect in 1900; and had we any power or influence in Congress, the demagogic practice of opposing everything the opposite party proposes would cease.

It is unwise, and certainly unpatriotic at the present time; the eyes of the whole world are upon us and every move in Congress or among the people will be commented upon by foreigners who, regarding England, delight in finding flaws and inconsistent words or acts. The fighting department of the Government is in good repute everywhere, and it behooves the political managers to be on their good behavior, as they do not enjoy an enviable reputation abroad.

WHO DID IT? Los Angeles Times: If Spain is so cocksure that none of her agents or officers blew up the Maine, why does she not attempt to show what did blow up that gallant ship? We are willing to listen to theories with all due patience.

My little girl, eleven years old, has had all her life a very serious and stubborn constipation. I had given everything I could think of, and still once in about two or three weeks she would wake at night crying piteously with pain, and for two or three hours would suffer intensely until finally relieved by frequent enemata.

All this was very wearing. My brother insisted I should try Ripans Tabules and finally he got them for me. I tried them, giving her two every night for awhile, then two every other night, then she took them herself when she felt like it.

It is now about three months since she has had any trouble, and her bowels are in a very healthy condition. Her color is good and she is gaining flesh. As I have given her no other medicine I ascribe her improved condition wholly to Ripans Tabules.
