

THE DAILY REBEL.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 3, 1863

Gen. Bragg and His Men.

It has been reported that Gen. Bragg rides among his soldiers and cheers them by his presence. We are delighted to hear it. One of Gen. Bragg's errors—in common with most officers of the present age—is a failure to mix more with the men of the rank and file.

To do so is esteemed by many to be a species of demagoguism.

What a woful mistake! Nothing is so free from the charge. It is simply the impulse of a brave, true heart to be near those stalwart men, who lean upon it—to encourage them—and to make them feel that they are remembered and loved. A man who fights all day with a musket upon his shoulder must be gladdened by an occasional glimpse of his chief. It is a pillar of fire. It is a sort of beacon-light.

There was a natural animal magnetism in the character of Napoleon, which not only appreciated but perceived the value of this.

Just think what an inspiring sight it would be to see Gen. Bragg—who has previously found out from Col. Smith that private Jones has fought like a hero—ride up to the column and cry out "Where is private Jones, my company?" The man appears. His General takes him by the hand and says kindly to him "You are reported for especial bravery. Your country is proud of you. I promote you," and so on. Would not that be a sight worth seeing.

Indeed would it; and Gen. Bragg, we are proud to learn, is exemplifying it and means to do so.

Familiarity may breed contempt; but an acquaintance between a chief and his men can never breed anything—if the parties be worthy—but loyal love and mutual confidence.

Over the Border.

Our telegraphic columns refer to the occupation of the capital of Pennsylvania by the forces under Gen. Dick Ewell. Harrisburg is a beautiful city on the north bank of the Susquehanna. It is wealthy, and full of public stores also, which is more to the purpose. What disposition will be made of this signal achievement we know not; but conjecture is easy. The line of the Central Railroad—the main causeway between the Atlantic cities and the great West, and the grand artery of the commerce and travel of the latter—is thus placed in our hands. If we can not hold it we shall be able to destroy it sufficiently to obstruct the use of it for months to come. This is a very important point. Of course all public stores and property will be attended to, and, with a due regard to the amenities of civilized war, our troops will not forget Jackson, Fredericksburg, and other of our towns possessed at various times by the enemy. Gen. Ewell in this movement reproduces the spirit of Stonewall Jackson. Whether he will push his progress on to the Quaker City after "that leg" (which is said to be awaiting him) is a question that the next few days will determine. As to Hooker, he is getting out of Virginia and harm's way as fast as his legs will carry him, with Lee close at his heels.

Hurrah for the Bonnie Blue Flag.

Gen. Wharton.

During the recent retrograde movement, this gallant Texan won deserved admiration for his quiet, skillful generalship, his cool courage, and his prompt, manly bearing. Although not so noted in the papers as many others, Gen. Wharton is not the less appreciated by those who know his worth as an officer and a man. He brought to the commission of brigadier of cavalry not a noisy but an enduring fame. As a Captain of Rangers in the first place, he was remarked for those qualities which subsequently placed him in command of that regiment of heroes, after the fall of Terry, and which finally placed him in his present position. Texas—full of brave men and true—boasts no nobler spirit, and long may he live!

A Request to Soldiers' Aid Societies and Charitable Associations in the Army.

Please forward the address of your respective institutions to Rev. A. W. Miller, Corresponding Secretary of the Evangelical Tract Society, Petersburg, Va. This request is made with a view to the circulation of the Army and Navy Messenger, published by the society.

Gentlemen of the army desiring to obtain hymn books are informed that this society will soon issue one, and a supply will be forwarded to Atlanta and Chattanooga.

Chambersburg, the advance post of our army, is in Franklin county, Pa., due north of Hagerstown, Md., and about fifteen miles from the Maryland line. Littleton is in Adams county, Pa., and within a mile of the line of the two States. Williamsport is in Maryland, on the Potomac, and about twenty miles north of Harper's Ferry. Cumberland is also on the Potomac, about fifty miles above Williamsport, and within four or five miles of the Pennsylvania line.

A Difference.—The editor of the Savannah Republican lately asked an old friend just from New Orleans how Banks' reign compared with that of Butler on the score of ferocity. His reply was that the principal difference between the two men was that Butler could be bribed and Banks could not be, and to that extent the privileges of loyal citizens had been curtailed under the new Administration. When Butler was there money could command any permit that might be desired.

There was a distinguished gentleman (a "mysterious stranger") who arrived in Tullahoma the other evening and created considerable enthusiasm.

The Battle of Hoover's Gap.

JOHN S. FISHER, Esq.—Dear Sir: Knowing the interest that the friends and relatives of the soldiers feel after an engagement in which he has participated to know his fate, I avail myself of the earliest opportunity afforded since the spirited fight of Gen. Bate and his gallant brigade on Wednesday evening, the 24th instant, to give you a list of the casualties, which please hand to the Rebel for publication.

For your own information, knowing the kind relations existing between yourself and the General, I would state that no information was received of the approach of the enemy, until he had passed the Gap (Hoover's) General Bate was ordered, taking two of his regiments and the battery, (the Bufala) of his command to meet him. We were discussing a sumptuous camp dinner, when the order came. In less time than it will take me to write the list of casualties, the dashing Bate was in the saddle and his column in motion, consisting of the 1st Georgia, the 20th Tennessee, Major Caswell's battalion of sharpshooters and the battery before indicated, in all not exceeding 700 men, the 1st Georgia, led by the heroic Ruder, of Nicaragua memory, who always holds a "full" when it comes to fighting, and the 20th Tennessee, with the prestige of its glorious achievements at Fishing Creek, and upon other well fought fields, and full of the invincible spirit of its noble old chief, Col. Battle, but now led by a worthy successor, in the person of Col. Smith.

Two miles south of the Gap, and near Beach Grove, the General encountered the Hessians. At a glance the military advantages of the ground were mastered, his lines formed, and dispositions made, and the bloody drama opened. A staff officer of Gen. Bragg, who reached the ground soon after the conflict ensued, paid the General the highest compliment in his hearing, declaring the position admirably chosen, and the dispositions happily made. Here, until night closed upon the combatants, did this gallant little force doggedly contest the ground with a greatly superior force of the enemy, certainly not less than two brigades, maintaining up to the last shot, the position originally assumed. After the fight had ceased, Johnson's brigade was ordered up to relieve Gen. Bate for the night, occupying the identical ground. The Rebel newspaper, generally so correct in its statements, is mistaken in its information that Gen. Bate's brigade "fell back" or "was driven back" for the want of ammunition or any other cause. On the contrary, it yielded no inch of ground, but his advanced position was maintained by our lines until withdrawn on Friday noon, when a general retrograde movement on this point was determined upon. The contest was exceedingly spirited. Major Caswell with his excellent battalion of sharpshooters, as fine looking and as gallant officer as ever drew a blade, played an important part, and demonstrated very strikingly to yankee apprehension what is meant by sharp shooting.

The General seemed to forget that an unfortunate leg of his had come in disagreeable proximity to a Minie at Shiloh, and bore himself for all the world as if he rested upon two solid pedestals. "Long may he wave." I shall write you soon again. I close this in haste, as our troops are now ordered out to meet the enemy, who are said to be within four miles of this place, on the Manchester road. I am pained to add, in conclusion, that Gen. Starves has just been brought in, mortally wounded, having received a shot in his abdomen. I am very truly your friend, GEO. W. WINCHESTER.

A Surgeon of our army who has recently been exchanged, having spent a few weeks among the yankees, sends us a communication complimentary of a Col Campbell of the 2d Michigan Regiment in the Federal army. He reports that the department of Colonel C. towards the Confederate prisoners in his charge was very gentlemanly and kind. The soldiers of his old regiment, too, emulate that soldierly commander, in taking care of the prisoners that happen to fall into their hands, and make it their special duty to treat them kindly, and as one soldier should always treat another. Col. C. was promoted to a Lieutenant Colonelcy, for gallantry, by his own Government.

Ewell has gone "over the border" in Pennsylvania. Men of the army of Tennessee, go ye and do likewise—Over the border gallants—'Tis the cry of the hour—Over the border—over the border—Into the yankee power! Crush him wherever you find him—The fell marauder! 'Tis the spirit of Stonewall Jackson, Crying "over the border."

NEW POSTAGE LAW.—The Postage Act, approved April 29, 1863, declares that on and after the 1st of July the postage on newspapers sent to regular subscribers shall be one cent per copy, payable in advance. Newsboys running on railroad trains are required to pay the same postage on all papers sold.

Rosecrans and his men profess great devotion to "the Union." They will exclaim with Wolsey, when driven like sheep before the legions of Bragg, "Had we but served our God with half the zeal We served 'the Union.' He would not Have forsaken us."

No yankee General who may fall in this war of extermination is worth the obscurest private in the ranks of the resisting South.

Where is Morgan? Rosecrans asks the question, and echo answers "Where—don't you wish you knew?"

Rosecrans says—we learn—that he will celebrate the 4th of July by whipping the rebels roundly. That is not the first idle brag of a boast, which will have to be swallowed whole.

Numbers do not constitute the strength of armies; faith and pluck do; and of those elements of victory Bragg's army is full to the brim.

In the midst of the harvest time we will whet our swords upon yankee bones, and wet our soil with yankee blood.

Up, up to the fight, Strike for the right, While the earth is green and the day is bright!

The yankee bands are very fond of playing "Dixie," but yankee feet will very shortly shuffle "Home Again."

Rosecrans needn't be so particular in his attentions to the railroad. He'll be given a rail to ride soon enough.

"Bartram's eight" and Bragg's "right" are about to "meet" at Tullahoma.

The yankees will find the rattle of Bragg's rifles no baby rattles!

The best net to catch the yankees with is the bayonet!

Forest is proving a pathless wilderness to the yankees.

GREENADA, MISS., June 23d, 1863. EDITORS OF CHATTANOOGA REBEL.—GENTS: I notice in one of your former issues, a publication purporting to be a correspondence between B. M. Estes of Memphis, Tenn., and Vance. Presuming that the publication originated from a jiding reporter of mine, spoken of incidentally, in conversation with you, do Mr. Estes and myself the justice to say, that no such correspondence ever took place between us. And knowing some of the circumstances under which he went back and remained in Memphis, such as delicate health—large family, and small means, I never reprehended him. And from his well known high character, and devotion to the Southern cause, have no doubt but what he will be able to satisfactorily justify himself before our Southern community. Very respectfully, J. P. VANCE.

GEN'L CLEBURNE AND HENNINGSON.—THE VALUE OF LUCK.—"Bayonet" writing to the Mobile Register from Watrice, Tennessee, speaks thus of General Cleburne: "The notable man of our army is General Cleburne who has risen with the rapidly of Claude Martinette as a meteor. He began the war as a private, and in eighteen months was a Major General. And this without going through West Point and without political influence. He fought his way up by hard knocks. Such success argues both extraordinary merit and extraordinary luck. No man, however liberally great, can get along without luck, and as the adage goes, 'a lot for luck,' they generally having a monopoly of the article. But occasionally luck and merit meet in the same man, and then comes a Claude Martinette or a Cleburne. Gen. Henningson is one of the truly great commanders, but luck is against him, and he has quit the army in disgust."

Dr. Mackay, the New York correspondent of the London Times describes the female orator who is enlightening large audiences in Northern cities as "a woman named Dickinson, a spinster of twenty-six, from the city of Philadelphia, fresh, fair and blooming, with an amazing volubility and power of vituperation, somewhat impaired by the nasal twang and the yankee mispronunciation."

While the enemy is burning bridges and private dwellings in East Tennessee, our forces in Maryland are respecting private property and paying United States money for what they get. This is called "chivalry." Columbus Sun.

Some music teacher once wrote that the "art of playing a violin requires the nicest perception, and the most sensibility of any art in the known world." Upon which an editor comments in the following manner: "The art of publishing a newspaper, and making it pay, and at the same time making it please everybody, beats fiddling higher than a kite."

The Union candidate for Governor of Ohio, in opposition to Vallandigham, the Democratic nominee, will probably be Gov. Todd, (the present incumbent, or ex-Congressman, John A. Bingham.

MORGAN AND HIS MEN! I beg leave to announce to the public, that I have just finished the publication of the first GREAT NOVEL, of this second War of Independence, entitled "Golds and Romance of Morgan and his Men!" BY SALLY ROBERTSON FORD, of Louisville, Kentucky, author of "Great Truman, Mary Bunyan, Domestics of Free Manary," &c. &c. Complete in one volume at $3.00.

The reader will be gratified to enjoy all the exciting interests of a first class standard romance, and all the information of a correct history. The historian will find it a valuable reference book at present, as well as for times to come.

Considering a work of art, it happens so, that this is so far the FIRST ORIGINAL LITERARY WORK of note, that this war has produced, and the Confederacy issued.

On account of the scarcity of materials, we were compelled to reduce the edition to a very limited number, and it is very uncertain, for the same reason, when we might be able to publish a second; hence all those who wish to secure a copy of this historical Novel, will do well to call in time. S. H. GOETZEL, Mobile, Alabama. [19-1m]

LYNCBURG VIRGINIA. STAPLES & DILLARD. The senior partner has associated Mr. P. H. Dillard with him in the GENERAL COMMISSION HOUSE, at the old stand of Staples & Anderson, and solicits consignments of Sugar, Molasses, Cotton Merchandise and Produce generally. To sell produce at highest market rates—attend in person to weights and delivery, and send account sales and checks at once, is the old established rule of this House. It has answered an extended patronage which 30 years' experience with this market, and our present improved facilities, prepares us to meet with our usual promptness.

Literary advances on any amount of Produce in hand. Always on hand a heavy stock of Manufactured and Smoking TOBACCO, warranted as represented and as low as can be had in Virginia. [19-1w] STAPLES & DILLARD.

S. G. SHERB, Lt. and Post Adjt. [19-2-3w]

MATRIMONIAL.—The subscribers, Surgeon and Asst. Surgeon in the Army of the Confederate States would be pleased to open a correspondence with young ladies who are matrimonially inclined. The presence of official business precludes them from the agreeable duty of holding congenial partners by social intercourse, and therefore compels them to resort to this expedient. The Surgeon is 24 years old, dark hair, whiskers, and eyes, and of unexceptionable habits; great amiability of temper, and well calculated to insure happiness in the married state, to a handsome accomplished widow of twenty-five summers. The Asst. Surgeon is twenty-five years of age, dark hair, blue eyes, and exceedingly pleasant disposition. It is considered quite handsome, and desires to marry a young lady not over twenty years of age—she must be beautiful, accomplished, and have a moderate endowment of this world's goods. All communications strictly confidential; and if on receipt of exchange of letters, a compatibility of disposition is discovered, an interview with real names, will be expected. No attention will be paid to any but serious communications, as this advertisement is not a frivolous one. Address: Surgeon C. L., and Asst. Surgeon D. F., Chattanooga, Tenn. [19-1w]

POST HEADQUARTERS, HOME, GA., June 12th, 1863. THIRTY DOLLARS REWARD.—Private J. L. PIERCE of Cheatham's Division, Polk's Corps, Army Tennessee, stationed at Rome, Ga., age 17 years, 5 feet 2 inches high, dark complexion, sandy hair, grey eyes, and belongs to Co. P 3rd regiment Tennessee Vols., and resides in Gwinnett county Ga. The above reward will be paid for his apprehension and delivery to me, at this post, or any other military post in the Confederate States. D. S. HAY, [19-1w] 1st. Lt. and Comdg. Detail.

CENTRAL HOUSE, CHATTANOOGA, FOR SALE. In consequence of ill health, the proprietor of the above establishment has concluded to offer it for sale; and if not disposed of privately before Saturday, the 1st of August next, it will be sold on that day to the highest bidder. To any one wishing to engage in the hotel business, the above affords a rare chance for a profitable investment. The store houses connected with and belonging to the establishment are now renting for over two thousand dollars per annum. For terms, which will be made accommodating, and other particulars, apply to J. H. WILLY, Commission Merchant. [19-1w]

$100 REWARD.—Ranaway, on or about the 10th of May, from Shelbyville, my boy Oliver, the property of Mrs. Winston. He is black, about 15 years old, short in stature, and weighs about 134 pounds. For months past he has been in the employ of Captain Walter Morris. Said boy is a very likely and efficient servant, and when he left was well clothed and had plenty of money. I will pay the above reward for his delivery to me at Shelbyville, Tenn., or lodged in any safe jail so I can get him. CAPT. T. B. POWELL, Assistant Inspector General Gen. Wheeler's Staff. [19-2-9t]

THE BEST INVESTMENT YET OFFERED.—I wish to sell my farm lying on Chickamauga creek, consisting of about 165 acres of land, 40 or 50 of which is No. 1 creek bottom land. It adjoins the mill place of Mr. Philamon Bird, and is about 1 1/2 miles from Chickamauga Depot. There is between 70 and 80 acres cleared on the place, under good fence, and in a fine state of cultivation. Any one wishing to buy such property will do well to call on the undersigned. [19-2-4t] W. F. HOOPER.

THIRTY DOLLARS REWARD.—Ranaway about two weeks ago my boy Edmond, dark complexion, about 5 feet 6 inches high, weighs about 140 lbs., and about 42 years old, and stammers a little; he will try to make his way back to Nashville. I will pay the above reward for his apprehension and delivery in any safe jail so I can get him. Address Mr. at High-town, Forsyth Co. Ga. M. GELSTRAP. [19-10-1w]

CAPTAIN TORNEY'S COMPANY.—All men belonging to Captain Torney's company, 43d Tennessee Col. Quarles, are required to report to Capt. T. at Chattanooga, or to Major J. C. Johnson, at Athens, Tenn., immediately. By order of E. D. BLAKE. [19-2-3t]

FRANK A. TORNEY, Captain.
