

DEMOCRACY'S MISSION.

The ways of Providence are truly inscrutable. For many years political economists have been puzzled to determine the mission of the Democratic party. Philosophers have shown that in the economy of nature every living thing is created for a purpose, but they have probably not considered the Democratic party as possessed of sufficient animation to be placed in the category of living things.

A very insignificant element of the Republican party are not enthusiastic over the nomination, but this feeling is inevitable with all nominations, and soon disappears as the canvass advances. A little reflection shows the folly of such a disposition. When a man enters a political campaign, he will expect and follow the majority if he is a man of honor.

There is but one way that political parties can adopt to secure the support of the majority. This is to represent the principles advocated by the party. When this is ascertained, the nominee is supposed to represent the principles advocated by the party.

Then followed a season of low prices for the Democratic party. For a few years there seemed to be no political "movement" to antagonize and the party began to degenerate. Garfield was elected by an increased majority and the future for the Democracy looked high and bright.

What a commentary upon the law and its administration is the ghostly affair which took place in Globe during the night of August 25th. Knowing that the end of justice are almost generally defeated through the unreasonable technicalities in law and defective statutes, the good people of Globe gathered en masse and proceeded to enact a movement to amend the constitution and to amend the laws.

The telegraph brings news of similar acts in all parts of our country and each week a new record is made in the number of arrests and convictions. We want laws which will deal out exact justice to all and visit proper punishment upon the guilty criminal with unerring exactness.

THE RAILROAD WAREHOUSES.

The blockade has at last been raised and travel upon the Southern Pacific resumed. The principal without exception between Maricopa and Phoenix, Arizona, is the sink of the Santa Cruz river. This sink is the receptacle of a watershed of miles in extent, and at this place the track was more or less undermined for ten miles. The water covered the whole valley, and in places was cut out to the depth of ten feet under the track.
