governing boards has stopped payment of the contract price.

The bill was strongly opposed by Wade, who said he believed no such law exists anywhere. It makes the municipality liable in cases where it has never been liable before.

Cough characterized it as a vicious bill, and the most dangerous innovation he had ever heard of.

Fairweather offered an amendment that the provisions of the bill should apply only to those contracts made in the past and the bill went to print still pending final passage.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGES. The following disapprovals were received yesterday in the Assembly:

To the Assembly of the State of California: I herewith return to your honorable body, without my approval, Assembly Bill No. 25, with my objections thereto.

Assembly Bill No. 24, having been heretofore disapproved, and this bill being supplemental thereto, and in reference to the fourth subdivision of section 1534 of the Penal Code, and there being no such subdivision in such section as the law now stands, I am, therefore, compelled to disapprove of the present bill.

HENRY T. GAGE, Governor. To the Assembly of the State of California: I herewith return to your honorable body, without my approval, Assembly Bill No. 24, with my objections thereto.

The bill proposes to amend section 1524 of the Penal Code, relating to the grounds upon which a search warrant can be issued, by adding to said section the following:

4. When the property is a cask, keg, bottle, vessel, siphon, can, case or other package, stamped, engraved, etched, blown, or otherwise attached or produced thereon the duty of the search is to ascertain the person by whom, or in whose behalf, the search warrant is applied for, in the possession of such person, or in the possession of another to whom such person shall have delivered it, with such intent, and without such owner's consent, or unless the same shall have been purchased from the owner thereof, in which case it may be taken on the warrant, or from any place occupied by him, or under his control, or from the possession of the person to whom it may have been delivered it.

This provision omits the necessary element of intent with which the selling, trafficking or refilling is done, and would give the right of search in cases of mere innocent user of casks, kegs, bottles, vessels, siphons, cans, cases or other packages, in fact, subject to the same objections specified in my former message of date February 23, 1899, disapproving Assembly Bill No. 23.

HENRY T. GAGE, Governor. Under unfinished business Dibble called up the consideration of Braunhart's fender bill, S. B. 72, which was left pending final passage, with an amendment and a motion for the previous question both hanging over its head.

Rather a fine point of order arose between Dibble and White, White claiming that O'Brien had, on Saturday, only temporarily withdrawn his amendment to repeal the bill, which provided that time Dibble moved the previous question; therefore, contended White, the previous question was on O'Brien's amendment, not on the final passage of the bill.

Dibble, however, insisted that the previous question rested on the passage of the bill and when White stood to his point and claimed that he had consulted the best authorities, Dibble rose in wrath and with characteristic gesture and expression exclaimed:

"I am the best authority on parliamentary law in this State."

It was recorded as a correction of the journal of Saturday that "Mr. Dibble moved the previous question on the passage of the bill," after which Dibble acceded to a motion to rescind the previous question and O'Brien got in his amendment, which provided that "the Board of Supervisors or City Council or other governing body of any city or other municipality shall, by ordinance, order or resolution prescribe the fender or brake to be used aforesaid on the day this Act takes effect." This was adopted.

Merrill offered an amendment providing that the brake, to be satisfactory must stop the car "when required." This was also adopted and the bill was, on motion of Dibble, sent to print and restored to its place on the Senate special file.

RECESS. The Senatorial ballot—one and the noon recess were both taken as usual with a reconvening at 2 p. m.

Afternoon Session. On the Senate special file Leavitt's S. B. 22, for the creation of the State Board of Harbor Commissioners for Oakland harbor, was passed.

S. B. 124, authorizing school districts managed by Boards of Education or Directors to establish and maintain day schools for the deaf, and authorizing payment therefor from the State school fund, was passed.

Knowland opposed the bill in a vigorous manner. He said it provided that wherever five deaf children could be gathered in a school could be established and a teacher employed and that the teacher was considered eligible with only a year of special training. Each of the pupils would cost $150 per year. Knowland then spoke of the State institution with its fine equipment and the years of experience of the Superintendent and faculty. He believed the small schools were not as yet demanded.

Pierce made a forcible speech against the bill which was also opposed by Clough and Cosper. White defended the bill, claiming that the district schools were needed for those children too young to be separated from their parents and that, instead of doing harm to the State institution as claimed, they would eventually prove feeders to it.

Conroy, who has championed the bill from the first, argued in its favor but the bill was beaten. Conroy gave notice of motion to reconsider.

Braunhart's S. B. 74, for the issuance of bonds for the completion of the San Francisco seawall, was passed.

A. B. 877—To provide for the construction of a free wagon road from the Mount Hamilton Observatory, in Santa Clara County, to some point in Stanislaus County, where connection can be made with the best route to the Yosemite Valley, and making an appropriation therefor. Passed.

A. B. 105, Dunlap—For the relief of district agricultural associations or district agricultural societies. Passed.

A. B. 439, Kelsey—To amend the Political Code relating to the appointment of the Board of Commissioners for San Francisco, Mary Island and Benicia. Passed.

A. B. 255, Brooke—Amending the Political Code by adding a new section thereto, relating to highway taxes. Passed.

A. B. 613, Johnson—Requiring hotel and lodging-house keepers to keep rooms in sleeping rooms to facilitate escape in case of fire. Passed.

Why the Jenness Miller Shoes Create Surprise.

Very many of those who come in to see the Jenness Miller shoe for women express surprise at finding it such a stylish shoe for a "common sense" one. Perhaps this is not to be wondered at when it is remembered that the ordinary health shoe is anything but pleasing to look at. The Jenness Miller shoe is satisfying to the eye as well as to the sense of comfort. Two grades, $3.50 and $5.

A New Women's Shoe That Many Will Fancy.

Another new shoe for women's wear this Spring and Summer is of fine kid with medium pointed toes and patent leather tips. Flexible McKay sewed soles and medium heels. This is a shoe that will give excellent satisfaction in wear and as long as it lasts will be attractive to look upon. The cloth vesting in this, as well as in all our shoes is warranted to wear as long as the leather. Price, $3.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION.

Considerable progress was made in the consideration of the general appropriation bill in Committee of the Whole.

On motion of Melick the item of $1-200 for office rent of the Board of Railroad Commissioners was struck out, Melick contending that the board could and should be accommodated with an office in Capitol building.

The item of $263,000 for the support of the Stockton State Hospital Asylum was, on motion of Dunlap, increased to $213,000, although Valentine and Caminetti of the Ways and Means Committee thought the former sum was sufficient.

The committee rose and reported progress asking permission to sit again. At 5:30 p. m. the House took a recess until 7 p. m.

Evening Session.

This was devoted to third reading and final passage of bills. The following work was done:

AMUSEMENTS.

A splendid audience greeted Nance O'Neil last night at the Clunie Opera House. The play was "Camille." Miss O'Neil's personation of the character of the heroine, already expressed in these columns concerning her native ability and refined accomplishments. It was a very superior work; we have seen equally as strong and nicely shaded art effort in that character, and some that was better, in that it was marked by characteristics and artful effects which only long experience upon the stage and years of study of the emotions alone can produce. But Miss O'Neil is young, just upon the threshold of a splendid career, one who is fitted by a noble presence, wonderful facial contour, consummate skill in expressing by that control all the passions and emotions of human nature. She has an unequalled voice for emotional work, and is inspired by an ambition concerning the aim of which and the certain outcome of its prosecution there can be no sort of doubt in the minds of those given to study of promise in youth. Her Camille was one of delicate shadings; of abandon without too great suggestion of grossness; of a passion all-absorbing and all-consuming; of self-sacrifice of the noblest order; of unselfishness rising to the level of true nobility. But it is to be said that Miss O'Neil has not undertaken, as some really great actresses have done, while awakening of sympathy and respect for Camille, to gloss over the grosser features of the career of that beautiful creature. On the contrary, she rather emphasizes them by delicate artistic touches, which is to say that while her method with the character is broad, it is also minute; while she attempts to conceal nothing of its recklessness, nothing of the sinfulness of the woman of the world, yet she makes the defiance of Camille in the isolated position of a coquette, one fully cognizant of the peril and shame it involves. All which is indicative of conscientious study and of earnest thought upon the possibilities of such a character. Miss O'Neil's Camille was a flesh and blood, more impressive than passionate, more intellectual than some draw the character, and yet so filled with the soul of the artist that admiration for the conscientiousness of the true student is irresistible. She won many a certain call, and they were all deserved, the honest tribute that genius commands. To-night "Oliver Twist," with Miss O'Neil as Nancy Sykes, in which we will have opportunity to measure her versatility, since the character is the antithesis of all we have seen her in to this date.
