

GREAT FINANCIAL ACHIEVEMENT.

C. P. Huntington's Settlement With the Government--A Permanent Monument to His Genius.

(From the Oakland Tribune.) The settlement of the debt due to the Government of the United States from the Central Pacific Railroad Company closes a remarkable chapter in the history of the men of the Pacific Coast, as well as in the record of the material development of this State.

ple of the Pacific Coast as well as the people of the nation. It has placed him upon the highest pedestal of American financiers, and has added to the list of great Americans an illustrious name, which will forever occupy a high place in the pride and gratitude of his countrymen.

MARTIN WINS HIS CASE. He Will Get the Farm Gallego Promised Him.

Judge Gaddis of Woodland has rendered a decision for the plaintiff in the case of James Martin vs. M. A. Howard, administrator of the estate of James Gallego, deceased.

The complaint alleged that Gallego and his wife took plaintiff at the age of 7 years, his mother having died, and promised his father to care for him as their own child and bequeath to him their property that he lived with them during their lives, rendering them such service as children do their parents, and also contributing money to pay for the farm; that Gallego and his wife told many persons that they would leave the property to plaintiff and after their death he continued in possession of it.

It also alleges that Gallego died intestate and Howard was appointed administrator and assumed possession of the property. It therefore asks that the court order the Clerk of the court to execute a conveyance of the property to plaintiff.

W. A. Gett is plaintiff's attorney. VAGRANTS IN A BATCH. Justice Davis Disposes of a Number of Cases.

In the Police Court yesterday morning the following persons were found guilty of vagrancy and sentenced to six months in the County Jail, but the commitments were withheld to enable them to "float" out of town: George Feeley, Al. Anderson, Nathan Lasky and George French.

Virginia Juarez and Fred Skillman pleaded guilty to vagrancy yesterday. The woman was sentenced to 100 days in the County Jail, the man to four months. Nina Swain and Annie Huntington were found guilty and sentenced to four months also.

VERY EASY.

Things that Can be Done without Much Trying. It is easy to be cheerful when one has all his wants.

It is easy, by a careless word, to shatter a reputation, but how hard it is to make proper amends.

It is easy to criticize a work of art, much easier than to produce one. That is one reason why critics are so plentiful.

It is easy to tell a man not to worry when his mind is burdened with a thousand cares. The fellow who makes the suggestion does not have to carry the load.

It is easy to make a list of remedies for the bodily troubles incident to winter, but it is not so easy to select those that are really worth buying.

It is easy to see why Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is so highly prized and is a stand-by in the family.

This wonderful preparation has saved the lives of thousands and it may save yours. It is to-day preserving the health of countless individuals. The Government admits that it is the only medicinal whiskey, because it is the only whiskey which the Government insists upon affixing a revenue stamp to, thus certifying that it is a medicinal whiskey. No other known whiskey is so regarded.

Wanted young men and women to execute and short-hand and short-hand at Atkinson's Business men will want them later on.

Prevent Pneumonia

Prevention is always better than cure, even when cure is possible. But so many times pneumonia is not cured that prevention becomes the natural act of that instinct of self-preservation which is "the first law of nature." Pneumonia can be prevented and is often cured by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"Some years ago I had a severe cold and was threatened with pneumonia. I could neither eat nor sleep, and was in a wretched condition. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and took it according to the directions, and at the end of fifteen days as well as sound as before the attack. I have recommended it in many cases of pneumonia since, and have never known it to fail in effecting a cure."

JOHN HENRY, St. Joseph, Ia. "I was attacked with a cold that settled on my lungs, and defied the skill of my physicians so that they considered me incurable. At last I began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and was entirely cured after having taken two bottles."

FRANCISCO A. SEVERIANO, Taunton, Mass. "The settlement of the debt due to the Government of the United States from the Central Pacific Railroad Company closes a remarkable chapter in the history of the men of the Pacific Coast, as well as in the record of the material development of this State."

Today the nation is in the throes of argument over the question of expansion. Timidity has never been an attribute of Roman builders. It was a maxim of Roman statesmanship that "Men do most resemble the gods when they create States."

The statesmen of former periods of our history were fully conscious of the great truth that all organisms live by progress; that stagnation means death; that arrested development is followed by decay; that upon the great stage of national existence all nations in the present as in the past have their choice between absorbing or being absorbed.

In pursuance of this higher wisdom the statesmen of half a century ago acquired the vast territory ceded by Mexico to the United States in 1848.

great territory urged upon the attention of the Government the importance of this great national work. Before its appalling magnitude the nation stood in mute embarrassment. The world had not experienced stupendous financial undertakings. The rows of figures which ran into millions, tens of millions and hundreds of millions were not familiar to the eye, nor the amounts they expressed plausible to the understanding.

In this emergency four Californians were found possessing the intrepid daring which on other fields had distinguished the world's great conquerors. They essayed the task of contending with the winter storms, the precipices and the avalanches of the towering summits of the Sierra Nevada Mountains for a highway of commerce. How they succeeded is a matter of history so familiar as to require no repetition, not even by way of glorious reminder.

When the work was accomplished the two shores of our country bound by the indissoluble bonds of iron rails, a storm of denunciation attended the subsequent lives and history of the men who had accomplished this great undertaking. At its completion, it was the greatest physical and financial achievement the world had ever witnessed. But the cry arose that it had been made possible by the munificence of the Government; that the constructors of the Pacific railroads had defrauded the Government out of millions; that at the beginning of their undertaking they were comparatively poor men, and that at the conception of the
