At the Clude Opera-house Friday and Saturday and Sunday matinee the Herbert Keelcey and Effie Shannon Company in "The Moth and the Flame"...

comes as a refreshing stream in a dry land where no water is. The dramatist who can arrange a good burlesque and the usual stereotyped exciting climaxes to relieve the tedium of two hours of trite and rapid dialogue is all too common...

Those who wish to be entertained with something above the level of the rag time should see "The Moth and the Flame." The bright dialogue will refresh their minds and may spur them on to further intellectual effort.

NEW BASEBALL STAR.

Texas; O'Connor to Play First Base for the Sacramentos.

The local management has decided to send to the peninsular this season men who are familiar with every point of the game and who can impart their knowledge to other members of the team...

"Am playing here; league about gone; will come soon."

O'Connor will arrive here early next week, and will immediately affix his signature to a Gilt Edge contract...

Of Mike O'Connor it can be truly said that no better first baseman ever came to the Coast. He is a tall, well-proportioned athlete and can run like a deer...

There should be some great changes in the percentage column this coming week for the Sacramentos and the series from Watsonville, and San Francisco takes two from San Jose...

Surgeon in Hard Luck.

Here is a very extraordinary case that is causing excitement among physicians and surgeons, not only in this country, but in all other countries, where the medical profession flourishes, as soon as the news reaches them from Dresden. In that capital city of the Saxon kingdom the public prosecutor has announced his intention of instituting criminal proceedings against a practicing physician, under the following circumstances:

The doctor received a lady, suffering from some internal complaint, into his private hospital. He found that a small operation was necessary and she consented. When chloroform had been administered, however, it appeared that the mischief was much more serious than the doctor had supposed, and that the small operation would not be sufficient. Accordingly he performed another. It proved to be effective, the lady recovered and showed herself deeply grateful—until the little "accident" arrived. Then she protested that the greater operation had been unnecessary and as it was performed without her consent she threatened an action for assault or "bodily injury."

Thereupon the doctor sued her for the amount of his bill, $137. The Supreme Provisional Court at Dresden has just delivered judgment. It admits that the operation has lengthened defendant's life probably, but it was not carried on with her knowledge or approval. It might have been attended with danger. Therefore the court declared it "an intentional and illegal bodily injury."

Forthwith, as has been said, the plaintiff prosecutor instituted criminal proceedings.—London Correspondence New York Mail and Express.

"Can you see over us?" asked the members of the family sitting in the window as the procession went by.

Pacific Coast Mining News.

To all who are interested in the placer, quartz, and river workings of the Pacific Coast States the following news will be of interest:

WASHINGTON'S ORES. Spokane correspondent of Portland Oregonian: A prominent feature of the Spokane industrial exposition, to be held in September, will be the mining exhibit. It is proposed to make this the largest and best mineral exhibit ever given in the Northwest.

A meeting of the mining men was held a few days ago to take up the matter of arranging for an elaborate display, and much enthusiasm was demonstrated. The meeting passed a resolution endorsing the proposition to have a mining department of the exposition, and pledging the support of mining men to the enterprise. A committee of twenty mining men was appointed to take charge of the exhibit, and with full power to act. Eastern and Western mining machinery houses have expressed their willingness to expend large sums in exhibiting mining machinery in operation, and a mining display will be arranged that will be educational, not only to the general public, but to mining men, and to all who are in any way interested in the industry. Prizes will be given for the best mineral display from any camp; other prizes for the best display from any State, and a grand general prize for the best display from any place.

SOME RICH ROCK.

Calaveras Prospect: It is reported that rich strikes were made in the Lamphear and Esperanza mines in Mokelumne Hill this week.

In the Lamphear the strike was made in the 300-foot level. The vein is about ten feet in width. The gold is well distributed throughout the rock and some spots of the yellow metal show up as large as the top of a lead pencil.

The Esperanza vein was made at the 1,000-foot level. It is reported that the rock will go over $10 to the ton. Considering that the vein is from forty-five to ninety feet in width, the ore can be extracted and milled at a handsome profit.

TWO GOOD MINES.

Calaveras Chronicle: Reports from the Gwin mine are of the most encouraging character. The mine is keeping up its record as a bullion producer, and there is every indication that it will continue to do so for many years to come.

The concrete foundation for the new mortar blocks is now completed. In the building of the new mill has been commenced. The new mill will consist of forty stamps with room for twenty more if needed. The shaft is being sunk deeper and ore is being taken from the levels to keep the present forty-stamp mill on the mine open.

The last Chance and Afterthought mines, located about one-fourth of a mile from the town of Railroad and are owned by Walter Boire. They are an extension of the celebrated Petticoat lead. They consist of two parallel ledges in a slate formation. Three shafts have been sunk upon the properties, the deepest being thirty-two feet in depth, from which good ore, heavily impregnated with galena sulphurates, has been extracted. The properties are splendidly situated for working purposes, an abundance of water can be obtained from Clark's ditch under 250-foot pressure. This is one of the best properties for capital that your correspondent has ever seen. I am satisfied that if an inspection of the mines were had by an expert in the interest of some one looking for an investment, that the most favorable report would be made. The price asked is very low, as the owner has other business to attend to.

PLACER AND QUARTZ.

Yreka Journal: Several loads of mining lumber have been hauled to the Nebraska ranch at Greenhorn, adjoining the Blue Gravel mine, from Al. Lee's mill on Moffitt Creek, and the machinery for hoisting and pumping will be here in a few days more. The company bonding the Nebraska and Rosel grounds, represented by F. D. Fraser, with Mr. Stevenson as Superintendent, will sink the initial shaft at the Nebraska house and barn, by going down in the well and widening it, which is seventy-four feet deep, requiring only about twenty feet of digging further down to reach bed rock.

The Salmon River Hydraulic Mining Company is doing good work at Salmon River near Sawyer's Bar, with a full supply of water to keep going all summer, or until the last of August, by reason of considerable snow on the Salmon Mountain this winter.

Several more claims have lately been located on Patterson Creek, below the noted Sheta mine, and before long this will be one of the liveliest and most productive camps in Northern California.

Cal Gentry and Russell O'Neill have gone to their quartz mine on Greenhorn to commence getting out quartz again, and will also put up a little mill to do the crushing, instead of hauling a long distance to other mills as heretofore. Their ledge remains very good paying quartz, and by further development, will no doubt become more extensive and probably pay still better, as the work heretofore has been mostly in the surface croppings.

Work is progressing with very good success in the Golden Eagle quartz mine at Indian Creek, the ore yet taken out paying from $20 to $75 per ton. This mine was one of the richest in the county during the '50 period.

The Greenhorn Blue Gravel mine has had a new and larger pump added for raising more water for the sluices and to drain the claim more thoroughly. The pump was put in operation on Wednesday, doing the work required in the most satisfactory manner.

SOUTHERN COLVILLE.

Portland Oregonian: John Howard, the veteran miner and prospector, who has spent his life since boyhood in the hills of the West, and whose knowledge of veins and their values is second to none of his class, has just returned from the south half of the Colville reservation, with samples from a copper vein which he believes has the earmarks of a big mine. Samples of the ore he said he did not care to observe, but he had assayed made of only average samples. The ore came from the Congress group of four claims on Congress Hill. The claims are the Congress, Senate, Cabinet and President. The first three named are adjoining, and the President lies alongside them.

The location is two and three-quarter miles up Bridge Creek from the San Poil, and Bridge Creek is about five miles from Keller camp. On the Congress claim is a big copper contact vein.

"I do not know," said Mr. McDonald, "how wide the vein is. In an open cut I have the hanging wall, and have opened ten feet of high-grade carbonate and pyrite ore. I can trace the big showing for 800 or 900 feet. It runs down to the foot of the hill, where a fine tunnel site is found, and we can tunnel directly in on the vein. So steep is the hill that the tunnel will attain a depth of 600 feet in running about a like distance, about 100 feet in ore. There is abundant wood and water, and it is a fine location for cheap mining."

A half-mile from Bridge Creek camp is Keno camp. Two parties of prospectors came into that camp at the same time. There was an immense quartz cropping in eight days, and they discovered it about the same moment. There was no dispute. They sized up the vein and agreed on a fair division of it. They both want to work, and have been at it ever since. They are running tunnels and are getting values as high as $100 to $200 per ton. The ore is sulphide and the vein is eight feet wide. In Gold Creek camp some important development is being done. Among the claims I visited which were of fine promise were the Fitz Hugh Lee, Gold Hill, Mountain View, Three Sisters and the John H. Pugh. The two latter belong to the Nespelium, Tozer and Milling Company, which will develop them to a large extent this summer. The same company owns a group of claims on the head of the Nespelium, two miles southwest, which are also being developed, and here as fine a showing as anything in the district is being made.

"I am safe in predicting that great things will come out of the south half of the reservation. Enough has already been done to prove the presence of great ore bodies, rich in copper, silver and gold. I never saw a better mining country anywhere. It is an easy country to traverse; it is a level region in which to live, and with the advent of the railroads now building in that direction, there will be a greater stir than the north half ever occasioned. Capital from Western Washington and from Portland is coming into the south half freely. Eastern capital is also looking that way."

The fair sex in Japan are the most simple, and at the same time the most complicated creatures imaginable. In their general ideas and in their knowledge of the world they are like children—delightful children, too—and in their love of enjoyment and simple pleasures they retain their youthful simplicity all their lives. But, on the other hand, it is almost impossible for a foreigner, really to understand the nature of the Japanese. At a certain point a Japanese lady is apparently friendly, she greets one on meeting with that easy grace and courtesy which is one of their peculiar charms. There seems to be a wall of reserve beyond which it is impossible to penetrate. One may converse with her to fathom the cause of this barrier, but without success; and I find it the general experience of those who, like myself, have lived among the Japanese and know them well.

Perhaps the natural antipathy which has so long existed between the Eastern and Western races was caused solely by the friction which the latter were to fathom the cause of this barrier, but without success; and I find it the general experience of those who, like myself, have lived among the Japanese and know them well.

I am speaking more particularly of the ladies of the upper classes. The little "mumsee," generally considered by the ordinary globe-trotter to be the recognized type of a Japanese woman, is no more so than is the "grisette," the typical Frenchwoman or the English belle; girl, the typical Englishwoman.

Nowhere, perhaps, in the world does one find a more ideal "lady" than among the wives and daughters of "fair Japonica." A Japanese lady reminds me of a delicate sea-anemone which, at the first approach of a rough hand, withdraws its tentacles, and, in contact with the practical hardness of everyday life. She is almost morbidly sensitive, but her natural pride and politeness forbid her in any way to retaliate. How little we understand her feelings! A Japanese never forgets. Her memory is perfect, and I have heard of more than one case when a foreigner's official position has been lost owing to his wife's indiscretion, though he, and his wife also, may be entirely ignorant of the cause of his dismissal. In appearance a Japanese woman is smaller, and of slighter build than a European. Many are distinctly pretty when young, but they age very quickly, and with their youth every vestige of good looks departs. Their complexions are very sallow, but their faces are generally thickly painted and powdered, a hard line around the neck showing the point where art stops and nature begins.

Beauty, from a Japanese standpoint consists in a long, oval face, regular features, almond-shaped eyes, sloping slightly upwards, a high narrow forehead, and abundance of smooth, black hair. The complexion is a graceful, although the style of their dress prevents them walking with ease; and their feet and hands are delicately formed, and their manners unquestionably charming.

They take little or no exercise, and even when comparatively young the little ladies employ their time; there seems so little to be done in a Japanese house.—Cornhill Magazine.

Perhaps, for worldly success, we ought to have virtues that make us beloved, and faults that make us feared.—Joubert.

Mystery of Gray Hair. That a man's hair sometimes turns gray very suddenly is a fact well known to physiologists. Statistics, however, on this subject are very rare, and for this reason Professor Virchow, the famous German scientist, recently requested a number of physicians to send him full details of all such cases as might come under their observation.

As a result Dr. Moritz, the well-known authority on diseases of the throat, has just published in the "Archiv" a full account of such a case.

The subject, or victim, is a day laborer about 36 years of age. Some time ago he was very nearly run over by a railroad train, and naturally he received a severe shock. On the following morning a friend asked him what he had done to his hair, and, looking in the glass he saw that there were two distinct patches of white on his head, one exactly in the middle and the other just above his right ear. Each patch of white hair covers a space of from three to four square inches.

The evident conclusion is that this sudden change of color was caused solely by the fright which the man experienced when the train flashed by him within a few inches of his body.

One on Her. "Do you know that you talk in your sleep, Henry?" asked Mrs. Peck.

"Well, do you begrudge me these few words also?" he snapped back.—Philadelphia American.
