GREELEY ON LAWYERS:
"Mr. Greeley," said Partridge, "this is Mr. Denslow, a young attorney." Greeley uttered a short grunt of recognition, but did not even look around. I, embarrassed, shrunk away to one corner and took a chair. He went on around the room, looking at pictures and what not, and in about five minutes, when his back was turned on me, and I thought he had forgotten me, he suddenly, without looking at me, said: "Hem! So you're an attorney, are you?" I confessed it. "I hate lawyers!" he exclaimed, emphatically. "I hate lawyers; they do more mischief than their heads are worth."

"I suppose they are a necessary evil," I said, deprecatingly.
"Wholly unnecessary," he insisted.
"I suppose you will acknowledge that they promote good order and remove impediments to good government," said I.

"Just the contrary! Just the contrary!" he squeaked, in his odd falsetto; "they cause disorder, and they are the chief obstacles to good government."

I thought the man was crazy.
"Perhaps you will tell me," I suggested, "how debts would be collected without lawyers?"

"Don't want 'em collected; don't want 'em collected," he squeaked.
"If A lets B have his property without payment, I don't see why C, D, E, F and all the rest of the alphabet should be called on to serve as a police to get it back. No debt should be collected by law. Its monstrous! Let a man trust another man at his own risk. Even a gambler pays his debts that he isn't legally obliged to pay, and calls them debts of honor; but men will put their property out of their hands to prevent the legal collection of their grocery bills. Abolish all laws for the collection of debt, and that would abolish most of you lawyers—a good riddance."

A clergyman, preaching a sermon on death, concluded with the following observation: "But even death, my brethren, so well deserved by mankind for their sins, the wisdom of Providence has, in its paternal kindness, put at the end of our existence; for only think what life would be worth if death were at the beginning!"

A few weeks ago the large carpet in the adjuster's room of the San Francisco Mint was taken up for the first time in five years and burned, for the purpose of reducing the accumulation of filings. The value of the bullion obtained was $2400.

"I'll join you presently," said the minister to the young couple, as he went for the church key.

There is happiness enough in the world for all of us. The chief difficulty is in getting our share of it.
