NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The Pride, Trillo and Dan Rice were the winning favorites at Aqueduct to-day. Head and head finishes were the rule, the last race being the single exception. The track had dried out, and was fast. The fourth race, a handicap at a mile and a sixteenth, was the feature of the day's sport. Only four went to the post, but they were so well matched at the weights that they were all lapped at the finish. Trillo was the favorite, but all had a following. Trillo led the running, and in a hard drive won by a head from Raffaello, who trailed to the stretch, but closed strong at the end. Results: Six furlongs, Trillo won, Raffaello second, Charentus third. Time—1:49 1-5. Five and a half furlongs, Gold One won, Waring second, Magic Light third. Time—1:08 4-5. THE KILLING OF HARDING ARCHER.

Costa Rica Definitely Refuses to Surrender Rutherford,

Who is Charged With the Murder of the American in Jamaica.

Declines to Give Up the Accused Unless the British Government Guarantees That Capital Punishment Will Not be Inflicted—The Case Closed So Far as Jamaica is Concerned.

KINGSTON (Jamaica), Nov. 2.—The Government of Costa Rica has definitely refused to surrender Rutherford, the man charged with the murder of the American citizen named Archer unless the British Government guarantees not to inflict capital punishment, to which the Government cannot accede, thus closing the case so far as Jamaica is concerned.

Early in 1897 and American named Post Harding Archer arrived in Jamaica for the purpose of taking up land and engaging in fruit cultivation. To all appearances he possessed considerable means, both in ready money and personal effects. Archer secured a property known as Elverale, in the parish of Portland, a most valuable place for his purpose, situated on the very outskirts of civilization and reached by a road that led no farther.

Company and partner in his venture, Archer secured the services of a Jamaican named Rutherford. On October 22, 1897, the body of Archer was found in an unfrequented spot in a pool of blood. The body showed two pistol-shot wounds, one through the brain and one through the heart. There was no weapon found, and the flannel undershirt, shirt and coat were buttoned up and found to be unperforated by the bullet that entered the heart.

The body also lay face downward on a pile of broken stones, yet the face was not bruised. The effects of the deceased were found to have been stolen. In spite of these facts the police of the district, after a delay of a week, set up a theory of suicide, with which they went before the coroner's jury. The coroner, who was the resident magistrate, refused to allow such a verdict on the evidence and the recorded verdict was that "the deceased came to his death from the effects of two pistol shots, but by whom discharged does not appear from the evidence. The circumstances surrounding the death of the deceased are such that the police should suggest that the police be instructed to institute further vigilant investigation."

In January, 1898, the Government formally notified the United States consul that Archer had committed suicide. Meanwhile Mr. Elworthy had kept up a lively correspondence with the Colonial Secretary, pointing out the criminal negligence and incapacity of the police, but his representations had no effect.

Early in the present year there was a shuffling of police and one result was the transfer to Portland of one of the shrewdest and most active inspectors on the force, Inspector McLeod. In the interim Mr. Elworthy, a Justice of the Peace and friend of Archer, had quietly been carrying on a private investigation with a view to the ultimate clearing of the memory of his friend from stain of suicide and to bring the murderer to justice. He placed the results in the hands of McLeod and, after considering them, that officer united with Mr. Elworthy in urging the Government to order a reopening of the inquiry.

This was done, Rutherford, who, immediately after the holding of the inquest, disappeared from the island, was located in Costa Rica, where he was arrested on an extradition warrant from the Jamaican Government.
